Paris Ready For Limit to Dismantling Of Germany

Expected to Yield If Given Guarantees As Big 3 Ministers Begin Session Today

Paris, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—France is ready to agree to a partial halt in the dismantling of German industries when the Big Three Foreign Ministers meet here Wednesday, provided it gets guarantees against the revival of German war industry, diplomatic sources said tonight.

The dismantling problem is the most urgent one which Secretary of State Dean Acheson, French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin will tackle when they meet tomorrow morning at the Foreign Office, the Quai d'Orsay.

The long-disputed issue is whether the Western Allies shall continue to dismantle German factories which might be used for war production purposes or turn them to peaceful uses and fit them into a fully cooperating European economy.

In addition to the dismantling problem, the Western powers also may reach a decision to end the legal state of war with the new West German Federal Republic so it can play its part in rebuilding western Europe.

Details of the program are secret but it is understood that the Foreign Ministers will discuss:

1. The entire problem of the unification of western Europe.

2. Allied reparations problems.

3. Admission of the West German Republic to the new Council of Europe, the cooperative body of Western nations.

4. The advisability of recognizing the Chinese Communists as the legal government of China.

France, ever fearful of a strong Germany after three invasions in 70 years, is not prepared to agree to stop dismantling entirely, diplomatic sources said. But it is now willing to take a big step in that direction, informants reported, if:

1. The West Germans can convince France that they accept the

School Athlete, 17, Critically Wounded By Shot in Home

A 17-year-old Bethesda Chevy Chase High School athlete was found in his bedroom shot between the eyes with a .22 caliber rifle last night. He was in critical condition at Suburban Hospital.

The youth, identified as Richard B. Onslow, was found in the bedroom of the second floor of his home at 4706 Hunt ave., Chevy Chase, Md. He was taken to the hospital by members of the Chevy Chase Rescue Squad and then rushed to Red Cross headquarters for three pints of blood to be given him in transfusions.

The boy is the son of Richard Walton Onslow, former newspaperman for The Washington Post and former public relations director for the National Association of Real Estate Boards. He is now a public relations consultant.

Both parents were at the hospital early today as surgeons worked to save the life of their son.

Mr. and Mrs. Onslow have three younger children, a son and two daughters.

Senator Reed Killed at Home In Kansas by Stairway Fall

Parsons, Kans., Nov. 8 (AP).—Senator Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.) was killed tonight in a fall downstairs at his home. He was 78.

A physician said the Senator suffered a heart attack, and then fell from the second to the main floor. He was found dead by his wife, Minnie, and a maid—the only other persons in the house.

Mrs. Reed was the only other person in the house at the time. She was in an upstairs bedroom and did not witness the accident.

Reed came back early to his home here from the last session of Congress. There had been widespread speculation as to whether he would run again for the Senate in view of his age. His term was due to expire January 3, 1951.

Senator Reed was a forceful fighter for better railroad transportation facilities to move the Midwestern flood of wheat at harvest time. Every year he pressured the railroads for more boxcars.

As Governor of Kansas prior to his service in the Senate, Reed spearheaded the successful western grain rate case in which the Interstate Commerce Commission reduced charges for shipments from the prairie States.

Born in Champaign, Ill., October 19, 1871, Reed was four years old when his parents moved to Kansas.

He entered politics as secretary to Gov. Henry J. Allen in 1919. His own administration, 10 years later, was notable for construction and improvement of the State's highways.

He initiated an economy cam-

B-25 Barely Misses Airliner; CAA to Direct Service Flying

Control Over Military Aviation Extended By Civilian Agency

The Civil Aeronautics Administration will take over control of military and civilian flying on the Federal airways under all flying conditions, beginning today, it was announced last night.

The step was taken after several weeks of meetings between the CAA, the Air Force and the Navy in a joint effort to achieve maximum flying safety.

Until today military flying came under CAA control only in bad flying weather. In fair weather, the services themselves controlled the movements of their aircraft.

Details of the new procedure were not available last night but if the CAA gets the same control over military aircraft in fair weather that it now has in adverse weather conditions, Air Force and Navy planes must get CAA approval before taking off on any cross-country flight.

Military planes would also need CAA approval before making any change in altitude, direction or destination while en route.

CAA Administrator D. W. Rentzel last night said he would issue a detailed statement on the new regulations today.

Bolling Base Bomber On Mock Instrument Trip Near Mt. Vernon

Bolling Air Force Base yesterday suspended all simulated instrument flying in its area pending investigation of report that a Bolling B-25 on such a flight and an Eastern Air Lines Constellation narrowly missed colliding a few miles south of National Airport yesterday morning.

Col. S. D. Grubbs, commanding officer of the base, issued the order, although the pilot of the B-25 said he never saw the Constellation, which had just taken off from National Airport and was en route to Atlanta, Ga.

The near-tragedy occurred just one week after a Bolivian P-38 rammed into an Eastern DC-4 just off the southern end of National Airport. All 55 aboard the DC-4 were killed in the crash, the worst commercial crash in United States history.

Civil Aeronautics Board investigators interrogated the P-38 pilot, Erick Rios Bridoux, for 90 minutes in Alexandria Hospital yesterday, but would only say afterward that Bridoux's answers had shed much light on the disaster.

Open hearings on the crash will begin at 9:30 this morning in hearing room B of the Interdepartmental Auditorium, Constitution ave. between 12th and 14th sts. nw.

In yesterday's near-miss, the pilot of the Constellation, Capt. J. R. Richardson, 41, a former Washington Post advertising man, said the B-25 passed overhead within 50 feet of the transport.

Since the bomber descended on him from behind and to the right, Richardson said he didn't see it "until it was almost on top of me." It was so sudden, he said, that he didn't have time to take any evasive action.

After the B-25 passed forward

2 More Big Companies Sign Contracts With Steelworkers

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Steel company resistance to the CIO Steelworkers' demands for free pensions appeared to be crumbling yesterday as two more big steelmakers agreed to the Bethlehem formula for ending the strike.

The coal mine operators' resistance to the contract improvement demands of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, however, appeared to be undiminished.

Representatives of the soft coal producers and the union were called to Washington for a joint mediation session Thursday in the latest Government effort to attain peace in the 51-day strike of some 400,000 soft coal miners.

Shortly after midnight yesterday the striking CIO Steelworkers reached an agreement with Jones & Laughlin, fourth largest steelmaker, and ordered 40,000 union employes back to work. Later in the day Republic, third largest producer, signed a similar accord, thereby ending the strike of 54,000 workers.

As of late yesterday, the CIO Steelworkers had won noncontributory pensions—a minimum of $100 a month for 25-year-men at the

O'Dwyer In Over Morris, Marcantonio

Incumbent Defeats Opponents Easily In Hotly Contested Mayoralty Election

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—William O'Dwyer, the Irish-born cop who rose to be mayor of the Nation's largest city, swept to easy reelection on the Democratic ticket tonight.

The 59-year-old O'Dwyer, a World War II general, trounced Newbold Morris, Republican-Liberal-Fusion, and Communist-backed Republican Vito Marcantonio after one of the rowdiest New York City campaigns in years.

Complete returns from the city's 3889 election districts showed:

O'Dwyer, 1,264,000.
Morris, 956,170.
Marcantonio, 356,423.

Morris Concedes Defeat

Morris conceded O'Dwyer's election at 10:23 p. m.

In a telegram to O'Dwyer, he said:

"After another election under our free democratic form of Government, the people of our city have voted to continue you in office . . . I congratulate you . . . May Almighty God give you strength and wisdom to fulfill your responsibilities to all of us during the next four years."

In Upstate New York, the news was no better for the Republicans. Democrats overturned at least four Republican city administrations.

Syracuse elected a Democratic Mayor, Thomas J. Corcoran, for the first time in 24 years. Democratic mayors also took over in Binghamton, Geneva and Port Jervis.

New York City's election fever ran highest in Harlem, where extra police have been stationed since a parade erupted into violence last Thursday night.

The Communist Party had waged its most intensive campaign in Harlem for Marcantonio and for

Dulles Admits Defeat in Race For Senate In New York

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York last night was elected to the United States Senate in a walkaway victory for the Truman "Fair Deal."

Senator John Foster Dulles, who made the "welfare state" the issue, lost after a "dingdong" contest that at times approached slapstick.

New York Democrats made it a dual victory by returning William O'Dwyer as Mayor in a three-way race.

Returns from 9389 of the State's 9565 election districts gave: Lehman, Democrat-Liberal, 2,558,900; Dulles, Republican, 2,336,540.

These figures were from 5500 of 5676 districts in Republican up-State territory and all of the 3889 districts in Democratic New York City.

Claim Vote of Confidence

Democrats rejoiced nationally, hailing Lehman's election as a vote of confidence in Truman domestic policies and an augury for Democratic victory in the 1950 congressional elections.

President Truman, honor guest at a dinner of the Women's Democratic Club of Washington, turned it into an election jubilee.

Calling it "a most happy evening," he gleefully played the role of a newscaster, reporting spot election developments.

The Lehman-O'Dwyer victories, he predicted, will have "a decided effect on the elections in 1950 . . . convince me more than ever that the Democratic—the party of the people—has a great job to do for the welfare and prosperity of the United States and . . . the peoples of the world."

Dulles' Future in Doubt

The 61-year-old Dulles, making his first race for elective office against the veteran Lehman, may have lost more than the Senate seat to which he was appointed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

His future as a bipartisan foreign policy advisor to Presidents remained in doubt.

The 71-year-old Lehman, defeated for the Senate just four years ago, made his comeback on a platform pledging opposition to the Taft-Hartley Act and support of Administration policies down the line.

AFL, CIO and some of the railroad brotherhoods, girding for an even tougher fight ahead, united solidly behind him. To labor it was a "trial run" for a 1950 battle to defeat Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio).

Immediately at stake was the unexpired Senate term of ailing former Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.), which runs out in January, 1951. Thus Lehman, or a successor, must make the race all over again next year.

It meant a net Senate gain of one Senate seat for the Democrats, making the Senate division: 53 Democrats to 43 Republicans.

In addition, New York's Tenth

Nearby Va. Votes for Poll Tax, Battle

Nearby northern Virginia followed the State-wide pattern in voting down the Campbell amendments and voting in State Senator John S. Battle, Democratic Party candidate, as the Commonwealth's Governor.

In the five sectors of the northern Virginia area, there appeared to be no deviation even precinct-wise.

But in northern Virginia, one State pattern was broken: State residents turned out in droves for a general election in a non presidential year. Observers freely conceded that the controversial Campbell amendments, heatedly debated during the preelection weeks, were the cause of the heavy voting.

On the State-wide issues, here is how the nearby northern Virginia area voted:

With all of the 112 precincts reporting, the Campbell amendments vote was: For, 7588. Against, 19,556.

In the voting for State offices, with all precincts reporting, the totals were: For Governor, John S. Battle (D.), 16,673; Walter Johnson (R.), 8067, and Clark T. Robb (Co.-D.), 902.

For Lieutenant Governor: L.

Battle Wins; Amendment Defeat Lone Machine Loss

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Virginia voters slapped down a proposal to repeal the poll tax yesterday in a landslide general election vote.

With 1458 of the State's 1760 precincts reporting, the unofficial vote on the Campbell amendments to the constitution was:

For, 48,946.

Against, 169,473.

John S. Battle, Democratic organization candidate for Governor and supporter of the amendments, was leading his Republican opponent, Walter Johnson, by a greater than 2-to-1 margin.

Vote for Governor

Battle (Dem.), 147,548; Johnson (Rep.), 57,902; Clarke T. Robb (Soc.-Dem.), 4340.

Battle, the 59-year-old former chairman of the State Senate Finance Committee, piled up a heavy lead from the start, as expected, and was never threatened.

Neither were his two running mates who had the blessing of Senator Harry F. Byrd, Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., and Lieut.-Gov. L. Preston Collins, both incumbents.

With 1430 precincts reporting, Collins led Republican E. Thomas McGuire of Petersburg by 145,344 to 53,547 votes.

Almond was ahead of Social-Democrat Sidney Moore of Portsmouth with 145,538 votes to 45,248 in 1427 of the 1760 precincts.

The size of Social-Democrat Moore's vote surprised many observers because he is a Negro, the only one in any race.

In Russell County, Mrs. Turner A. Gilmer, a Democrat, lost a chance to become the first woman member of the House of Delegates since 1933 when she was defeated by Independent John W. Fletcher by a 4-3 margin.

It was the proposed constitutional changes, supported by the Democratic organization, that provided the surprise of the day.

They were slated in pre-election guessing to bring a close vote. From the moment polls closed at 6 p. m., it appeared certain that the $1.50 poll tax would remain a part of Virginia law, at least for the time being.

Defeat of the amendments was the only reverse the Democratic organization had to suffer in the general election. Most of the organization's supporters were not averse to the poll tax as such, making rejection of the amendments merely a less desirable outcome.

Paradox Highlighted

The paradox brought out in the alignment of political forces was highlighted by this organization support.

"Liberals" who have attacked the poll tax as unpalatable and unconstitutional were solidly against the Campbell amendments be-

A 29-year-old lawyer, A. Burke Hertz, yesterday beat out incumbent LaRue Van Meter for the $3600 a year job of Commissioner of Revenue for Falls Church. Both are Democrats.

The election result, still unofficial, does not affect Van Meter's status as City Attorney, a post he held before his appointment to the revenue job pending the election.

With the city's three precincts reporting, unofficial results showed Hertz tallied 599 votes to 397 for Van Meter. In the only other city contest, for Ward I justice of the peace, George T. McNab, incumbent Democrat, polled 215 votes to 127 for Robert C. Fitzgerald. City Treasurer James E. Ferguson, whose office was uncontested, polled 823 votes.

Probe Ordered of Alleged Shortage in Firemen's Funds

By Alfred E. Lewis and John London
Post Reporters

Fire Chief Joseph A. Mayhew last night ordered an investigation into "the alleged shortage of funds" of four firemen's organizations with assets of almost a half million dollars.

Three successive audits revealed a shortage of $7000 to $7500, Chief Mayhew said he had learned.

Chief Mayhew directed Deputy Chiefs P. A. Davis and M. H. Sutton and Battalion Chief C. P. Pool to convene as a board, "investigate, report and make appropriate recommendations as soon as possible."

Treasurer Seven Years

Chief Mayhew said Pvt. J. A. McCarthy of No. 3 Engine Company, was treasurer of all four firemen's groups for about seven years. McCarthy, 52, a veteran of 24 years on the force, was described by the chief as "very thrifty and clean as a pin—he doesn't have any bad habits."

The chief quoted McCarthy as having said "I don't know where the money is but I know I didn't get a penny of it."

McCarthy refused to answer any questions asked by a reporter. The organizations involved are, according to Chief Mayhew:

Fireman's Retirement Club, with 360 members and assets of $225,000, most of it invested in building association and a small amount in a checking account. It is "essentially a savings club" with members paying $1.50 a share. They receive upon retirement a return of their contribution with interest, according to Capt. Walter Watt, of No. 20 Engine Co., and club president. He said the club's shortage was "very small."

Assets of $220,000

Firemen's Relief Association, with assets of some $220,000 and 900 members, according to Fire Department personnel, who said the organization pays benefits to the widow or other survivors of firemen. Monthly dues were said to be $2. The president, Capt. W. A. Weber of No. 10 Truck Company, refused to talk about the association when phoned by a reporter.

Firemen's Family Relief, has assets of $15,000, according to firemen. Dues were said to be $1.25. Varying benefits are paid to survivors in the event of death in a fireman's family, it was reported.

Unofficial Tally: 2712-1957

Nonpartisan City Elections Are Voted in Alexandria

Nonpartisan elections for city office were voted in Alexandria on the basis of complete unofficial returns in the advisory referendum.

With all of Alexandria's nine precincts reporting, the unofficial tally on the question of nonpartisan elections was:

For, 2712.

Against, 1957.

A vigorous campaign preceded the referendum. The city Republican committee and the League of Women Voters espoused the proposal. Thousands of eligible voters were telephoned and asked to record their decision at the polls. The city Democratic committee opposed it actively, saying it was an attack on the two-party system.

The referendum results are purely advisory and do not bind any officials.

The effect of the nonpartisan plan would be to end formal Democratic party control in Alexandria city elections. Democratic control well might continue, but on a different basis.

Seven city councilmen, the city attorney and the city collector would be elected without party label.

Up to now, those elections have been on a party basis, and nominees from the primary election with the "Democrat" tag have won

Poll Tax Repeal Trails in Texas

Gallup Informs Lehman He Is Glad to Be Right

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—The Gallup Poll, which incorrectly tabbed President Truman for defeat a year ago, made a comeback today by foreshadowing Herbert H. Lehman's victory in the Senate contest.

Incomplete unofficial results showed Lehman, a Democrat, holding about 53.5 percent of the State vote against 46.5 percent for his Republican opponent, John Foster Dulles.

Dr. George Gallup, head of the institute, stepped up to Lehman after his election tonight and told him:

"I am glad to be right this time."

Gallup's American Institute of Public Opinion on November 4 found 57 percent of the voters favoring Lehman and 43 percent on Dulles' side.

Dallas, Nov. 8 (AP).—Repeal of the poll tax as a requirement for voting in Texas trailed tonight in in early returns from the State's special election.

Returns to the Texas election bureau from 76 of 254 counties, 14 complete, gave 55,575 votes against the poll tax amendment and 37,878 for it.

Behind also were an amendment to set up annual legislative sessions and salaries for legislators, and one letting women serve on juries.

Those three were the most controversial of 10 amendments to the State constitution considered by voters.

The early, scattered returns showed Texas voters approving only one of the amendments. This was an amendment to give the Legislature more latitude in passing laws regulating district court terms and sessions.

Trailing were amendments: To let the Legislature provide for trials without a jury in lunacy cases; to authorize the Legislature to provide rural fire prevention districts; to let the Legislature set up city-county health units; to provide a State-wide system for retirement and disability pensions for appointive county officials and employes; to set up hospital districts.

Constitution Revisionists Losing in Tennessee

Nashville, Nov. 8 (AP).—A narrow margin against a limited constitutional convention in Tennessee was shown tonight in returns from more than half of the State's balloting places.

A wide margin in earlier returns from predominantly rural precincts began to dwindle as the vote from the big cities came in.

Unofficial returns from 1392 of the State's some 2300 precincts showed 36,202 for the convention and 42,204 against.

Colored Oleo Proposal Winning in Ohio

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 8 (AP).—Legalization of the manufacture and sale of colored oleomargarine in Ohio took an early substantial lead tonight in returns from today's State-wide election.

The issue, submitted to the voters after it was defeated in the State Legislature, had a 4-3 lead with 468 of Ohio's 9721 polling places reported.

A proposal to adopt an office-type ballot—a modified Massachusetts type—had a 6800-vote edge in the same number of polling places.

GOP Incumbent Wins Race in Akron

Akron, Ohio, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Richard W. Tobin, Democrat, tonight conceded the Akron mayoralty election to Republican incumbent Charles Slusser.

Slusser was leading, 15,290 votes to 10,562, on reports from 100 of the city's 270 voting places.

Tonawanda Reelects Mayor Eugene Duffy

Tonawanda, N. Y., Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Eugene Duffy, Democrat, was re-elected Mayor of Tonawanda over Republican Clarence R. Hackett and American Labor Party Candidate David Lozo. The complete voting from the city's eight districts gave Duffy, 2576; Hackett, 1446, and Lozo, 76.

Republican Elected Mayor of Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Republican Joseph Mruk was elected Mayor of Buffalo today with almost a 23,000-vote plurality over his Democratic opponent, City Judge John D. Hillery.

intendent of the railway adjustment division in Washington.

He resigned in 1910 to manage and publish the Parsons Sun, a daily newspaper of which he was editor and publisher at his death.

Reed was the ranking member of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee and a member of the Appropriations Committee. He was considered an expert in the Senate on transportation matters and was a strong advocate of the bipartisan foreign policy. He toured Europe three years ago with the Appropriations Committee.

Married to Miss Minnie E. Hart of Parsons in 1891, Senator Reed was the father of seven children.

Pay, School Aid Issues Supported in Kentucky

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8 (AP).—Kentucky voters gave solid support today in a small percentage of the State's 4,104 precincts to two amendments in the State constitution.

Unofficial returns compiled in 456 precincts showed 32,718 persons in favor of paying State officials more than the present $5000 annual salary. The opposition registered 17,331 votes.

There were 33,292 in favor of a second amendment to enable the Legislature to grant more State aid to poorer school districts. There were 13,684 against the proposal.

First Whack at Pay Demanded by Wives

London, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—The Married Women's Association yesterday urged the Labor Government to pay any future cost-of-living wage increases direct to workers' wives.

The 2000-member association said this would "insure that it goes to the grocer and not to the bookie."

Blimp Flashes Post Headlines

Blimp prepares to go aloft with headlines

The fresh air newspaper—successor to the fresh air taxicab and the open air theater—began functioning last night as the Goodyear blimp "Mayflower" flashed the latest headlines from The Washington Post.

The 150-foot-long blimp will continue the service tonight, Thursday and Friday nights if the weather permits, spelling out the headline news over Greater Washington in 10-foot letters visible over a two mile area.

The blimp, which in World War II served in the Navy submarine patrol over the Atlantic coast, is piloted by Jack A. Boettner, dean of lighter-than-air pilots. The airship is moored at Hybla Valley Airport near Alexandria.

The "blimpcasts" originate from headlines telephoned from the newsroom of The Washington Post direct to the dirigible. They are then reproduced on a perforated tape, which is run through a mechanical device forming the 3000 bulbs on the blimb into the proper letters.

Delashmutt Concedes

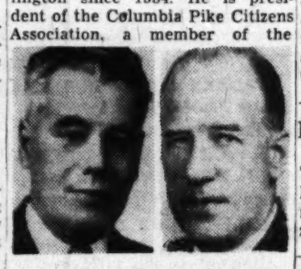
plainly lay in the newer areas of the county.

In the House of Delegates race, incumbents J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm were winners over I. Lee Potter. The tally with 27 precincts reported was Magruder, 7300; Damm, 7137, and Potter, 6009.

DeLashmutt, who insisted from the outset of the campaign he was seeking reelection "on his record," has been a member of the County Board for 10 years. He is at present chairman of the unit.

A native of Arlington, he is a former assistant county engineer and is a member of the Regional Planning Board and Recreation Council. He is married and has two children, and lives at 3311 N. Glebe rd.

Cox, frequent critic of the County Board and DeLashmutt in particular, is a native of Warren County, Va., but has lived in Arlington since 1934. He is president of the Columbia Pike Citizens Association, a member of the



DAMM MAGRUDER

Arlington Civic Federation and vice president of the Arlington Tuberculosis Association.

Married and the father of three children, he lives at 2518 S. 2d st.

Bechtel, who campaigned on a platform of "planned economy" for Arlington, is a carpenter and a member of the Arlington Carpenters Union. He is married, lives at 5931 Carlyn st., and has been a county resident since 1922.

Ending 3d Term

Magruder, senior member of the House of Delegates from Arlington, is completing his third term, having first been elected in 1943. A former chairman of the Arlington Democratic executive committee, he is a member of the Governor's commission to review the State's tax structure and a member of the Interstate Cooperation Commission of Virginia. He lives with his wife at 4119 N. 23d st.

Damm has been a member of the House since 1945 and is a former chief deputy to the commissioner of revenue. He is also a formen president of the Ashton Heights Citizens Association and vice chairman of the county Red Cross. He is married, has two children and lives at 3414 Pershing dr.

Potter, an unsuccessful candidate for election to the County Board last year, has lived in the county since 1919. He is president of the Arlington Civic Symphony and a member of the Citizens Committee for School Improvement. He is married, has one son and lives at 3311 N. Glebe rd. He is a member of the Musicians' Union and was formerly a union printer at the Government Printing Office, where he learned his trade.

O'Dwyer Wins Easy Victory

City Councilman Benjamin J. Davis, jr., one of the 11 Communist leaders free on bail pending their appeals from prison sentences on criminal conspiracy charges.

Davis, seeking reelection, is being opposed by Earl Brown on a combined Democratic-Republican-Liberal ticket. Both Brown and Davis are Negroes. The State Supreme Court ruled yesterday that Davis, having been convicted of a felony, couldn't vote.

O'Dwyer, 59, campaigned on his record, claiming schools, housing, transport and other aspects of the city have improved since he succeeded the late F. H. LaGuardia as mayor.

Morris, 47 ,accused the mayor of tolerating gambling, prostitution and corruption.

Lehman and O'Dwyer Win Election by Large Margins

District sent a Democrat, Mrs. Edna F. Kelly, to succeed the late Democratic Representative Andrew L. Somers. Mrs. Kelly ran away from two opponents, George H. Fankuchen, Republican, and Jules Cohen, Liberal.

With New York voting machines speeding up the election process, it was all over at an early hour. Dulles conceded defeat at 10:44 p. m.

State Democratic Chairman Paul Fitzpatrick issued a statement calling the vote "an unmistakable mandate of the people of New York State for the continuance of President Truman's Fair Deal program."

Fitzpatrick termed Lehman "a "truly worthy successor to that grand champion of the underprivileged . . . Bob Wagner," and said his election had "State, Nationwide and international significance."

Lehman issued only a brief statement from Democratic headquarters. He pledged himself to "serve the general welfare of all our citizens as I have sought to do throughout my public career."

Dulles went on the radio to congratulate Lehman but added this tagline:

"This is the first round, not the last round. I believe with absolute conviction that the principles for which we fought will prevail.

Dulles addressed this wire to Lehman: "The people of the State of New York have decided the election. By their votes they have chosen you to the United States Senate. I congratulate you and wish you well in this position of high responsibility."

Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle, jr., watched the returns from Democratic headquarters here. Like the President, Boyle said Lehman's victory "will have a decided effect on the elections in 1950."

"The first clear-cut test between candidates who fought their race on what the Democratic Party calls the Fair Deal and the Republicans choose to call "statism" resulted in a victory for the advocate of President Truman's Fair Deal program," Boyle said in a statement.

"We Democrats realize that in this victory our party assumes new responsibilities. In President Truman the people can be assured of a stanch advocate of economic security at home and his continued efforts for peace throughout the world . . ."

Republican National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson congratulated not Lehman but Dulles upon the "courageous fight" he made in New York "against tremendous odds."

"The principles which Senator Dulles expounded in his campaign are those which ultimately will prevail, because they are right," Gabrielson said.

"He (Dulles) has earned the gratitude of Republicans everywhere, and the Nation is the loser because of his defeat."

The GOP chairman's brief reference to the New York elections closed a statement devoted mainly to Republican Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll's reelection in New Jersey.

Gabrielson said Driscoll's victory shows that so far as that State is concerned "the American people want no more of 'bossism' in any of its various forms." He called Driscoll's opponent, State Senator Elmer H. Wene, "the handpicked handmaiden of Hagueism — the New Jersey version of 'Pendergastism.'"

"His (Wene's) defeat proved that so far as the people of New Jersey are concerned 'Pendergastism' has been repudiated once more," said the new GOP national chief.

O'Dwyer's mayoralty victory over Newbold Morris, Republican-Liberal-Fusion candidate, and Vito Marcantonio of the Communist-backed American Labor Party, caused almost as much rejoicing as Lehman's election.

Supported by Truman

President Truman had jointly supported Lehman and O'Dwyer.

Democratic Chairman Boyle said it showed the Democratic Party "is still stronger than any coalition of forces in the largest city of the Nation."

But it was the Senate race, squarely putting the "welfare state" and that shorter word "statism" to its first solid election test, that eclipsed all others in national interest.

If Lehman's election was a victory for Truman, then it also was another sharp setback for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

For Gov. Dewey not only persuaded his former foreign policy advisor to make the race, he stumped the State for him with a vigor he hadn't shown since last year's Oregon primaries.

Dewey's Future Involved

Dewey denounced as "garbage" Lehman charges that the Governor actually was getting ready to run a third time for President.

Whatever Governor Dewey's 1952 intentions, his immediate political future was certainly involved in the outcome. He still hasn't thrown his hat into the 1952 New York gubernatorial race. Many thought that decision contingent on a Dulles victory.

New York speculation has been that if Dulles was defeated Dewey would retire at the close of his present term and join Dulles' own international law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell.

What Lehman's victory will do to Dulles' own future as a key participant in international councils and a hub of our so-called bipartisan foreign policy was a question perhaps only President Truman can answer.

Before Dulles' appointment to the Senate, he was a member of our U. N. delegation, and the Administration relied heavily upon him in his foreign policy advisory role.

Foreign policy wasn't a focal issue in the New York campaign but Dulles' bitter lampooning of Truman domestic policies left scars the White House may find it hard to forget.

Dulles said the issue was the "all powerful state" and the "Fair Deal" was headed that way. He said "human liberties" are at stake if the trend goes farther.

Lehman said "reactionary" policies of his Republican opponents offered the only jeopardy to human liberties. He said he was glad to accept the "welfare state" as the issue because for ten years as Governor of New York he headed one.

These were the mildest things the two candidates said. Before the race was over both descended from their hard-earned roles as "elder statesmen" and fought it out like street urchins. Lehman called Dulles a "bigot" and Dulles said he "lied."

Boston Turns Out Ex-Convict Curley

Boston, Nov. 8 (AP).—Mayor James Michael Curley—last of the old-time political bosses still in power—was thrown out of office tonight.

With only a handful of precincts missing, City Clerk John B. Hynes led the 74-year-old Curley by almost 13,000 votes.

Complete unofficial returns from the 362 precincts gave George F. Oakes 7165, Patrick J. McDonough 21,833, Mayor Curley 126,110, Walter O'Brien 3279, John B. Hynes 137,816.

It was a two-man race between the 74-year-old Curley and the modest city clerk who is making his first bid for elective office although three others were seeking votes.

"Political bossism" was the big issue.

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, former Boston Mayor and Massachusetts Governor, today threw his support behind Hynes.

Tobin authorized the following statement:

"My position in this campaign was misrepresented by advertisements on the first pages of today's Boston newspapers.

"So that there will be no misunderstanding, I am voting for John B. Hynes. I hope he will be elected and I believe he will be.

"I know he will be a good mayor."

Winding up a noisy campaign, the veteran Curley found himself meeting a stiff challenge from a city clerk he says was once his stenographer and three other younger rivals.

Curley was seeking, too, vindication from the voters for a conviction for mail fraud that sent him to a Federal penitentiary for five months in 1947 at the height of his political power.

Hynes sat in as "temporary mayor" while Curley was away. Hynes, shy by nature, was known by few during his quarter century as a clerk at City Hall.

Boston's mayoral elections are nonpartisan.

Both Curley and Hynes are Democrats.

But Hynes won—and publicly accepted—support of Republican leaders who announced their aim to rid the city of what they call "Curleyism."

Labor Boss Wins Seat In Congress

San Francisco, Nov. 8 (AP).—John F. Shelley, Democrat and president of the California Federation of Labor, tonight was elected to Congress from the Fifth (San Francisco) District.

He will succeed the veteran Representative Richard J. Welch, Republican, who died a few weeks ago.

Shelley, a friend of President Truman, last year was reported considered for Secretary of Labor. But the post went to Maurice J. Tobin.

Returns from 606 of the district's 643 precincts gave Shelley 38,489; Lloyd J. Cosgrove, 24,645 and Charles R. Garry 5031.

Garry is a Democrat; Cosgrove a Republican.

Winners Listed For Va. House Of Delegates

Several of the 23 contests for 35 seats in the House of Delegates were settled early in Virginia voting yesterday.

Unofficial returns compiled by the Associated Press showed that the city of Richmond elected a seven-member straight Democratic slate.

They include incumbents W. H. Adams, Albert O. Boschen, G. Edmond Massie, Charles H. Phillips. New faces will be Fred G. Pollard, W. Griffith Purcell and J. R. Tucker, jr.

Incumbent Democrat William J. Gibson defeated Republican George M. Hunt in Fredericksburg.

Other winners over the State were Charles K. Hutchens, Newport News; Lewis A. McMurran, Newport News-Warwick; Victor P. Wilson, Elizabeth City-Hampton; Paul Crockett, of York, James City and Charles City counties and Williamsburg; Stuart Carter, Craig and Botetourt counties, and D. Woodrow Bird, Bland County.

In Fairfax and Fall Church Democrat Edwin Lynch defeated his Republican opponent, Douglas A. Clark.

The Democratic incumbent was an easy victor, too, in Alexandria. There Armistead L. Boothe scored a 2-to-1 win over Republican R. W. Buckingham.

N. W. Pendleton, Democrat, defeated R. K. Poole, Republican incumbent, in Wythe County.

Palmer Beats Adams for Senate Seat

Richmond, Va., Nov. 8 (AP).—George W. Palmer, a Prince Edward dairy farmer, won a seat in the Virginia Senate today in a special election from the Southside Virginia District represented by the late Dr. W. D. Kendig.

In the only Senate race in which there was a contest, Palmer defeated a fellow Democrat, Copeland Adams, a Blackstone attorney, 3993 to 3313 on the basis of unofficial complete returns.

E. O. McCue, former delegate from Albemarle, was unopposed in the other election for the Senate. He succeeds John S. Battle of Charlottesville who resigned to accept the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Republicans Concede Defeat in Louisville

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8 (AP).—The Republican organization tonight conceded the reelection of Democratic Mayor Charles Farnsley over his Republican opponent, Sheriff Rees Dickson.

Edward C. Black, Third Congressional District Republican chairman and spokesman, also conceded the election of Democratic B. L. Shamburger, candidate for Jefferson County judge, over Republican Miles Thacker.

Unofficial returns at Republican headquarters showed Farnsley leading Dickson, 45,519 to 37,182, on reports from 231 of 274 precincts.

Democrats Capture 4 Top Jobs In Philadelphia City Elections

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (U.P.)—Republicans tonight conceded the election of four Democrats to city offices, to give the Democratic Party its first foothold in City Hall since before the war.

With returns less than three-quarters completed, the Republican city committee conceded the election of the Democratic candidates for city controller, treasurer, register of wills and coroner.

"We lost," City Chairman William F. Meade announced shortly before 10:30.

The election of the four candidates will give the Democrats their first offices in the GOP stronghold since the end of 1941.

Richardson S. Dilworth, a fiery campaigner and a veteran Marine of Pacific combat, led the Democrats to victory in winning the election for city treasurer.

Some three million Pennsylvanians trooped to the polls, spurred to ballot by local contests and a 500-million-dollar veterans' bonus. Fair, spring-like weather also aided the outpouring.

The bonus, a maximum of $500 to each Pennsylvania veteran of World War II, was winning nearly four-to-one approval, with one third of the State reported.

Actually, the Philadelphia result was the worst defeat handed the Republicans here in more than half a century.

Dilworth's running mates on the ticket were Joseph Sill Clark, jr., controller; Joseph D. Burke, register of Wills, and Joseph Ominsky, coroner.

The Democrats based their campaign on GOP corruption, pointing to recent disclosures of tax thefts and embezzlements of city funds. The winners were backed by the city's two major newspapers—the Inquirer and Evening Bulletin.

Mayor Lawrence Tops GOP Foe in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Nov. 8 (AP).—Democratic Mayor David L. Lawrence was reelected tonight with each tabulation swelling his margin of victory.

Attorney Timothy F. Ryan, the Republican challenger, conceded defeat at 11:10.

Returns at that hour from 264 of the city's 427 precincts gave these results:

Lawrence, 93,333; Ryan, 58,269.

The Mayor ran ahead of his showing four years ago when he was elected by 14,000 votes. He is showing more strength in precincts which are considered normally independent.

Lawrence is a national Democratic committeeman and former State Democratic chairman.

BULLETIN

Philadelphia, Nov. 9. (U.P.)—Pennsylvania voters yesterday approved a $500 million bonus for veterans of World War II—the largest State bonus ever enacted.

With 3680 of the State's 8313 precincts reporting, the vote was: Yes, 815,871; No, 249,532.

Detroit Mayor Count Puts Cobo in Front

Detroit, Nov. 8 (AP).—Albert E. Cobo took a substantial lead over CIO-backed George Edwards tonight in early returns from Detroit's hotly contested nonpartisan mayoralty election.

Returns from 140 precincts where the vote is tabulated by machine gave Cobo 27,747 and Edwards 20,228.

Detroit has 1368 polling places. The machine-counted precincts are scattered throughout the city. Returns from the other precincts where voting is by hand were expected to come in more slowly.

Cobo, now city treasurer, is generally looked upon as a "business man's candidate."

By unofficial count, the city's vote set a record. An estimated 513,000 ballots were cast compared to the previous high of 501,031 in the 1945 city election.

Lynch Leads In Fairfax Delegate Race

Edwin Lynch, 36, Democrat, of Annandale, was victor in the race for the Fairfax County seat in the Virginia House of Delegates yesterday.

Lynch

The count was from the 28 county precincts and the three in Falls Church. Lynch piled up a total of 3777 compared with 2267 for Douglas A. Clark, his Republican opponent of Merrifield.

Lynch's successful campaign in this election was a turnabout from his drive in 1947 for the same seat. Then he lost the nomination by one vote to Robert J. McCandlish on a primary recount.

A former president of the Fairfax Young Democratic Club and member of several farm organizations, Lynch studied at the Strayer College of Accounting and worked for the Agriculture Department before becoming a real estate dealer and dairy farmer. He resides in Annandale.

Republican Defeated By Cleveland Mayor

Cleveland, Nov. 8 (AP).—Mayor Thomas A. Burke, a Democrat, swept into office for his third straight term tonight, defeating Republican Franklin A. Polk.

Burke leads Polk, 43,091 to 21,654, with 285 voting places out of Cleveland's 1048 reporting.

Gov. Driscoll Boosts Lead in New Jersey Race

Newark, N. J., Nov. 8 (AP).—Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll was successful tonight in his bid for a second term as New Jersey's chief executive.

Driscoll, a Republican who has been boomed as a possible 1952 presidential candidate, stepped out in front of his Democratic opponent, Elmer H. Wene, as first returns came in.

Unofficial returns from 2771 of the State's 3718 election districts gave Driscoll 664,700 and Wene, 597,510.

The initial returns followed a topsy-turvy pattern. Driscoll polled a heavy vote in the Democratic bastion of Hudson County, home of Frank "I Am The Law" Hague.

Wene, a former Congressman, was showing strength in normally Republican areas.

The GOP incumbent was a slight preelection favorite.

At 10:30 the Newark Evening News and the Newark Star-Ledger, the State's largest newspapers, forecast Driscoll's election.

The News looked for a plurality of from 100,000 to 150,000. The Star-Ledger said "Discoll by more than 100,000."

Both papers editorially supported Driscoll.

The AFL supported Wene but the CIO criticized him for his connection with Hague.

A Wene victory could mean a comeback for Hague, while a defeat probably would push him off the political ladder for good.

Driscoll won New Jersey's last gubernatorial contest in 1946 by 221,418 votes, a GOP record. Last year the State gave Thomas E. Dewey a thumping 85,669 plurality over President Truman.

Today's election marked the first time a New Jersey Governor could attempt to succeed himself. A new State constitution, adopted in 1947, permits a second consecutive term. It also increased the term of office from three to four years.

Both Driscoll and Wene waged strenuous campaigns, based almost entirely on State and local issues.

Socialist Triumphs In Bridgeport Again

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 8 (AP).—Socialist Jasper McLevy today was elected to his ninth consecutive term as Mayor of Bridgeport.

His total of 28,849 was greater than the combined votes of his Democratic and Republican rivals.

J. Lawrence O'Toole, the Democratic candidate, received 13,602 votes; A. Edward Sandula, Republican, 11,338.

Jersey City Repeals Dine-and-Dance Ban

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 8 (AP).—Jersey City repealed its 19-year-old dine-and-dance ban tonight.

The ordinance, put into effect in 1930 at the special request of former Mayor Frank Hague, forbade dancing in public places where food and drink were served.

The ban had the effect of throwing professional musicians out of work.

Virginia Poll Tax Repeal Beaten, 3-1

cause of other provisions wrapped in the same package.

They claimed the General Assembly would decide who could or could not vote if the amendments passed, bringing about a "hand-me-down" constitution.

These "anti-organization" Democrats were joined by an assortment of Republicans, independents, nonpartisans and even a few members of the "Byrd machine."

Many observers believed their success in the cause, which offered the only real Statewide contest yesterday, was enhanced immeasurably by voters who like the poll tax and want to keep it.

The "excess baggage" deplored by this coalition would have permitted the Legislature to impose a $3 head tax and to authorize a $1 tax by counties and cities.

It would have given the General Assembly authority to 'prescribe such tests as to literacy and such further requirements" as it deemed necessary as voting qualifications.

Annual renewal of registration, rather than the present permanent registration was provided.

Antiamendment forces plumped for a constitutional convention to repeal the poll tax during the campaign. After yesterday's voting, this idea was renewed by the State Republican leadership.

The Associated Press tabulations by Congressional districts showed that in 1439 precincts reporting, not a single county or city went for the amendments.

The overwhelming margin of rejection was maintained in the home territory of all major figures in the dominant Democratic faction.

In Clarke County, where Senator Byrd lives, 8 of 9 precincts showed a vote of 297 against, 164 for. In Winchester, 3 of 4 precincts polled 499-240 votes against the amendments.

1056 to 348 in Halifax

In Halifax County, the home of Governor Tuck, 25 of 27 precincts gave 1518 votes against and 564 for the proposals.

Another supporter was Attorney General Almond, whose home city of Roanoke recorded 4726 votes against and 2546 for the amendments in its 25 precincts.

Complete unofficial returns from the city of Richmond's 55 precincts showed a lopsided 7-1 margin rejecting the proposals. The vote was 21,581 to 2974.

Robert H. Woods, chairman of the Republican State Committee, said in Pearisburg that rejection of the suffrage amendments is a mandate to the General Assembly to call "an unrestricted constitutional convention."

In a statement from his home there, the GOP leader said as a result of the vote on the amendments he now envisions "the beginning of a two-party system in Virginia."

His statement on the amendments said:

"The people of Virginia have spoken. They have arisen in righteous indignation against one of the greatest frauds ever attempted to be perpetrated against a free people."

The shellacking that the amendments were taking brought a statement from Nelson County Delegate Robert Whitehead, a leader in the fight against them.

Almond Collins
Ahead in Virginia

He said the outcome was "convincing evidence" the voters would not countenance attempts to deprive them of their right to vote.

Whitehead then suggested that the 1950 Legislature should pass a bill calling a special election to vote on the holding of a constitutional convention, according to the Associated Press.

McGuire, the young Petersburg Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, conceded the election to Lieutenant Governor Collins early in the evening and wished him luck in the years ahead.

Hits GOP Leadership

McGuire, like GOP Chairman Woods, said the outcome of the vote on the amendments made the calling of a constitutional convention "a logical conclusion."

However, the young former GI and William and Mary law student also took a swipe at the present Republican leadership in Virginia.

"The central committee of the Republican Party has once more made the State safe for the (Democratic) machine," he said. "I intend to fight this pseudo-leadership of the Republican Party as long as I shall remain in Virginia."

GOP Gubernatorial Candidate Johnson campaigned against the amendments. Victor Battle indorsed them.

The amendments were devised by a commission established in 1945 by former Gov. Colgate W. Darden, jr., and headed by former Delegate Stuart B. Campbell of Wytheville.

They were approved unchanged by two sessions of the General Assembly—in 1946 and 1948—as required by law.

The poll tax was first imposed in the Old Dominion in 1876. It was repealed in 1882, but was finally inserted in the constitution in 1902 by a convention vote of 47 to 38. The amendment was never ratified by the voters.

Also considered on many ballots yesterday were candidates for 35 of the 100 seats in the House of Delegates. They provided only 23 contests.

There was one Senate contest in the Ninth (Southwest) District.

Battle Takes His 6th 'Ride' In 19-Year Political Career

What Governor-elect John Stewart Battle of Virginia did yesterday is what he has done six times in his 19 years in politics.

He won hands down.

Battle was a 40-year-old attorney in Charlottesville when he was elected to the House of Delegates in 1930.

After representing the city of Charlottesville and Albemarle and Green Counties for two terms in the lower House, he was elected to the Senate from the same subdivisions plus Madison and Fluvanna Counties. He has been re-elected to the Senate every term since 1933 without opposition.

In the 1949 Democratic primary, he was nominated Governer by 23,000 votes over his next opponent, Francis Pickens Miller of Albemarle County. He has had solid support all along from the Democratic organization headed by Senator Harry F. Byrd.

His lean, erect 6-foot frame suggests a dignified mien that is accentuated by his straight gray hair, heavy eyebrows and firmly set jaw.

As for backing from the Byrd organization, which all but one of Virginia's Governors have had in the past 30 years, Battle has a reassuring word for those who object:

"I, and not he, will be the Governor . . . I'll make the decisions and I'll be responsible for them."

Battle will be inaugurated at ceremonies in Richmond in January. His four-year term will begin February 1, when he succeeds Gov. William M. Tuck, who by law cannot succeed himself.

Nonpartisan Vote Backed

as a matter of course. Under the nonpartisan proposal, all party tags would be dropped.

The system would not affect votes for State and national offices in Alexandria. All such candidates, ranging upward from the General Assembly to the Presidency, would still be on a strictly party basis.

The referendum was initiated by the City Council on recommendation of a charter revision commission set up last April. The city charter has not been revised in 17 years.

After hearings, at which sentiment developed for the nonpartisan elections, the commission asked the council to call the referendum. At present, under the Hatch Act, none of the many Federal Government employes who have flooded into Alexandria may take part in its government, because of the party designation system.

Under a nonpartisan election, they may participate in government particularly in the city council, which is not a full-time body.

By its act in requesting the referendum, the charter revision commission is expected to follow the outcome of the election. Five of the seven members of the City Council, though all Democratic, pledged themselves to approve that phase of a new charter based on the outcome of the election.

State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, who represents the area, said he personally is against the proposal. However, he has said that if it is passed by the voters, he will introduce legislation in the General Assembly to make it effective. The Assembly has granted nonpartisan elections to a number of other Virginia cities.

Furthermore, Clarke said that the State Democratic political "machine" has maintained a policy of keeping its hands off local questions. Sponsors of the nonpartisan proposal understood this to mean that if Alexandria voters chose the plan, the Byrd machine would not block passage in the Legislature.

Boothe Is Reelected To House of Delegates

Armistead L. Boothe, incumbent Alexandria member of the Virginia House of Delegates, was reelected yesterday.

Boothe

Boothe, Democrat, 3207; Richard W. Buckingham, Republican, 1397.

Commonwealth's attorney—Howard W. Smith, jr., incumbent Democrat, 3728; Juvenile and Domestic Relations Justice—Marion B. West, incumbent Democrat, 3825. City Sergeant—J. Frank Moriarity, incumbent Democrat, 3901; Commissioner of Revenue—Charles A. Callahan, incumbent Democrat, 3936; Civil and Police Justice—James R. Duncan, incumbent Democrat, 3727; City Treasurer—Roger C. Sullivan, incumbent Democrat, 3832.

Quirino Lead Snowballing; 25 Slain in Philippine Voting

Manila (Wednesday), Nov. 9 (AP). President Elpidio Quirino rolled up a commanding lead today on the basis of mounting provincial returns from yesterday's bloody national election.

Liberal Party spokesmen quickly claimed victory for Quirino, whose policy is close cooperation with the United States. This was not conceded by Nacionalista candidate Jose P. Laurel, critic of United States policy in the Philippines.

The election's toll of violence mounted to 25 killed and 32 injured.

Nacionalista Party spokesmen charged 78 Moro party members were shot to death by civilian guards in Lanao on the southern island of Mindanao. There was no confirmation. The Government reported one Moro killed there.

Unofficial returns gave Quirino 176,860 votes, Laurel, 92,073 and Jose Avelino, who broke with Quirino to become a third party candidate, 34,389.

There were no official figures from the Commission on Elections. To avoid duplication, the commission ordered provincial authorities to withhold returns until figures were complete.

Laurel, puppet President of the Philippines under the Japanese wartime occupation, captured Manila — traditionally opposition-minded—with a majority of more than 33,000 votes.

SHIRLEY MURRAY

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
LAWRENCE A. MARKHAM
Father of five girls

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 8 (AP).—An unemployed shipyard worker was charged today with murdering 6-year-old Shirley Murray.

The blonde little first grader was found unconscious late yesterday on Government property near the Norfolk Naval Base. Her skull had been crushed. She died in a hospital late last night.

FBI agents and Norfolk police arrested Lawrence Augustine Markham, 37. He was taken before United States Commissioner Percy S. Stephenson, but the hearing was continued until tomorrow to allow time for the United States District Court to assign defense counsel.

No Evidence of Assault

Markham is married. He and his wife live in Broad Creek Village, a war-born housing project on Norfolk's outskirts.

E. C. Richardson, special agent in charge of the Norfolk FBI office, said an examination of Shirley at the hospital did not show any evidence that she had been criminally assaulted.

Richardson had no comment when asked if Markham had made a statement to FBI agents.

(The United Press quoted Richardson as saying Markham had been committed to a hospital nearly 16 years ago in connection with a sex offense against a child, but escaped in two days and was never returned.—Editor's note.)

The FBI entered the case because the wooded patch which the child was found is on unused property of the United States Maritime Commission.

Richardson said Markham was traced through an automobile. The FBI agent gave this account:

Markham appeared at a service station near the naval base about 4 p. m. yesterday, shortly after the child was found by a construction worker, and reported his automobile was stuck on a rock. Early today he reported to police his car had been stolen from a downtown parking place. Police found the car still hung on the rock.

Shirley left the Meadowbrook school between 2 and 3 p. m. yesterday.

A 22-year-old man who is a fugitive from Washington on a charge of stealing paintings from the home of the late Sumner Welles, appeared and then disappeared in New Orleans in a fantastic masquerade as a German prince, it was learned yesterday.

In the simulated person of Prince Otto Wilhelm von Hohenzollern, son of the last Kaiser of Germany, he married an heiress to an oil fortune. Then when The New Orleans Item began an expose, he disappeared, leaving his 36-year-old thrice prevously married bride and her mother wondering about him.

He was identified by authorities in New Orleans as Rico David Tancous, a war veteran, who had a previous brush with Federal authorities in California. At that time he was arrested for wearing a military uniform illegally and dismissed with a warning.

Last June 7, he was arrested in Washington charged with theft of $4500 worth of paintings from the town house of Sumner Welles, the former Undersecretary of State. The paintings were recovered by police in Tancous' home at 1919 16th st. nw.

According to the New Orleans Item, he met Virginia Kirk, the heiress, in Mexico City several weeks ago. He was posing as the German prince, Miss Kirk's mother said, and was reported to have been pictured by wirephoto services under that name in company with Eddie Rickenbacker, famous airman.

Later, he went to New Orleans and married Miss Kirk, before a justice of the peace, on Halloween. The couple went to the palatial Kirk home on Coliseum st., in a wealthy section of New Orleans, to honeymoon.

Last Thursday, the New Orleans Item published a story questioning Tancous' authenticity as a prince and followed it with others on Friday and Saturday. In the meantime, the Item reported, the "prince" and his bride were circulating in the French quarter of the city, he being addressed there as "Prince" and she as "Princess."

Takes a Powder

Last Saturday, the Itemp said, he was relegated to a guest house on the Kirk estate while his bride slept alone in the mansion. Sunday morning the Item said, he vanished.

The Item quoted the bride's mother as saying that "I told him that we knew of his noble spirit and that he was a nobleman at heart, but I asked him was it really true he was a Hohenzollern. He replied, 'Mrs. Kirk, how can you ask that?' and then said yes, he was a Hohenzollern.

"He appeared to be all that a mother could ask in a son-in-law. He didn't like what he saw in the French quarter and said it offended him."

Tancous was arrested here for the theft of the Welles paintings when, according to his attorney, he became suspicious of another young man who "gave" them to him to store. The attorney, Basil J. Mezines, said Tancous told him he met the other young man in a student registration line at George Washington University and knew him only as "Johnny."

Tancous told him, Mezines said, that "Johnny" took him to the Welles home, showed him the paintings, said they belonged to him, Johnny, and wanted storage for them. The Welles home was unoccupied, though furnished, at the time.

After he received the paintings, Mezines said, Tancous became suspicious and returned to the Welles house. He was arrested there. He was released on $500 bond after being indicated, and subsequently jumped the bond. On October 13, it was ordered forfeited and a bench warrant issued for him.

Pvt. William J. Boyle of the Third Precinct, who arrested Tancous, said he "returned" to the Welles home at 4 a. m., and was carrying a long knife and a screwdriver. Boyle characterized Tancous as a "smooth operator" and said he "almost talked me out of arresting him—but not quite."

"ROYAL WEDDING"—Rico David Tancous, wanted in Washington on a housebreaking charge, is pictured with his bride, the former Virginia Kirk, after their wedding last week in New Orleans. She asked her moneyed friends for a million dollars to help combat the influence of the movies in "this strip-tease age." She wants to increase the influence of nice, educated women on world thinking.

If she gets the money it will go into a London settlement for foreign university women studying in Britain.

Haphazard Bookkeeping

Chief Mayhew said "There has been great laxity among the organizations with a haphazard way of keeping books and handling money."

Some six months ago, he said, annual, separate audits of the groups indicated a small shortage.

Former Chief Clement Murphy then ordered an audit by one firm of all the groups and it appeared, Mayhew said, that there was a shortage of $7000 to $7500. Then another audit was made and recently completed, at McCarthy's request, confirming that such funds were missing, Mayhew said.

$5000 In No. 3 Safe

He said that $5000 in cash was found in the No. 3 Company safe, where McCarthy kept all books. Mayhew said several persons had acces sto the safe.

A spokesman for one of the associations, who said he did not want to be named, said he was "not too sure Mayhew didn't overstep his authority in ordering an investigation of these groups" since, he said, they are not official groups, but private organizations.

McCarthy referred all questions to his attorney, Thomas X. Dunn, who said "There's no question about it, McCarthy didn't get a penny of it, if there are any funds missing."

Capt. Watt said "that no one wanted to press any charges, hoping that new audits would disclose where the missing money was."

Jonathon Awarded To Natural Mother

Three-year-old Jonathon Little yesterday was awarded to his natural mother.

Jonathon Little is the lad who has been the center of a custody case involving his natural mother, Mrs. Mary Miller, and Mrs. Geraldine Little. Mrs. Little had cared for the child almost since his birth in Gallinger Hospital. Last month, Judge Alan T. Goldsborough ruled Mrs. Little was not a "fit person" to care for Jonathon while the custody case was being decided.

Mrs. Little then took Jonathon and her two other children and deposited them with the Board of Public Welfare, declaring that if she was "not a fit mother for one of them, I'm not a fit mother for any of them.

Birth Record Changed

Judge Goldsborough yesterday granted a writ of habeas corpus to Mrs. Miller, natural mother of the child, and ordered the District Bureau of Vital Statistics to change its records to show that the child was born to Mary Bistransky (Mrs. Miller's name by a former marriage) and Joseph Bistransky.

Mrs. Miller, 26, a diminutive waitress, who lives at 6123 Parkwood rd., Landover, Md., yesterday said she planned to change the lad's name to George.

But when she met him in an anteroom of the Board of Public Welfare's child welfare division yesterday, she welcomed him as "Johnny." A welfare worker cautioned her to let the baby come to her at his own pace. She waited a moment until Jonathon came over then picked him up in her arms. Mother and child kissed.

When they left the welfare division with Mrs. Miller's attorney, John T. Bonner, a little later, Mrs. Miller told reporters it was the first time she had had the child to herself since he was born in August of 1946."

Feared Demonstration

Mrs. Miller was not in the courtroom when Judge Goldsborough granted the habeas corpus writ. Bonner requested her to stay away, because he said he feared a demonstration.

Mrs. Little was in the courtroom to hear Judge Goldsborough's order. Later she told a reporter, "God must have some reason for this. God knows best."

In handing down his decision, Judge Goldsborough said that a case of this kind "is probably the most serious that comes within the judicial purview." He told attorneys he might file an extended opinion in the case, indicating that such an opinion would be filed if Mrs. Little or her attorney, Jefferson Busky, should institute an appeal.

AWOL Charged

Firing Urged For Homicide Squad Ace

Harold C. Huffman, for six years an outstanding member of the Metropolitan Police homicide squad, was recommended for dismissal from the force yesterday by a police trial board. He was charged with being absent from duty without leave.

Huffman

On June 16, he was demoted from detective sergeant to private by Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, for conduct "not in the best interest of the service." That charge involved absence without leave. At the time, he submitted a resignation, but Maj. Barrett refused to accept it because of Huffman's record in the department.

He was assigned to plain clothes duty in the First Precinct. On November 3, Capt. Howard V. Covell of that precinct suspended him when he reported after an alleged unauthorized absence of 10 days.

The action by the trial board yesterday followed on the AWOL charge. Huffman offered no testimony in his own behalf. The trial board's recommendation is subject to confirmation by the Commissioners.

In 16 years in the department, Huffman received 17 commendations for his work, 14 of them for activity on the homicide squad. When Major Barrett reduced Huffman in rank, he said that Huffman was a "very valuable detective" and had worked on every major murder case here in the past six years.

Gasoline Blast Kills Boy, 2, Burns 2 Adults

A 2-year-old boy was fatally injured and 2 adults were badly burned shortly before 2 p. m. yesterday when several large cans of gasoline exploded in the basement of a home at 11902 Colin rd., Viers Mill Village, Md.

The lad, Michael, was playing in the basement while his mother, Mrs. Mary Hill, 22, of 11900 Colin rd., was visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Distin, next door neighbors at 11902.

As the blast vibrated through the house, Mrs. Hill and Distin rushed to the flaming basement and dragged Michael to safety.

Montgomery County police took all three to Bethesda Naval Hospital where Michael failed to rally, and died at 6:30 p. m. from shock and burns. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner, issued a certificate of accidental death. Distin was reported to be in serious condition.

Police theorized that flame or heat from a hot water heater had ignited the gas.

UDC Keeps Salute To Dixie Flag In Present Form

New Orleans, Nov. 8 (AP).—The United Daughters of the Confederacy voted today to retain the present brief salute to the Confederate flag.

It reads "I salute the Confederate flag with affection, reverence and undying remembrance."

Under a barrage of "nays" the fifty-sixth annual convention buried a move to consider the addition of "no nation lost so pure and white, nor fell so free from stain."

Highlighting Wednesday's session will be the election of officers and the selection of next year's convention site.

Court Orders Psychiatric Test for Roth

A mental examination was ordered yesterday for Joseph R. Roth, 40, a wartime aircraft parts inspector for the Government, charged with sending threats through the mails.

Earlier, Roth was held in $5000 bond for the grand jury by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, after he waived a preliminary hearing through his attorney, John M. Webster.

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff signed the order for a psychiatric examination.

The man was arrested by FBI agents on complaints that he had demanded $200,000 from Sherman Fairchild, 53, of New York, under threat of death, and had sent another letter to A. J. Eckhardt of Baldwin, Long Island, demanding $25,000.

Fairchild is chairman of the board of Fairchild Engine and Aircraft Corp., Eckhardt is an attorney for the corporation.

Roth's wife, Rita, 34, had announced that the letters were a "desperate" device to bring public attention to an alleged wartime collusion between aircraft manufacturers and Air Force officials that cost the Government six million dollars in defective parts.

Roth lives at the Park Central Apts., 1900 F st. nw.

Store Holdup Worth $218

Seconds after Elliot Stein, 24, bid his customer a cheery "good morning," the customer yesterday strolled out of Peoples Grocery Store, 526 E. Mt. Ida ave., Alexandria, with $218 looted from the cash register.

Stein told Alexandria police he was outside his store when the man came up to him about 7:30 a. m. The man followed him inside, he said, grabbed the clerk, and ordered: "Don't move."

Flourishing a pistol, he asked where the cash register was. Then, the clerk said, he went behind the counter and opened the till. He told police the bandit then ordered him to lie down, scooped $200 in bills and $18 in quarters out of the register, and walked out the front door.

Airliner, B-25 in Near-Crash

and to the left, Richardson reported, he instinctively banked the airliner to the right.

In his report, Richardson said the incident took place at 3500 feet between Alexandria and Mount Vernon at 11:02 a. m., four minutes after he had left National Airport. The Constellation was laden with 49 passengers and a crew of five.

Richardson said the B-25 was descending on a southerly course with its wheels down while the Constellation was climbing on a westerly course. He reported the B-25's number in a radio message to National Airport tower and continued on to Atlanta.

Bolling officers said the number of the B-25 reported tallied with that of a Bolling B-25 which was making simulated instrument approaches to Bolling Base between 9:30 and 11:40 a. m.

Maj. Donald H. King, 29, of Ann Arbor, Mich., was sitting in the copilot's seat wearing dark glasses to simulate "blind flying."

First Lieut. Leslie R. Galloway, 29, of 2 Chesapeake st. se., said, however, that he had excellent visibility and saw no sign of the Constellation.

Since the Constellation reported being below the B-25's altitude, the situation paralleled that of last week's disaster when the P-38 pilot reported not seeing the plane he hit until he was almost on top of it.

The Eastern Constellation had landed in Washington from Boston. Its flight terminated in Miami, Fla., late yesterday. It was cleared for an instrument flight and was heading for its assigned airway when it met the B-25, CAA officials said.

The Bolling aircraft, officers said, was on an instrument check flight. It was making its approaches from 13 miles out to Bolling Base. Its prescribed approach was to let down from 3500 under simulated instrument conditions.

In the previous Tuesday's disaster, a Bolling B-25 made a simulated instrument approach to National Airport approximately three minutes before the crash. Its presence may have confused the P-38 pilot in his traffic approach.

The CAA yesterday denied a report that Bridoux, Bolivia's civil aviation chief, had informed the tower of engine trouble and that he had been cleared in for an emergency landing.

In Chicago yesterday, the Air Line Pilots Association (AFL) asked that all airliners be marked distinctively and that military and private planes be kept from crowded commercial airports.

The ALPA also asked for an Independent Air Safety Board because, it said, the CAB and the Civil Aeronautics Administration actually are investigating themselves when an accident occurs under the present setup.

School Cafe Requested for Bladensburg

The Prince Georges Board of County Commissioners yesterday received a letter from the Parent-Teacher Association of the Bladensburg High School asking that a cafeteria and auditorium be added to the school now under construction.

The commissioners said they had adopted a classroom-first policy, but favored adding a cafeteria when funds are available.

George N. Lewis, jr., director of the traffic division, Maryland State Roads Commission, wrote to the board declining to make another survey of the need for a traffic light at New Hampshire ave. and Ray rd., Takoma Park, requested by the commissioners.

In a letter to the county commissioners, I. William Hill, city editor of the Washington Star, charged that county police had manhandled Paul Schmick, Star photographer, when he attempted to take a picture of a lost girl last week.

The commissioners scheduled a hearing for 11:30 a.m. November 16 in the County Service Building at Hyattsville, when they will be sitting as a board of police commissioners.

A K st. underpass at Washington Circle is the next logical step in a crosstown fast-traffic boulevard," Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District engineer Commissioner, said yesterday.

He added that District highway officials are about to make a complete resurvey of projects proposed four years ago to determine if priority ratings should be changed. This study will take about a year.

General Young made these statements in discussing the District highway program at a luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel of the D. C. advisory board of the American Automobile Association.

He pointed out that with the widening of Canal rd. and the opening of Whitehurst Freeway some congestion was expected at Washington Circle. Rush-hour checks have showed no great delay there except on a couple of rainy nights, the general declared.

He said he personally felt the underpass "must be built," but added, "we don't feel we should rush in until it is clear what the problem is."

George E. Keneipp, director of vehicles and traffic, said an origin-and-destination survey is being made at the circle to learn the cause of increased traffic there. It should be completed in a couple of weeks.

General Young said the city's development has necessitated a general reconsideration of the highway plan drawn up four years ago. He voiced a personal conviction that a new bridge across the Anacostia River, which holds a low priority in the present plan, should be the District's next major highway project.

He favors the East Capitol st. site, General Young said, but intends "to keep an open mind until all the facts are in."

Staff members of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, of which he is a member, have urged location of the bridge at Massachusetts ave.

General Young also mentioned these projects to be considered in a restudy of the highway program: Extending New York ave. to connect with the proposed Washington-Baltimore freeway; bridge across the Potomac from Alexandria to Shephards Landing; an Anacostia parkway, running along the Anacostia River and connecting all bridges with the proposed Washington - Baltimore freeway; Arizona ave. parkway feeding traffic from the Northwest section into Canal rd.

Oldster Makes Friends Happy With $350,000

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 8 (AP).—James Powell, 74, a retired real estate and insurance man, today dealt out $350,000 to make his friends happy "while I'm still alive."

Powell tried to make the gifts, ranging from $100 to $50,000, anonymous, urging that he be identified only as "an unknown soldier marching away."

But, he had made too many gifts to too many persons and organizations to avoid a leak of his secret.

Powell, who is ill, lives in semi-seclusion in a hotel. His announcement said:

"My one and only purpose is to make happy while I am still alive those dear friends who have been thoughtful of me and my late wife and two sisters."

Powell turned over $25,000 to Mayor Lloyd H. Markel, asking that the city start a fund for a municipal auditorium.

A sum of $50,000 was given to Superintendent K. D. Waldo of East High School for erection of a new building, or addition to the present one or equipment of either.

Montgomery Finance State Called 'Sound'

Montgomery County's financial condition is "sound" and its credit "secure," according to a survey of the county's fiscal structure made by a firm of municipal financial consultants and made public yesterday at the County Council meeting in Rockville.

Changeover to the charter form of government, coupled with the activities of the present council, are, according to the report, "resulting in improvements in the conduct of the county's government and financial affairs."

The consultants, Wainwright, Ramsey & Lancaster of New York, conclude in their 116-page booklet, costing $10,000, that the present tax rate is not too high, and imposes a relatively light burden on the average tax-paying citizen.

Although the over-all debt of the county "is high, and obviously will have to be increased to meet needs for new improvements," the added debt burden will not strain the tax-paying ability of the people, it was stated.

Purpose of the study, Council President Frederic P. Lee said, was to gather under one cover all sources of information on the county's financial affairs.

This information is particularly needed to counteract the "rating down" of the value of county bonds by credit agencies in recent years, Lee said. This condition was attributed largely to the practice of former county commissioners of refunding bonds instead of retiring them when due.

The financial structure of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, treated in a separate section, was also considered "sound."

Cross-Section X-Ray Pictures Obtained by New Technique

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 8.—A Spanish surgeon, routinely reporting on just another chest condition, today galvanized the interest of America's top surgeons with his new X-ray photography.

He had shown them cross-section pictures of the human body heretofore impossible to obtain by known X-ray techinques, they said.

In effect, Dr. Jose Soler-Roig of Barcelona, showed the surgeons what they would see in the patient's body if that patient had been sliced down "like a roll of bologna." he slicing, however, is done with X-rays, without harm to the patient.

The new technique was unqualifiedly termed "a truly revolutionary step in the development of X-ray photography" by Dr. Arnold S. Jackson, cochief of the famed Jackson Clinic of Madison, Wis., who presided at today's scientific section of the United States chapter, International College of Surgeons.

Speaker Bewildered

Other surgeons at today's scientific sessions of the current fourteenth annual ICS assembly told of ways to seal eye cuts without stitching, or cure severe backaches with internal costs of crumbled bone, or generally reviewed surgical advances of the past decade.

It was the halting, almost apologetic report by Dr. Soler-Roig, however, which captured their interest. Even the speaker appeared bewildered at the excitement he had aroused. The X-ray technique is so new, he confessed, he hasn't had time to write it up since his radiologist devised it about two months ago.

X-rays obtained by present techniques produce pictures almost meaningless to the layman, and often difficult to interpret by even the most experienced radiologists. To get something of a true picture of internal organs and foreign bodies, such as hidden tumors, the radiologist takes his X-ray pictures in series, angling them from many positions, and then carefully plotting the exposures for mathematical determinations.

Even when he has finished, he can't always pinpoint the trouble, and exploratory surgery must be done.

Cross-Section Picture

The new X-ray displayed here today by Dr. Soler-Riog, however, gave a depth-dimensional cross-section picture that made sense even to the untrained, nonscientific eye. It was like looking down into the chest of a body cleanly and bloodlessly sliced from armpit to armpit and the top portion removed.

The Spanish surgeon, who was on the program to explain his operation for the removal of parasitic growths in the lungs, gave all the credit to his radiologist, a Dr. Alfonse Modelell of Barcelona.

The radiologist's new technique, Dr. Soler-Roig explained, consists of rotating the patient before a fixed beam of X-rays which penetrate through the body to a casette (X-ray plate) which is geared to move behind the patient at the same speed and direction as the patient's body.

The patient sits immobilized on the stool whose rotation is synchronized with that of the casette, on its separate axis. Several turns of the patient produce the desired cross-section picture, the surgeon said.

A True Picture

Advantages of the technique, he said, that it gives a true picture in one exposure and provides the surgeon a visible relationship of the position of the foreign body to surrounding tissues.

Dr. Arno E. Town, Philadelphia eye specialist, told a session on eye surgery of the stitchless way to close eye cuts, to avoid "puckering" and other results of surgical sewing of the delicate organ. He said he uses fibrin, a product of normal bloodclotting process, to permanently seal eye wounds.

The fibrin, a glue-like substance, will take hold and seal together even gaping cuts of the eyeball "within 45 seconds after its application," Dr. Town reported. So successful has it been at his own hospital, Philadelphia's Jefferson Hospital, that it is now favored routinely over needle and thread sutures to close many kinds of eye cuts, he reported.

Molded Into Spine

Dr. Roger Anderson, orthopedic surgeon of Seattle, Wash., told a session of his specialty that he has been able to permanently relieve several backaches requiring drastic surgery by molding into the lower spine a cast-like support of crumbled bone. The bone is sculptured in by the surgeon much like plastic wood in gouges in fine furniture.

Within a week after the surgery, Dr. Anderson reported, the bone cast has begun to set. In another week, the patient can move about, and in about a month the patient may be able to return to work, pain-free, he told the surgeons. Previous operations to immobilize the painful joints of the spine at the small of the back have bridged the affected vertebrae with pencil-like lengths of bone, or wedged them tight with bone chips.

Higher School Standards, Pay Called Urgent

The Educational Policies Commission yesterday said teaching standards and salaries must be raised.

"It is especially urgent that standards and salaries for elementary-school teaching be as high as for secondary-school teaching," the commission said in a statement.

"This is necessary to enlist more recruits and to retain more of the present personnel."

The commission was appointed by the National Education Association and the American Association of School Administrators. Among its 20 members are President Dwight D. Eisenhower of Columbia University and President James B. Connant of Harvard.

The commission said elementary school attendance, already record-breaking, will increase annually for another decade.

It added that secondary-school enrollments will begin climbing about 1951 and continue to rise at least until 1960.

"It is clear that the 1947-48 estimates concerning school enrollments in the late 1950's must now be revived upward," the commission said.

"When the children born between 1942 and 1949 are nearly all in school—as they will be by the fall of 1955—the total enrollment of the Nation's elementary and secondary schools will exceed present enrollments by more than six million.

The commission said the teacher shortage already has seriously interfered with the education of 1,500,000 children, and the shortage of school buildings and equipment has deprived 500,000 additional children of full-time schooling.

Prince Georges School Project Gets Go-Ahead

Maryland's school loan dilemma reached Prince Georges County yesterday, but the long-promised Mount Rainier-Brentwood Elementary School survived.

The County Commissioners authorized the Board of Education to accept the low bid of $286,448 offered by the Blake Construction Co. of Washington for building the 12-room school urgently needed because of the influx of new residents. The bid would have expired Friday had no contract been awarded.

Funds for the school were to come from the $6,340,600 State loan alloted Prince Georges from the 50-million-dollar State bond issue now in litigation. A clerical error has thrown validity of the law authorizing the loan into doubt, and legal action must be taken that will delay the sale of the bonds several weeks.

The General Assembly had authorized the County Commissioners to float a 10-million-dollar bond issue for schools before the State program was passed. Relying on this, the commissioners authorized use of current funds to permit construction go the school, due to be finished in September, 1950.

The school board opened bids on the proposed 46-room senior-junior high school for an area southeast of Washington adjacent to Suitland, but deferred award of the contract to the Joseph Nebel Co. of Washington pending settlement of the bond question.

The school board agreed to assist the Prince Georges County Civic Federation in a survey of the feasibility of adopting a 12-month school year when "personnel and funds" are available. Walter F. Mulligan, president, and Charles F. Luebner appeared for the federation.

War Record Saves Airman In Theft Case

Joseph F. Snedden, 81, was sentenced yesterday to serve a year's probation for illegally entering an officer's quarters at Bolling Air Force Base and taking $20 from a table there.

Snedden, a wartime naval airman from Harrisburg, Pa., was sentenced by Judge Ellen K. Raedy after the Municipal Court jurist was told that Snedden had a "fine war record" and had never been in trouble before.

Assistant United States Attorney J. Warren Wilson at the same time dropped charges of housebreaking and illegally wearing a uniform which had been placed against Snedden.

Military authorities said that when bills were previously reported missing from the quarters, they had an agent hide under the bed in the room, and that Snedden, when discovered, flushed the bills down a toilet. When the bills were recovered, they were identified by use of an invisible powder which had been sprinkled on them.

According to police, Snedden admitted taking $588 in a week at the air base.

Providence School Needs Outlined At Fairfax Parley

Providence District schools needs were outlined at a meeting yesterday in Fairfax High School, attended by W. T. Woodson, county school superintendent; Richard Shands, school board member, principals and P-TA members. Needs of Mount Vernon District will be taken up today.

Listed as immediately necessary was the following construction, to be paid for by a proposed bond issue:

Nine-room Fairfax Elementary School; a 16-room Franklin Sherman Elementary School; seven-room Negro elementary school, Fairfax.

Also additions to the following: Fairfax High School, four classrooms; Dunn Loring, three; Chesterbrook, three; Tyson's Corner, six; Oakton, eight; Vienna, three; Vienna Elementary School for Negroes, two.

GU Makes Dr. Alfaro Professor

DR. VICTOR R. ALFARO
Head otorhinolaryngologist

Dr. Victor R. Alfaro, 4210 42d st. nw., has been appointed professor of otorhinolaryngology (ear, nose and throat) at Georgetown University School of Medicine, it was announced yesterday.

In this post, Dr. Alfaro, who had been serving as assistant professor of otorhinolaryngology, fills the vacancy created by the resignation of Dr. Frederick C. Schreiber.

Dr. Alfaro's father, Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, was formerly president of the Republic of Panama, and Dr. Victor Alfaro received his early education in that country before attending Georgetown College and Georgetown University School of Medicine, where he won his medical degree in 1929.

Dr. Alfaro specialized in otorlaryngology (ear and throat) with postgradute work at the University of Pennsylvania and later at the Chevalier Jackson clinic at Temple University.

He served in the Army Medical Corps during the war and was honorably discharged in 1946 with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

He holds the position of surgeon in otorlaryngology at Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital and a similar position at Mount Alto Veterans Hospital.

Dr. Alfaro married the former Nancy Kerr Hamilton. They have two children, Ricardo J. Alfaro 2d and Miss Nancy Alfaro.

Phone Company Accounting Questioned at Rate Hearing

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (AP).—An attorney for the State today asked questions intended to show that the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. pads its accounts to increase the basis for its rates.

Under State law, the utility is entitled to rates which will earn a reasonable profit on invested capital.

The questions were asked at a Public Service Commission hearing on the company's application for permanent rates which would increase telephone bills throughout Maryland.

Richard W. Case, special counsel for the State, put the queries to R. W. Michie, vice president of the company.

When C&P has a new building under construction, Case wanted to know, how does it happen that interest on the money to build it is capitalized on the books at 5 percent? Doesn't the C&P get all such money from its parent, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and isn't the rate 2¾ percent?

Michie replied that 5 percent capitalization is generally considered reasonable.

Case suggested the system serves to increase the company's base for rate-making purposes.

In 1948, he said the telephone company did $8,010,000 worth of building and capitalized the interest on its books at $433,907. This, Case charged, was 180 percent more than the money actually cost.

Michie testified the C&P owes the AT&T $27,700,000 for loans to expand facilities and improve service. In September, 1948, he testified, it was $36,125,000.

Case also cross-examined A. L. Lanigan, C&P assistant vice president, about his estimates of what it would cost to reproduce the company's facilities. Case challenged the methods used in making these estimates.

The long drawn-out hearing will be dormant now until January 9. Then the City of Baltimore, the State, half a dozen Baltimore department stores, and other groups opposing the rate increase will present their case.

Crommelin Rebuked, Not Court-Martialed, For Role in Row; Transferred to West Coast

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Capt. John G. Crommelin, jr., yesterday received a sharp reprimand instead of a court-martial for his part in fomenting the bitter unification row on Capitol Hill.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, new Chief of Naval Operations, wrote Crommelin what was officially described as a "severe" letter of reprimand, then restored him to duty and transferred him to a post on the West Coast.

The veteran naval aviator had been suspended from duty and confined to the District of Columbia limits since he admitted last month to have slipped copies of some Navy correspondence to the press.

The corespondence, marked "confidential," consisted of a letter from Vice Admiral Gerald F. Bogan to Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews, and forwarding indorsements from Admiral Arthur W. Radford and Admiral Louis E. Denfeld. They were critical of approved Department of Defense war policies and treatment of the Navy.

The ensuing furor brought on a public investigation of the charges by the House Armed Services Committee and airing of the bitter, long-standing Pentagon row. Denfeld was relieved from duty as CNO and supplanted by Sherman after the hearings.

Sherman's letter rebuked Crommelin for:

1. "Deliberately" circumventing Navy Department policy banning public discussion of controversial matters.

2. "Open disregard of regularly constituted naval authority," amounting to insubordination, as prohibited by Article 1210 of Navy Regulations.

3. Disclosing classified material in violation of Article 1510 of Regulations.

Questions Fitness to Command

"To the degree that you deliberately ignored your responsibilities to your naval superiors and disregarded the well-understood privacy of confidential and privileged communications," Sherman's reprimand read, "you brought into question your fitness to exercise command or to occupy a position of trust and confidence."

The Navy said that Crommelin will be assigned as air officer on the staff of Vice Admiral George D. Murray, commander of the Western Sea Frontier, in San Francisco.

Move to Heal Wounds

While a court-martial had been freely predicted for the veteran air hero, the High Command evidently decided on the lesser penalty to avoid another public airing of the defense policy row. It also appeared to be a move to heal the wounds left from the controversy.

The letter of reprimand will be placed in Crommelin's record and be considered when he comes up for promotion or for an important assignment. It undoubtedly will be an important factor in determining whether he is to be selected for real admiral by the Navy promotion board meeting shortly.

Crommelin told reporters he had no intention of resigning and would reply to the reprimand as authorized. The Navy said last night he would be granted permission—previously denied him—to make an Armistice Day speech in Montgomery, Ala., but that he would be "held responsible" for what he says.

Weren't Secret, He Says

The Navy flier, however, did make public a letter he had written to Admiral Denfeld, when the latter suspended him and called for an explanation of his acts. In it, Crommelin asserted that there were no actual "military secrets" in the Bogan-Bradford-Denfeld communications to warrant their "confidential" classification.

He quoted Navy regulations, authorizing disclosure of confidential material "in special circumstances when such disclosure is to the best interests of the naval service." Crommelin said that proof that his act was in the "best interests of the Navy" was that most senior admirals took a similar stand in their congressional testimony.

Motivated by Service Oath

"In deciding that the interests of the people of the United States and the interests of the naval service required the disclosure of Admiral Bogan's letter," he added, "I was motivated by my oath as a naval officer to support and defend the Constitution of the United States. It was and is my sincere conviction that the increasing usurpation of power by an expanding General Staff is inconsistent with real civilian control of the military establishment and is therefore inconsistent with the Constitution."

Judge Urges Speed in Trial Of Burgman

The judge became less patient and half a dozen spectators fell asleep yesterday in the District Court trial of Herbert J. Burgman, accused of treason.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff repeatedly urged counsel to get on with the case and finally declared, "This case must come to an end."

Newest estimates are that the case, on trial for several weeks, will go to the jury on Monday. Both prosecution and defense have rested.

Now, the rebuttal is on, and is becoming a "battle of psychiatrists." The testimony of defendant Burgman, accused of broadcasting wartime propaganda for Germany, concluded in the early afternoon.

Called by the prosecution, Dr. Anna C. Todd, a member of the District's Commission on Mental Health, testified that in her opinion, Burgman has always been sane.

She flatly contradicted testimony of an Army psychiatrist called by the defense and declaring that in 1946, Burgman was a schizophrenic—unable to adhere to his moral judgment on right and wrong.

Dr. Todd said that she examined Burgman earlier this year and found him to be sane.

"I felt that this man was suffering from a neurosis and not a psychosis," she testified. Her diagnosis was predicated on a complete examination in addition to his history as given by Burgman.

Other psychiatrists are expected to testify today.

Truman Leads Armistice Day Rites Friday

Greater Washington will observe the thirty-first anniversary of Armistice Day Friday with ceremonies at Arlington Cemetery and other observances.

President Truman will lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The day is a legal holiday here, and thousands of private employes and Federal and District Government workers will have a three-day weekend.

All banks in the area will be closed. Public school children in the District, Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax County, Va., also will have the day off. In Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md., the schools will remain open.

The District Court and the United States Court of Appeals here will be closed, but Municipal Court will be open, for lockup and continued cases.

Department stores and most retail stores will be open for business. Most grocery stores, including chains, also will be open.

Union Station officials said they expect heavy outgoing travel on Thursday night and early Friday. The American Automobile Association estimated that motor travel would be about 10 per cent above normal.

Gen. Davidson's Wife Recovers Stolen Gems

Baltimore police yesterday recovered more than $4000 in gems stolen October 26 from the auto of Mrs. Howard C. Davidson, 3238 R st. nw., Washington, wife of a retired Air Force major general.

A suitcase containing the gems, among other personal property totaling $4835, was stolen from the car which had been parked on a Baltimore street for an hour while Mrs. Davidson was shoping.

Detective Lieut. Frank Schmidt of the Baltimore police said the property was found in the attic of an apartment in West Baltimore.

Investigators are questioning a 21-year-old unemployed occupant of the building.

Star Witness of Spy Probers Lets Them Down With a Thud

By the United Press

Max Bedacht, former high-ranking Communist leader, told House spy hunters yesterday that all he knows about Russian spying is what he reads in the papers.

Bedacht, who split with party leaders last year and now runs a New Jersey chicken farm, had been billed as a "friendly witness" by a House subcommittee on Un-American Activities. Committee officials had expected him to name names of Soviet agents with whom he was said to have worked.

But when the mild-mannered little man got on the witness stand, he said politely that he didn't know what the committeemen were talking about when they asked him about Soviet espionage.

Suspects It, However

"I think the Soviet government, like every other government in the world, must be carrying on activities to get information," he said gravely. "I have no doubt of it. But I don't know anything about it of my own knowledge."

The subcommittee had better luck with Nicholas Dozenberg, self-styled former Soviet agent, who submitted a sworn statement claiming that Russian spies once stole the plans of the former British warship Royal Oak.

He said the plans had been intercepted en route to Washington and photographed by Communist agents. The Royal Oak was sunk by a U-boat in World War II.

Bedacht admitted he had held many important posts in the American Communist Party at one time or another, from Chicago district organizer to director of agitation and even acting secretary.

But he set the committee back on its heels again when asked if he still believed in communism. He was supposed to have renounced communism last year when he split with top party leaders.

"I most certainly do," he replied to the question by committee counsel Frank Tavenner.

Chairman John S. Wood (D., Ga.) quickly called a closed session, presumably too see what had gone wrong with their "star witness."

Later Wood announced the subcommittee was not going to hold any more hearings until November 29. He would not say what they would go into then.

Army to Print Trial Records

The Army yesterday reversed a three-week-old decision to suspend printing of the Nuernberg war crimes proceedings and said the entire 15-volume series will be published.

Last month the Department of the Army announced it would suspend publication of the trial proceedings after Volume II rolls off the Government Printing Office presses late next month. Lack of funds was the reason given.

At the same time, it was said the entire proceedings would be available in manuscript form for researchers, lawyers and historians at the Pentagon and Library of Congress.

It was also announced yesterday that the final report of Brig. Gen. Telford Taylor, prosecutor at the war crimes trials, will be released next week and subsequently printed.

U. S. Embassy Clerk Released by Czechs

Prague, Nov. 8 (AP).—Samuel Meryn of he U. S. Embassy, imprisoned nearly three weeks on charges of heading a spy ring, was released by the government today. He left Czechoslovakia at once.

The release of Meryn, 39-year-old Czech-born naturalized American, followed a straight-talking speech by the new United States Ambassador, Ellis O. Briggs, to Communist President Klement Gottwald.

The development apparently meant no let-up in Communist efforts to crack down on alleged spy networks, however.

The government announced tonight the arrest of 32 more Czechoslovaks, including two former members of Parliament, who were alleged to have been in league with "a Western imperialist power" in Germany. Presumably this meant the United States.

A third member of Parliament, alleged head of the ring, was declared still at liberty in western Germany. He was identified as Dr. Michael Zibrin.

The two former deputies arrested were Karel Folta and Jan Bendik. All three deputies are former members of the now-outlawed Slovak Democratic Party. The announcement accused them of bribing Czech refugees in German camps with American cigarettes to spy.

A government broadcast said Meryn had been released in response to his request for a "pardon." It added he had been given three days to get out of the country. But the United States Embassy said he left immediately with his wife, an Austrian citizen.

Meryn, a clerk in the military attache's office, was arrested October 21. On the same day Isaac Patch, attache in the embassy's political section, was ordered to leave the country in 24 hours on charges he had been operating an underground railway for fugitives from the Czechoslovak regime. Four days later the government ordered John G. Heyn, Patch's assistant, deported on grounds that he was trying to ferret out secret industrial information. But he had already gone.

Ambassador Ellis went to Presl-

The embassy released the text of a straightforward address Briggs made to Gottwald. This reminded Gottwald that "American blood was mingled forever with the soil of Czechoslovakia" in the liberation of this country from the Nazis in 1945.

U. S. Terms Rokossovsky 'Proconsul'

The State Department said yesterday the appointment of Russian Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky as Polish Minister of National Defense "brings Poland openly and more securely under Soviet control."

It called the marshal a "proconsul," the Latin word for an administrator of a colony or conquered territory. He is of Polish origin.

The move, announced Monday, means that Russia's political and strategic interests will continue to have priority over those of Poland, the department said in a formal statement.

The State Department added:

"The appointment of a leading figure to serve as Soviet proconsul in Poland brings Poland openly and more securely under control and continues to insure priority for the USSR's political and strategic interests over those of Poland. It also provides an interesting example of the vaunted Soviet 'peace policy.'

"It will be recalled that Marshal Rokossovsky was in command of the Soviet army on the outskirts of Warsaw at the time of the Warsaw uprising in 1944. At that time the gallant Poles who attempted to liberate the capital from the Germans were unsupported by Marshal Rokossovsky and ultimately forced to surrender with tragic loss of life."

King Reviews Gobs . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

ROYAL INSPECTION—His Majesty, King George VI (arrow), reviews Uncle Sam's sailors aboard the cruiser, USS Columbus, at Portsmouth, England, yesterday. The British monarch is escorted by Capt. Ephraim Rankin McLean, of Carrollton, Miss., commanding officer of the American warship. The King chatted with crew members, stayed for lunch with the captain and spent three hours aboard

Portsmouth, England, Nov. 8 (U.P.) King George VI, an old cruiser man himself, today visited the United States heavy cruiser, Columbus, the flagship of Admiral Richard L. Conolly, in this bomb-battered D-Day port.

Conolly, commander in chief of the United States Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean Fleet, and Ambassador Lewis Douglas greeted the British monarch on board as 21 guns roared a salute.

Wearing a British admiral's uniform, the King inspected the ship from top to bottom, spoke to delighted crewmen, saw his first canned yams and ate the officer's lunch, which included steak and baked potatoes.

The salute, reserved for heads of state, was fired from the 13,600-ton cruiser's 3-inch "ceremonial" battery under Gunner John Conally of San Antonio, Tex.

Asked if this was the first time the warship had boomed the big salute, Conally drawled, "We had another King before." Then turning to one of his mates called, "Hey, Jack, who was that other King?" It was King Paul of Greece, who visited the Columbus in the Mediterranean.

Gagging, Exceeding Authority Charged to Foreign Ministers

Paris, Nov. 8 (AP).—The European Consultative Assembly's steering committee tonight charged the 12 European foreign ministers of the council with exceeding their authority, and challenged their right to gag assembly committees.

In what was described as a virtually unanimous decision, the 28 committeemen, headed by Belgium's Paul-Henri Spaak, refused to accept the ministers' decision to refer all assembly economic resolutions to the Marshall Plan's European Economic Cooperation Organization (OEEC).

The 12 ministers last week vetoed the assembly's plan to keep its economic, legal, social and cultural committee at work from time to time throughout the year. Resolutions drafted by these committees were ordered referred to the OEEC, the International Labor Office and to United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Spaak said a protest resolution was being drafted for presentation to the ministerial group, the upper house in the Council of Europe.

Meanwhile, French, British and Italian defense ministers today agreed on Paris for headquarters of the southern Europe-Western Mediterranean regional group under the Atlantic Pact.

This is one of the five local planning boards to be set up under the treaty binding North America's defense with that of Western Europe.

British Ask What Nehru Told Truman

London, Nov. 8 (AP).— Prime Minister Jawaharal Nehru of India arrived in England today and promptly began a round of talks with British officials who were anxious to find out about his talks with President Truman.

Diplomatic sources said the British are worried that he may have made some commitments which would lead to a weakening of Britain's influence in her former possession.

Nehru arrived in London this morning aboard President Truman's private plane, The Independence, after a tour of the United States and part of Canada.

He had lunch with Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps then at night called on Prime Minister Clement Attlee at his official residence, No. 10 Downing st.

"The Old South Lends Its Magic to The New Greenbrier!"

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS...historic spa, gay resort, scenic wonderland, has always been America's most exciting vacation place. And now more than ever, a week-end, a week, a month at the New Greenbrier is "the thing to do" among people who want vacations to mean fun, adventure, new friends. Mansion grace, southern hospitality, fun every minute...The Greenbrier is out of this world in everything but price. Rates per person, for double room with private bath, average $19-$20 per day—some as low as $16—including breakfast, luncheon, tea, and dinner. Send for free color photograph booklet.

WEST VIRGINIA'S scenery, food and romance enchant pretty Gerry Bryden, who returns to native state for autumn holiday. "You'll see," she warns husband at resort she visited long ago, "this place gets in your blood."

"LIKE A MAGAZINE COVER," Gerry describes Greenbrier's Victorian Writing Room. To Mrs. Tippett of New York, she confides, "I'm picking up ideas for a decorating project for our club at home."

"GENERAL LEE lived here for three summers," Gerry explains to Howard as they bicycle around 6,500-acre Greenbrier estate. "And in school they told us that three Presidents had their summer White House here."

SAM SNEAD, who makes his golfing headquarters at Greenbrier and who has captured more professional golf titles than any other active player in the world, shows Gerry trophy he won in her old home town in 1936. P. S. Greenbrier is a golfer's paradise!

"CANAPES made with West Virginia ham," she tells chef when she plans private party for new friends at Greenbrier. Glad to know that chef prepares ham with horse radish and dry mustard, Howard cheers—"Must be good—that's Gerry's way."

"WONDERFUL PEOPLE—wonderful food—terrific music—with that kind of party how could I help but be a belle?" That night Gerry Bryden files another perfect experience for a lifetime of remembering.

"BEN'S BIG SMILE seems kind of symbolic of this place," Gerry philosophizes about colored bell captain who has been a Greenbrier fixture for 38 years. "I know what you mean," Howard agrees, "warm, friendly and wonderful."

Illegal Phones

District Judge Morris' order staying the removal of a telephone allegedly used for gambling cannot, by any extension of logic, be regarded as a slap at the antigambling campaign. Judge Morris objected to the ambiguity of a Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. regulation respecting telephones used for illegal purposes. His order to the company and the Public Utilities Commission to clarify the tariff—or regulation—did not imply in the least, however, that the efforts of United States Attorney Fay to obtain the removal of some 300 telephones as a consequence of his gambling raids last spring are unwarranted.

The tariff in question gave the telephone company the right to remove telephones when it was notified by law-enforcement agencies or obtained other evidence that the phones are being used illegally. A similar tariff has been upheld by the United States Circuit Court in California. The point in question was the clause requiring the telephone company to notify subscribers of their right to appeal to the Public Utilities Commission "for a determination of the applicability of the tariff provisions." Conceivably this could have been construed as implying that all the PUC has to do is to make sure that the telephone company had received a letter from the United States attorney before taking action.

Actually, the intent of the PUC in approving the tariff was precisely the opposite. The PUC serves as a sort of additional protection to subscribers to insure that telephones cannot be removed summarily without real evidence of illegal use. In this respect it acts as an adjunct to the courts, and the burden of proof is on the telephone company. It is a good thing that the regulation has now been amplified to require that there be actual proof in the hands of the telephone company and that the subscriber be advised of his right to appeal to the courts. Beyond this, however, it must be assumed that if the subscriber does not exercise his right of appeal, within a reasonable time, he does not contest the removal. This procedure should provide an adequate safeguard against the arbitrary denial of telephone service while at the same time recognizing that the removal of telephones used illegally is an important tool of law-enforcement agencies.

Judicial Entanglement

The Supreme Court has tied itself into a linguistic knot that is likely to entail a painful untangling. Some months ago it concluded, in the Vermilya-Brown case, that the military bases this country has leased from Great Britain are "possessions" of the United States within the meaning of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Now it says in United States vs. Spelar, that those same bases are in a "foreign country" in the meaning of the Federal Tort Claims Act. To the layman uninitiated in the higher art of judicial semantics this seems equivalent to saying that red is sometimes blue or darkness sometimes light.

In delivering the majority opinion on Monday, Justice Reed labored vigorously to make the court's reasoning convincing. "We know of no more accurate phrase in common English usage than 'foreign country,'" he said, "to denote territory subject to the sovereignty of another nation." From the legislative history of the Tort Claims Act, moreover, he proved that it was not intended to apply to territory not under American sovereignty. All this seems unassailable, and no one on the bench attempted to assail it. But it leaves the court in the unenviable position of saying that Congress sometimes calls our leased bases American "possessions" and at other times "foreign countries."

"While . . . Congress can use a contrariety of terms to describe the same thing," Justice Jackson remarked in a concurring opinion, "we should pay Congress the respect of not assuming lightly that it indulges in inconsistencies of speech which make the English language almost meaningless. There is some reason to think the inconsistency lies in the court's rendering of the statutes rather than in the way Congress has written them." To this we suspect that most lawyers and judges will say amen. The very fact that the Court of Appeals reversed the lower court in the Spelar case because it thought that was necessary under the Supreme Court's ruling in Vermilya-Brown, while the Supreme Court itself says otherwise, illustrates the confusion it has created. We do not see how that judge-made confusion can be eliminated by splitting hairs or by any other means short of retreat from the statute-stretching feat in which the court indulged in the Vermilya-Brown decision.

Vatican And The Judges

In advising Roman Catholic judges throughout the world not to render decisions based on laws that the church considers unjust, Pope Pius XII was undoubtedly striking at the lawless condemnations that pass for trials in Communist countries. The Catholic judges of Czechoslovakia and Poland are placed in a terrible predicament when they are asked to judge church officials who are really victims of persecution. Judges who impartially apply the law as it has been known in the past imperil their own lives. To save their own necks, they must follow the dictates of their Communist masters. We have no doubt that the Pope's purpose in speaking out at this time was to make judges in this predicament realize that their duty to God and humanity forbids them to become pliant tools of ruthless power.

Unfortunately, however, the Pope goes beyond this particular situation. His remarks appear to be addressed to Catholic judges in general. "Under no circumstances," he is quoted as saying, "can a judge acknowledge and approve an unjust law (which would not in any case be valid before God)." And in speaking of divorce cases, he said: "A Catholic judge cannot, except for very grave reasons, pass a sentence of civil divorce (wherever divorce is in effect) for a marriage which is valid before God and the church."

It would be presumptuous to attempt to interpret the obligation, if any, that this pronouncement places on Catholic judges in this country. But the very fact that the Pope presumes to advise Catholic judges in distant lands where representative government is functioning seems to us most unfortunate. Actually, of course, no judge in the United States has any obligation, as a judge, to any ecclesiastical authority. Our judges obtain their authority solely from the Constitution and the law of the land. If any one of them should say that a divorce authorized by the laws of the land could not be granted because of the law of God, he would immediately be confronted by the question of what is the law of God. In a land of religious liberty and of many different faiths obviously no satisfactory answer could be given. If judges of different faiths attempted to follow the law of God on the bench, our courts would soon be the seat of confusion instead of justice.

The judge in this country serves a civil and not a religious function. Any man on the bench who is worthy of the trust imposed in him thinks not as a Catholic, Protestant or Jew but as an impartial judge sworn to uphold the laws that the representatives of the people have enacted. We do not think that the words of the Pope will have any influence upon conscientious American judges of Catholic persuasion. But they are likely to have the unfortunate effect of confusing many people because they tend to blur the line between ecclesiastical and civil authority—a line that must be strictly maintained.

More Airports

Unofficial statements attributed to the unhappy pilot of the Bolivian plane involved in last week's air disaster add another element to the mystery. If he actually was cleared for an emergency landing, as has been reported and denied, this would point to considerable confusion in the National Airport control tower. Whether the tower was in part responsible for the tragic misunderstanding, whether the pilot was misled by a military plane that had made a simulated landing, or whether he merely failed to heed instructions—this is something for the Civil Aeronautics Board to attempt to unravel in the hearings beginning today.

But while investigators may arrive at a reasonably accurate hypothesis of the cause of this particular accident, the basic problem will remain. That problem is, simply, a complicated air traffic pattern in a narrow pocket along the Potomac River. The most obvious, and to our mind most logical, solution is to end the confusion arising from three separate airports located within a mile of each other. In wartime, there was an excuse for putting up with the safety hazard created by military operations at Bolling Air Force Base and the Anacostia Naval Air Station. This excuse is no longer valid. It is time, we believe, to transfer all military flights to Andrews Field in nearby Maryland.

To be sure, the military has a claim of prior occupancy, and undoubtedly there would be protests about the greater distance between Andrews Field and the Pentagon. Let everyone admit it: The location of the National Airport on its present site was a costly mistake which violated every canon of traffic pattern safety. But the mistake has been made, and the least disruptive way out seems to be a transfer of the limited military operations remaining at Bolling and Anacostia away from the city. Andrews Field, which is one of the world's largest airports, probably could accommodate this additional traffic with a small amount of extra construction.

The possibility would then arise of using Anacostia and Bolling for noncommercial civil flights. Common sense, we believe, would rule against this; for even with one control tower serving both sides of the river, the problem of congested approach patterns would remain. The answer here is to provide additional facilities elsewhere for private flying. The problem must be faced one way or another, for National is so congested now that another airport is an urgent necessity. The removal of noncommercial flights would relieve a good deal of this congestion.

The segregation of commercial and noncommercial traffic would of course involve some inconvenience for private fliers. The question, however, is the relative number of persons involved, and here commercial flights win hands down. This does not in the least imply that facilities furnished by the Government to private fliers should be impaired; either a new noncommercial airport should be built or existing private fields expanded with Federal assistance. In any event some such bold action is necessary, for a stopgap solution would only delay the inevitable as air traffic continues to grow.

Chairman At 86

Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday Monday in North Carolina. The veteran legislator, who began his career in Congress during the Taft Administration, is entitled to hearty congratulations on the attainment of this milepost. No congratulations are in order, however, for the tradition-bound Congress which continues to permit a man of 86 to preside over what is probably its most powerful committee. In fairness to Mr. Doughton himself, and various other committee chairmen who are only slightly his junior, Congress ought to find some means of relieving its aged members from the onerous duties of committee chairmanships.

Explaining why he has refused to assume the role of elder statesman, as he recently celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday in quiet retirement, Owen D. Young said: "I really believe that more harm is done by old men who cling to their influence than by young men who anticipate it." Whether or not positive harm is done by men who cling to high posts long after their alertness, imagination and strength have been impaired, they deny to the Nation the advantages of vigorous leadership, which may be even more serious.

Of course, the chief fault is not with the individual. It is with the seniority system to which Congress clings. Operating blindly, that system not only disregards all other qualifications in deference to length of service; it also fails to apply any sort of cut-off when extreme age reduces the argument of experience to an absurdity. We suspect that nothing Representative Doughton could now do would bring so much credit to his name as relinquishment of his chairmanship. But that would still leave the system intact.

Some Pumpkins

There is, it seems, a good deal of indignation on Capitol Hill about a painting in oils, executed by the eminent artist, Major General Vaughan, and now on exhibition in New York at a Fifth ave. gallery. Those who, having paid the price of admission, have been permitted to examine the picture report that it has been executed in a sort of post-postimpressionist manner, and with a haughty disdain of all academic principles of perspective and draughtsmanship. The artist's conception appears to be highly symbolic. Two curving parallel lines beginning in the left foreground disappear into the right background. At the vanishing point are some streaks that appear to indicate clouds, and superimposed on them is a roughly drawn question mark. In the left middle distance is a long narrow rectangular object, intended, we are told, to represent a pair of desks. Above the desks appear two rounded figures representing pumpkinheads.

The title of the painting is "The Path of Investigation," from which it is deduced that it is intended to represent the recent senatorial inquisition into the general's somewhat complicated affairs. Private catalogue notes are now said to be circulating among the artist's friends here in Washington, identifying the two pumpkinheads as Senators McCarthy and Mundt. This is thought by some to be wanting in proper respect for the legislative arm of the Government; hence the indignation to which we have referred.

Since General Vaughan has been accused of so many unethical doings, we should not like to add to them an imputation of plagiarism. So we shall merely call it one of those interesting coincidences that some months before the general's painting was executed (or, to be explicit, on December 7, 1948), a cartoon by our Mr. Herb Block appeared on this page, symbolizing another congressional investigating committee by a pumpkinhead. It was, if we may say so, a better drawn pumpkinhead than either of General Vaughan's. The allusion, of course, was to the then current excitement over the microfilm documents discovered in their strange hiding place on Mr. Whittaker Chambers' farm.

It also seems only fair to say that the proceeds from the sale of tickets required for a view of General Vaughan's masterpiece are not going into his own pockets, but to the New York Urban League, a praiseworthy cause. We don't know how much these tickets cost, but we remember very distinctly that it cost only 5 cents to see Mr. Herb Block's cartoon.

"After the Crash"

I have just received your November editorial, "After the Crash," and hasten to point out a few errors in your thought concerning the segregation of commercial and private craft at busy terminal points.

The first consideration must be that numerous business firms own and operate their own fleet of airplanes. Many of these planes are of the large passenger type and therefore need the landing area that only National Airport can offer in this area. The servicing and hangar service required by these private planes is also on a par with that required by commercial airlines and cannot be found at other than the larger airports.

Another important consideration is the matter of convenience for the private flyer. Aviation, especially private aviation, is a growing field; and if private flying is placed in a position where it becomes a hardship to make use of one's own plane, then aviation as a whole will suffer. Many owners of smaller private planes use them as a means of transportation from their homes to larger cities in order to connect with commercial airlines.

In your editorial you mention the greater speed of military craft over commercial. The speed which you should have considered is the landing speed and not the cruising speed. Many types of commercial craft have as great and in some cases greater landing speed than most military craft. The restriction of National Airport on military craft has long been sought by the airlines and by airport authorities, but a line must be drawn between military types and also those still being used for military purposes and those now used as private planes.

No one can deny that fast military and naval craft should be prohibited from the use of commercial fields, but there cannot be any distinction drawn between the commercial airliner and similar ships used by the Military Air Transport Service for passenger service. Neither can you prohibit former military craft now used for private flying from a field and allow fast types of small private craft to use the field.

No, there are many considerations before you can indiscriminately say "prohibit all but commercial airplanes from using National Airport." As in the case of all segregation, it is not justified until such time as like facilities are offered for private flying.

Rejecting Bigotry

Come on, folks, "three yeahs" for Jefferson Military College, the Natchez, Miss., institution which despite its "desperate" financial situation told Texas millionaire George Armstrong to peddle his 50-million-dollar endowment elsewhere simply because the school didn't care to incorporate Armstrong's racial and religious prejudices into its curriculum.

Armstrong's shocking offer last week was a blatant attempt to foster racial and religious discord. It was just the type of sickening gesture that the Communist propaganda machine seizes upon for the propagation of its faith.

This strikes me as a wonderful opportunity for all of us who glibly "preach" the American ideals to do something concrete toward their accomplishment. While we can't match Armstrong's staggering offer, our dimes and dollars may help Jefferson Military College to continue. I have already acted upon that impulse, and am writing this letter with the hope that others may find the suggestion worthwhile. Let's try to help along a school which apparently takes seriously the ideals and teachings of the man for whom it was named.

JOSEPH M. STONE.

Antarctic Challenge

Mankind is so new on this planet that there still is a huge continent which is uninhabited and undeveloped and perhaps filled with riches rivaling those of the Indies which beckoned Columbus and some other chaps.

This continent, Antarctica, is beckoning to many adventurous folk in many lands. What puzzles me is that the United States seems unaware of the existence of these 6,000,000 square miles of territory—unaware except at intervals now and then when our magnificent explorers start out or come home, at which time we cheer, and then forget.

Of course there is ice in Antarctica. Thousands of feet thick it is. But the cloak of apathy above the ice is seemingly a great deal thicker and ever so much harder to penetrate.

Let us clear away this cloudiness and get right down to brass tacks and study this problem of how to develop a continent that presents some pretty knotty natural obstacles. Surely the great, free-enterprise nation that is the United States is not going to let opportunity slip through her fingers. Cannot we rise up in the full strength of clean, keen initiative and develop the resources of a new continent? Or shall we let slave labor, forced labor, outdo us in this respect in both and North and South polar regions?

E. A. KENDALL.
Arlington.

Pilots' Duty

Your unjustifiably big headline of November 5 paper, "Third Plane Figured In Crash Killing 55" (which must have given many readers a shock as if another disaster had occurred!) proves only that either The Washington Post is seeking sensation or that your correspondent takes himself too seriously; perhaps both. For this story, even if true, does not detract from the fact that the Bolivian pilot should have seen what was going on at the approach of the airport, regardless of tower instructions.

Only on an instrument landing must a pilot fully rely upon the tower. Under circumstances such as those prevailing at the time of this accident a pilot has to use his eyes as much as his ears.

PILOT.

"Asia's Revolt"

Recently in these spaces someone, rather caustically, commented about the caliber of The Washington Post editorials. Certainly, however, to be included amongst the very finest of enlightened journalistic perception was your November 4 editorial, "Asia's Revolt," November 4.

You are to be fervently congratulated for having hailed so vigorously Secretary of State Acheson's words of wisdom concerning the genuine yearning for real national independence now being voiced by the peoples of southeastern Asia. As you aptly have said: "Nationalists have been turned into Communists by western blundering." It would ill befit the United States, which set the pattern for national self-determination and independence in 1776, to be a part of that "western blundering," and fortunately, after many machinations and through the election of 1948, we are not. Your editorial by its deep historical perception must rank as American journalism at its very best.

More Indignation Over Transit Radio

The announcement that The Washington Post as a gesture of public interest, is conducting an impartial poll of passengers on Capital Transit vehicles is astonishing.

Testimony by witnesses at the commission hearing denounced these polls as valueless and misleading. The whole inquiry has been based on the false assumption that the whole controversy revolved around whether the public does or does not approve of music via the radio in the transit vehicles.

The issue goes much deeper. Advertising is the issue and the goal of the corporations interested in fostering radio advertising on the public in the name of music.

Music is but the coating of the raucous voices of hucksters that will be turned on if and when the commission extends its approval to this pirating.

THOMAS E. BUTLER.
Washington.

Must it be all or nothing? I don't think so. Why couldn't the transit company and the public get together for a compromise?

I have heard the arguments on both sides. It actually boils down to this: the opponents of the music would largely withdraw their objections if there were a guarantee:

1. That the music and the advertising would be kept on the soft side, even though some who may be hard of hearing may not hear it as well, for they are in the minority.

2. That the advertising and news would not break in, several startling degrees louder, or any louder than the acceptable volume of music.

3. That the advertising voices shall not mutilate the music by interrupting it a few bars from the end of a selection, or anywhere else, to rile unnecessarily our sensibilities.

4. That the advertising and admonitions shall be studied in their avoidance of the depressing or the controversial.

5. That the quantity of advertising shall not be inched up and up gradually until the music has taken a ride 'round and 'round the city, and gone out. We like music, but we are keenly aware of the advertisers' fundamental motive in getting the music into the transit system.

MYRTLE S. MILLER.
Washington.

The transit monopoly advances only one argument to justify forcing distracting noises upon helpless riders. It needs the money. If the transit monopoly cannot make a legitimate profit in the transportation business then, like any other business failure, it ought to fold. It should not be given a special privilege to force radio upon passengers to fatten its revenues from the only business it is entitled to be engaged in — passenger transportation.

CLARENCE P. DUBOSE.
Washington.

I am willing to compromise. Let some vehicles have the radios and those of us who are so affected by their racket be able to ride in peace. That, to me, seems only fair.

LOUISE EVANS GROGAN.
Washington.

Adolescents' Turn

REMINISCENT of the 1920s social scene is present concern over teen-age drinking. It comes on the heels of a fashion trend that revives shuddering memories of the hard-boiled, girdle-parking flapper. Could all this be the shadow of another postwar adolescent outbreak?

Youth with a drink too many at the wheel of a motorcar is alarming the American Automobile Association. Drunken teen-agers are causing "thousands of motorcar accidents," says Lou E. Holland, president. The practice of driving while intoxicated is increasing among youth, he recently told the association, and it has grown especially in the last year. Meanwhile a youths' rebellion has been set off at the University of California by a new set of rules banning bars in fraternity houses.

This at least shifts the alcoholic spotlight from women, who recently have been widely assailed for excessive drinking, to adolescents. Moreover, women have been somewhat absolved by a statistical study recently made by Dr. E. M. Jellinek of Yale University. This shows that chronic alcoholism among women was less in 1945 than in 1910. In earlier days families hid alcoholic female relatives. Now they have them treated.

However this same study warned against complacency on the alcoholic front, since alcoholism among all ages has picked up in recent years—though the rate of increase for men far exceeds that for women.

MORE MOTOR cars, as well as more drinks, have contributed to teen-age accidents. Never has there been such a high proportion of cars to American families, never so many speed-crazy youngsters at the wheels of them. An obsession for the new shiny fat, fast-going automobiles affects nearly everyone from teen-agers to granddads. Postwar housing lacks have contributed somewhat to this, as the motor car often spells escape from crowded and drab surroundings.

But too much alcoholic temptation has been placed in the way of teen-age motorists, the head of the AAA believes. He points out that more than half of the States allow gasoline stations to sell whisky. He also reports roadside places where boys and girls can buy liquor as becoming more numerous. Lack of supervision by parents and teachers of youth at the wheel is given as another contributing cause to drunken driving and accidents.

Driver training courses, now in 4346 high schools, need to be rapidly extended. But what to do about adolescents' drinking goes deeper than a course of study.

YOUTH HAS had more money to spend in recent years, both because of parents' prosperity and of its own opportunities for jobs. While there has been a slowdown in jobs for teen-agers in the last year or two, yet boys and girls are earning money of their own as never before.

Also lending encouragement to adolescents' drinking may be social attitudes. Many boys, says Mr. Holland, "think it a mark of distinction to carry a booze bottle"—as did the gin-drinking youth of the 1920s. The social pace of the American teen-ager—in itself one of the great dilemmas of parents—also affords more opportunity for drinking.

However, researchers viewing the alcoholic scene from their laboratory towers see deeper and longer range forces at work. One of these is the move to cities, where life's complexities and social mores often encourage drinking. The entire increase in the rate of chronic alcoholism since 1930 has been in cities, Dr. Jellinek reports. There's one third more alcoholism in big cities than in smaller ones and twice as much as on the farm.

Then that old standby, the strain and pressure of modern living, has its influence in sending youth as well as its elders to the bottle. Man's lack of understanding of himself, and especially of his children, is blamed particularly by both scientists who believe dietary deficiencies or other physical causes are back of alcoholism, and those who blame it on emotional disturbance.

One short-term measure now suggested is removal of temptation from adolescents by stopping mixed sales of liquor and gasoline. The rest of the approach is largely up to parents and teachers. And since alcoholism is now called the Nation's No. 4 "disease," they will need more mental resources than stereotyped exhortation in approaching it.

Welfare Articles

We wish to express our appreciation of the articles by Miss Dorothea Andrews which were recently published in your paper on the unmarried mother and problems in adoption.

Comments which have come to us both from the mothers of children and from adoptive applicants indicate that the articles gave explanation of phases of the problems which had not previously been understood. The Board of Public Welfare believes that the articles will encourage greater use of agencies and thereby afford greater protection to children and others involved.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Acheson-Bevin Cables

IF THE cabled exchanges which led up to the current Paris meeting of the American, British and French Foreign Ministers were published, they would reveal two deeply significant facts. The first is that British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin takes an extraordinarily serious view of what is happening in Germany.

The second fact is that Secretary of State Dean Acheson has now made the project for continental economic union, first put forward by ECA Chief Paul Hoffman, the number one objective of American foreign policy. Taken together, these two facts explain what the conference is all about.

The tone of Bevin's cable to Acheson and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, proposing the conference, is remarkably somber. He stated flatly that the moral authority of the Allies in Germany was being rapidly destroyed. And he went on to say: 'We cannot afford to wait until our whole dismantling policy collapses about our ears and the Western powers are publicly humiliated in front of the Germans."

Bevin called on his American and French opposite numbers to face and deal with this deteriorating situation before it got completely out of hand. As an interim measure he proposed that the dismantling program be suspended almost entirely, until a rational substitute program could be worked out with the West German government of Dr. Konrad Adenauer. But in his cable Bevin made it clear that he considers dismantling of German plants only the most immediate German issue to be faced.

BEVIN called for a review of all the basic issues of Allied policy in Germany—a peace treaty for Western Germany, German participation in the international control of the Ruhr, the relation between Western Germany's economy and the rest of the Continent's, and so on. In short, what Bevin has proposed is a root-and-branch recasting of Western policy in Germany.

This is going pretty far. But Acheson undoubtedly intends to go even further, as a message which he sent to Bevin shortly before he left for Paris suggests. Acheson intends to discuss not only the future of Germany but the future of Western Europe. For in his message to Bevin, Acheson put the greatest possible emphasis on continental economic union. He told Bevin that the American Government believed it absolutely essential that the economies of the western European continental nations be meshed into each other.

He went on to say that he fully understood that the economy of Britain itself could not be integrated into that of the Continent. This important statement by Acheson reflects a major American policy decision, first reported in this space—that for all sorts of reasons British participation in a European economic union is impractical.

However, Acheson informed his British opposite number, he was disturbed by the apparently negative attitude which the British were taking to the continental union project. This attitude, he implied, was undermining the whole project. Active British leadership and support for the project were essential to its success.

THIS two-way exchange indicates the major issues with which the three Foreign Ministers must come to grips in Paris. The British and Americans are agreed that some way must be found to strengthen the West German regime against the challenge of the Soviet Union's East German puppet state. Yet the French (although Schuman himself does not categorically oppose an end to dismantling) deeply fear a revival of Germany.

The Americans propose both to restore the economy of western Europe, and to meet these French fears, by promoting an economic union of the Continent. This union would consist at first of Italy, France, and the Benelux countries. But ultimately Western Germany would be brought in as an integral part of the union, thus becoming part of a larger whole.

The French favor the union idea, and indeed have been its principal continental sponsors. But the French fear that a union including Germany but excluding Britain would be dominated in the end by Germany. As for the British, they want no part of the union for themselves, and, furthermore, most of the British policymakers privately consider the whole idea, to put it mildly, "unrealistic."

Thus a kind of circular impasse between the three major Western nations has come into being. It is this impasse which is occupying Acheson, Bevin and Schuman in Paris. Certainly it will not be broken in a mere two or three days. But at least the fact of the widening breach between the three allies is being faced, and the attempt to deal with it has begun.

Reviving Germany

By Marquis Childs

Anomalies In Allied Policy

COLOGNE, Germany.—Four years ago last March, American forces captured this industrial city on the Rhine. War correspondents who came in with the first contingent of military government found a stinking, smoldering ruin. Half the population of nearly 800,000 had fled across the Rhine and the other half existed in cellars and air-raid shelters.

Childs

With a fine, bold prophetic sweep I wrote at that time that Germany was finished as an industrial nation for 30 years. Viewing the shambles of what seemed a dead city, I went on to say that 30 years was too conservative and the question was whether the Germans ever could approach their former position.

That was the current view induced by the claims made in behalf of mass bombing of German cities. It was seconded by the hasty estimates of Army engineers who said on that first day at Cologne, for example, that 90 percent of the city's industry was destroyed.

You need to take only one look at Cologne today to see that this prophecy was slightly inaccurate. No complicated statistics are necessary. All you have to do is to see the lines of cars and big trucks passing over the four rebuilt bridges to get an idea of what has happened.

German production today is said to be about 80 percent of the prewar level. But it must be higher than that in Cologne.

THE TOTAL output of Cologne's diverse industry was recently estimated at a rate of $320,000,000 annually. More than 250 trains a day leave the still partially ruined Central Station. Cologne's factories are making every conceivable product—radios, refrigerators, chemicals, machine tools.

Ruins are still conspicuous in the business and residence areas. The nearly 600,000 inhabitants are desperately short of housing although apartments are being built or repaired at the rate of 400 a month.

But the extraordinary fact is the revival of German industry of which the Rhine Basin is an outstanding example. That fact lies back of the irritating, incessant argument over dismantling and, to a lesser degree, over decartelization.

Increasing German competition in Europe and in the world will not make French and British industrialists any happier. Significantly enough, while German production is at 80 percent of prewar, German exports are only about 60 percent.

The question of dismantling is a complicated and touchy one. Recently when American High Commissioner John J. McCloy expressed "personal views" carried in newspaper accounts suggesting the need to reexamine and perhaps revise the dismantling program, he stirred a hornet's nest in Great Britain.

Certainly reexamination would seem to be essential. Even the passing observer can see that there are phases of the program for eliminating Germany's war potential that are anomalous and absurd.

FOR EXAMPLE, a plant in Berlin was stripped once by the Russians. It was built up again with some aid from the West. Now it is being dismantled on order of the Western allies.

That particular example is brought up repeatedly by both German and Allied officials. It so happens that the plant makes the equipment essential to keep Berlin's battered sewage and water system functioning.

American aid through the Economic Cooperation Administration is going to construct, or reconstruct, plants to refine petroleum for the German internal economy. At the same time Germany's synthetic gasoline plants are being dismantled.

Granted that the tripartite control makes for almost insuperable difficulties. Yet again and again within the framework of America's own policy, not alone in Germany but in the rest of Europe, you come up against such anomalies. Too often the right hand is making one motion while the left hand moves in the opposite direction.

This seems to me to suggest the urgent need for a coordinated economic policy that will stop the conflicts and thereby eliminate the waste of energy and wealth going to contrary ends.

For the overworked Americans who are doing the day-to-day job it is almost impossible to get an over-all view of American aims as they relate to American effort in Europe. But such a view is supremely important at this halfway point in the attempt to build a partnership between Europe and America.

Chinese Reds Advance in 3 Directions

Chungking, Nov. 8 (AP).—Chinese Communist troops today advanced toward Chungking from the north, east and southeast, and signs of flight appeared in this uneasy capital.

Commercial Air Lines said all passages from Kunming were booked through November. Kunming, capital of Yunnan Province, is 400 air miles southwest of Chungking. It might be the next capital.

Here are three developments, reported by the Defense Ministry, which have Chungking jittery:

1. Red troops were moving down for an invasion of Chungking's Szechwan Province from the north. The province border is about 200 miles north of Chungking at the expected invasion point.

2. Communist troops neared Enshih, the provincial Nationalist capital of Hupeh Province, 180 air miles northeast of Chungking. The province's government fled to Lichwan, near Szechwan's border.

3. Communist troops have driven deeper into Kweichow, the province just south of Szechwan. They were headed for Sansui, about 210 miles southeast of Chungking and 125 miles east of Kweiyang, Kweichow's capital. Strong Communist forces also reached Kweichow's border, about 50 miles north of this front.

Delay Forecast In Recognition Of Red China

By Ferdinand Kuhn

Post Reporter

President Truman "emphatically" opposes early American recognition of the Communist government in China, informed sources reported yesterday.

The President remembers that the United States waited almost 16 years before starting diplomatic relations with the government of the Soviet Union. He sees no reason to hurry with recognition of Communist China, no matter what other countries may do.

Great Britain, India and Australia plan to recognize the Chinese Communists within two weeks, according to reports reaching Washington, but the President has no intention of letting the United States follow suit for many months, and perhaps longer.

To Consult Committees

For one thing, the Administration has promised to "consult" congressional foreign policy committees before recognizing the Communist regime at Peking. Congress will not meet for another two months, and a vocal section of both houses is dead set against recognition.

The President is also said to be angry over the imprisonment of Angus Ward, the American Consul in Communist-held Mukden, and over other high-handed actions against American citizens by the new Communist rulers of most of China.

His interest in China at the moment is said to be almost as intense as was his interest in Palestine two years ago. At that time the President, as the ultimate arbiter of American foreign policy, overrode sections of the State and War Departments that were blocking large-scale Jewish immigration into Palestine.

Regarding China, there is no apparent conflict between the President and his foreign policy advisors. Relations between Mr. Truman and Secretary Acheson have been closer and more trustful than between any President and Secretary of State for many years.

Acheson has said publicly again and again that American foreign policy is the President's policy. He has also said that American recognition must depend on whether a new regime (1) effectively controls its territory; (2) lives up to its country's international obligations, and (3) appears to have the support of the people it rules.

Tests Not Met

So far the Chinese Communists have not met these tests, as far as American officials can see.

At the Foreign Ministers' meeting that starts in Paris today, Acheson probably will not try to dissuade the British from recognizing Communist China. He discussed the problem fully and frankly with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin in September, and conceded that the two countries might have to act differently on recognition.

He also discovered last month that Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India semed anxious to recognize Communist China without delay.

The next move for the United States in formulating a China policy is expected to be the departure of Philip C. Jessup, head of the State Department's advisory committee on China, on a survey mission in the Far East.

Although a report from Lake Success, N. Y., yesterday said Jessup would leave soon after November 18, officials here said the date of his departure and his itinerary had not yet been finally decided.

It is still possible, one official said, that Jessup may not leave until after January 1.

In spite of all the signs to the contrary, Representative Lawrence Smith (R., Wis.), a bitter opponent of the Administration's China policy in the past, predicted yesterday that the United States would recognize Communist China before the end of this year.

"I make the further prediction," said Smith, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, "that as the result of such recognition, Secretary of State Acheson will eventually be forced to resign as Secretary."

To back up his double prediction, Smith cited coming "pressure" from the British and other foreign governments and alleged support for the Chinese Communists within the State Department.

Smith said American recognition "would bring on such a reaction from American citizens that President Truman would be forced to get rid of Secretary Acheson."

"It can be said as a verity," Smith added, "that once Mr. Truman has determined that our present policy in China has failed, it will become a political liability and he will change it. That means that Secretary Acheson would have to go."

international authority for control of the German Ruhr industrial area, most important in Europe.

2. The United States, Britain and the West Germans agree to ban German production of airplanes and explosives and limit German steel production.

France is preparing a list of production to be forbidden or strictly limited in the interests of security, informants said. French experts met separately this evening with American and British experts to draw up a final program for the conference.

Acheson arrived at Orly Airfield at 1:30 p. m., Washington time, with a staff of assistants. Bevin and Schuman were already there.

Acheson said that in his talk with Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky in Washington yesterday Vishinsky did not mention a possible meeting between President Truman and Soviet Premier Josef Stalin in Berlin. The right-wing Paris newspaper L'Augore-France Libre, reported today from New York that Vishinsky made such a proposal.

Acheson's team for the conference includes George W. Perkins, Assistant Secretary of State for European affairs; John J. McCloy, American High Commissioner to Germany; David K. E. Bruce, American Ambassador to France; Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassador to Britain, and W. Averell Harriman, roving Marshall Plan ambassador.

West German Steel Output 17 Pct. Below August Figure

Frankfurt, Nov. 8. (AP).—Western allied officials revealed today that West Germany's steel production is being slashed drastically even while American Senators and German steel tycoons are demanding that it be increased.

Steel output skidded in October for the third straight month, they said. It is now 17 per cent below August production.

Allied authorities said this year's output will fall far below the target set by occupation officials.

Even so the clamor to remove the ceiling on German steel production is growing. It comes from German industrial and political leaders—and from Americans.

German steel men called on the allies less than a month ago to raise the ceiling to 14,800,000 tons. The limit now is 11,100,000.

As they were making this demand, the steel barons were quietly calling on the German government for financial assistance to stockpile part of their output in order to avoid production slashes, allied officials said.

The government turned them down, but since late September the steel men have been shunting part of their output into stockpiles for want of markets, these officials said.

Last week a party of United States Senators went farther than the Germans. They indicated that they favored unlimited steel production in the Ruhr.

Russia Blames U. S., Britain For Atomic Control Impasse

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Russia formally proposed today that the United Nations put full blame on the United States and Britain for the East-West atomic deadlock.

In putting the resolution before the General Assembly's Special Political Committee, Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik said Russia's atomic blast was added reason why the U. N. should press for East-West agreement on atomic control.

The Soviet proposal, which was foredoomed to defeat by the Western-aligned U. N. majority, would call on the temporarily suspended Atomic Energy Commission to adopt the long-standing Soviet proposal for simultaneous prohibition of atomic bombs and establishment of an international control agency.

Analogy With Poison Gas

Malik compared the atomic problem to the earlier problem of outlawing gas warfare.

The Soviet U.N. trouble-shooter said the pact banning use of poison gas was made possible largely because nations on opposing sides of the political fence all had the weapon and all feared retaliation.

Then he added:

"It is because the secret of manufacture of atomic weapons is no longer the secret of one state but is known to many states that you find more reason to try and achieve the prohibition of atomic weapons and their exclusion from the national armaments of states."

The Soviet resolution would have the U. N. pass judgment on the atomic stalemate by concluding that the whole responsibility . . . "must be borne by the United States and Great Britain, who have systematically objected to adoption by the Atomic Energy Commission of an agreement prohibiting atomic weapons. . . ."

Answer to New Resolution

The resolution was Russia's answer to yesterday's Canadian-French proposal calling on all nations to surrender those sovereign rights that bar international atomic control.

The Canadian-French resolution drew the support of the United States and Britain, and appeared likely to be passed by the Assembly. But it was generally considered little more than a weapon of moral pressure that was unlikely to affect the atomic impasse in any practical way.

The opening segments of Malik's long speech followed the lines of the recently accelerated Soviet atomic peace offensive, which reached its high point in Sunday's Revolution Day speech by Deputy Prime Minister George M. Malenkov.

Repeats War Charges

Malik echoed Malenkov's insistence that Russia was concentrating on peaceful use of atomic energy while the West was preparing for a new war.

Russia, said Malik, is concentrating on "raising the standard of living, developing culture and science for the welfare of humanity."

The West, he added, is blocking prohibition of the atom bomb in order to insure that "the possibility be left for use of atomic energy for military purposes, taking into account that the atomic weapon may be the major means for implementation of the American plan for lording it over the whole world."

Bethesdans' Rescue Work Is Far Flung

Saving lives and alleviating human suffering are almost a religion with the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad.

Its 86 members say one reason they joined the squad, in addition to their desire to perform public service, is that it represents a fraternal organization to them, in which they give and receive fellowship.

The policy under which the 100 percent volunteer organization operates is described succinctly by Chief Donald Dunnington.

"We'll go anywhere in answer to any request for our services."

Far-Flung Activity

How closely the squad, which is housed in a brick building at 4800 Fairmont ave., Bethesda, lives up to its policy, is shown by the fact the men have responded to disaster calls at Annapolis, Waldorf and Laurel, Md., and were alerted for possible help during a flood at Romney, W. Va.

The longest trip made by the unit was to Hartford, Conn. This came about when a veteran en route from Florida to a Hartford mental hospital became disturbed and was removed from the train in Washington. The squad took him the rest of the way.

The only deviation from the squad's code, Dunnington explained, is when it is felt a unit closer to the scene of trouble could act more quickly. But, the chief added, "We respond, too."

Yeoman service was rendered by the squad November 1 when it responded to the Postoffice Building fire, and the plane tragedy at National Airport.

Just a Good Job

Although a spectacular example of the squad's operations, this day's work was considered by members just "a good job."

A call for additional oxygen equipment at 10:31 a. m. sent the squad's two ambulances and its specially designed crash truck speeding to the fire.

After assisting there, one vehicle had returned to the station and the others were en route, when news of the airport crash was flashed at 11:46.

Reached quickly by radio, the returning vehicles turned around and hurried to the airport. The third, picking up more members, roared from the station in hot pursuit.

Employing its wire crash baskets, the squad removed many of the bodies from the Potomac. Its 7500-watt generator was used to operate the public address system coordinating rescue efforts, and powered the broadcasting tape recorders for radiomen.

138 Calls in October

Following the two major calls, the squad responded before midnight to five more of a routine nature.

October, an average month according to Dunnington, brought 138 calls. The official report for 1948 lists a total of 912 requests for aid, of which only nine turned out to be false alarms.

Among the year's emergencies were 31 fires, 24 cases of poisoning, 109 automobile accidents, 37 obstetrical cases, 3 train wrecks, 2 plane crashes and 2 explosions.

The volunteer unit operates under a current budget of approximately $25,000. Funds are obtained principally by a door-to-door annual solicitation campaign. This year's drive for $15,000 is now under way, with $9000 already pledged.

Other Sources of Funds

Other sources of funds are a spring carnival which returned $5000 this year; a Christmas tree sale from which $1000 is expected, and donations by recipients of services. These average about $300 monthly, Dunnington said. One grateful donor gave a $250 boat.

A 35-member ladies auxiliary, headed by the chief's sister, Mrs. Carolyn Fisher, holds an annual horse show and promotes bingo and card parties. Proceeds go for station equipment and furnishings.

The squad is purchasing a third ambulance to add to its present $65,000 fleet, from proceeds of this fall's campaign. Delivery is expected the first of the year.

A purely local project, which evolved from an antiquated, one-man ambulance, driven by Dunnington in 1938, the squad was reorganized in 1945, and its development dates from that time.

Members come from all walks of life. Dunnington operates a surplus goods store, Assistant Chief Les Thompson is a motor patrolman for the Montgomery County Police, Captain James Fitzgerald is a warehouse manager.

Among the others, most of whom are employed in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area and are constantly available for duty, are plumbers, restaurant workers, cab drivers, college students, radio announcers, Government workers, salesmen, photographers.

Finances and administrative matters are handled by a board of directors made up of local businessmen, with Max B. Austell, an automobile agency manager, as president.

A full time equipment custodian and maintenance man is on duty during the day. At night seven men are assigned to sleep in the station.

Squadmen are proud of their modern equipment. They brag about such apparatus as their aluminum boat for river rescues, rope line throwing gun, special oxygen equipment which can be taken into a hole or up a high structure, portable iron lung, asbestos suits and heavy duty winch for raising wrecked automobiles.

ONE OF MANY DISTRESS CALLS ON WHICH RESCUE SQUAD HAS BEEN CALLED

Another Lee Appears on Montgomery Scene

By James B. Graham
Post Reporter

The recent acceptance by Blair Lee 3d of membership on the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission to succeed his father, Col. E. Brooke Lee, may be his first step in following the parental political career.

The strides taken by the redoubtable colonel (he holds a lieutenant colonel's commission in the Maryland National Guard) have brought him both praise and condemnation for nearly four decades, since he drove the campaign car for his father, Senator Blair Lee, in the summer of 1912.

At the same time, the elder Lee's resignation of the post he has filled for seven years may mark his reemergence as active head of Montgomery County's Democratic Party. Just two years ago he stepped down as party leader with the blunt comment:

"The days of let-Brooke-do-it are over."

This statement was made, however, during a Republican wave which swept the county in the 1946 elections and at a time when the Charter form of county government, since adopted by the voters, was gaining momentum.

The 57-year-old veteran of many political wars significantly ended his commission duties just prior to what promises to be a real old-time torchlight parade campaign of Democrats, Republicans and Charterites for control of the fledgling Charter government, now rounding out its first year.

While many observers see the younger Lee's assumption of the important commission post, together with his expected elevation to vice chairman, as the continuation of the "Lee Dynasty," fully as many others are willing to "let him show what he can do."

Nearly all admit he is a capable businessman and an ardent civic worker—both qualities needed for successful performance of his new duties.

The weekly Record, sole county paper to advocate adoption of the Charter, in an editorial Friday admitted that "political differences between this paper and the Lee family are well known and there is every reason to believe they will continue," but went on to say:

"There is also reason to believe that as time goes on the park and planning commission under the younger Lee's direction will become less and less of a political refuge for the county Democratic organization, and come closer to being a public agency sincerely dedicated to the welfare of the taxpayer."

Up to now the new commissioner's life at the age of 33 has in several respects resembled that of his father, which may be another indication that he will in time come to wear the mantle of "Party Chief" so snugly worn for many years by his father.

Both are Princeton graduates and both saw active war service. The elder Lee achieved a record of which he is justifiably proud in World War I on the battlefields of Europe. His son, a Navy lieutenant, was on active duty in the Atlantic in World War II.

Both are newspapermen. The colonel prepared his own news releases while commission vice chairman, a practice his son intends to continue. The son took over active management of the Maryland News, owned by his father, after returning to civilian life.

Both have the sincere conviction that Silver Spring is the greatest city in the State, and Montgomery the finest county.

Strikes Do Not Constitute an Emergency For Nation, Federal Economists Agree

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The coal and steel strikes have not so far seriously damaged the Nation's basic business activity, according to a consensus of Federal economists.

A series of interviews yesterday with top experts of Government departments concerned with national economic conditions revealed a virtually unanimous agreement on the point.

Almost two weeks ago President Truman declared at a news conference that we are a long away from a national emergency because of the strikes. Economists interviewed yesterday say the President's remarks still stand.

In brief, they feel that if the remaining steel companies settle the strike this week—a reasonable assumption—there will be very little production lost that cannot be made up.

Meanwhile, the stoppages have not affected the basic factor in the economy. Personal income, prices, sales and production have remained firm except in the direct areas of the strikes.

As for the coal strikes, most economists feel that even with renewed steel production, supplies are ample for almost all needs for another three to four weeks. Only a sharp change to cold weather would make effects felt sooner.

Further, they believe that the coal strike will be settled within that time. Their faith is based on the fact that no coal strike in years has been prolonged beyond the day when it hurt the Nation's economy deeply—not merely in spots.

It was also learned yesterday that the single most pessimistic official pronouncement about the strikes—a forecast by the Federal Reserve Board that industrial production would drop more than 11 percent from September to October—is now recognized by the Federal Reserve Board itself as a misleading statement.

In the first place, according to officials, production in some fields as not dropped as much as was expected.

Second—and much more important—the board's index is so framed that the data on production of pig iron is weighted as if it included steel fabrication, in the plumbing, heating, hardware, tools, cutlery, stove and other industries.

Thus, when strikes cut ingot production from about 84 percent of capacity to only about 9 percent, the index operated in such a way as to show that an equivalent decline took place in steel fabrication. Actually, there was no such drop.

Inventories among the fabricators were high, and their production activity continued at a high rate. The forecast of a more than 11-percent drop last month, therefore, appears to have been substantially overstated.

Federal Reserve officials are aware of the difficulty with the index—America's foremost barometer of economic activity, considered the "bible" of industry. They are considering revisions to prevent such misleading deductions.

In discounting gloomy appraisals of the strike's effects, economists do not deny that great hardships and economic declines have occurred in steel and coal-producing areas.

Sales have fallen off and obviously also payrolls.

But at the conclusions of the steel stoppages, they see the industry running for at least three months at from 95 to 100 percent of capacity, instead of about 80 percent, which would have been the case if there had been no strike.

Much of the lost payrolls will be made up, either by overtime or the hiring of additional men, previously laid off. With the possible exception of automobiles, other industries which have slowed down for lack of steel will make up the production lag in coming months, most economists think.

U. S. Mediating

Plumbers Settle With Laborers

A strike-threatening dispute between AFL plumber laborers and their employers was settled yesterday at a Federal mediation session.

The subcontractors agreed to a 5-cents-an-hour increase in wages—presently $1.50 an hour—beginning Monday, and 5 cents more per hour beginning January 1. The new contract, covering some 300 union laborers, will run to July 1, 1951, with the wage clause renegotiable after a year if economic conditions warrant it.

The union had demanded a 10-cents-an-hour pay raise and had planned to walk out last Monday on all commercial construction in this area. The laborers postponed the strike at the request of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

2 Steel Firms End Strikes

age of 65—from three of the four largest steelmakers. Bethlehem, No. 2, with 80,000 employes, set the pattern for the industry October 31 by agreeing to finance the entire cost of a pensions program (less the contribution from Social Security) and to share the cost of a social insurance program.

The biggest basic steel company of them all—U. S. Steel, with 170,000 employes—was still reported to be holding out firmly, but it was believed that the corporation would soon join the parade soon. A dozen other of the large steelmakers were reported to be negotiating with the union along the lines of the Bethlehem formula.

Jones & Laughlin agreed to the Bethlehem formula almost to the last detail. J&L, like Bethlehem, had already had a noncontributory pension system in effect, providing average monthly payments of $48 plus social security. The new pension will provide a minimum of $100 a month for fully qualified employes. The new social insurance program, costing 5 cents an hour, will be paid for 50-50 by the company and employes, as in the Bethlehem plan.

Republic, which had no pension system, also agreed to the Bethlehem pension program. Its new social insurance program differs in that benefits of its present program are expanded. Employes will continue to contribute 3½ cents an hour, and the company will pay 2½ cents an hour.

As the steel strike, begun October 1, appeared to be near an end, the Federal Government concentrated its industrial peace efforts on the bituminous coal strike.

Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, invited the union and representatives of the operators to meet with him here Thursday for ducers and yesterday wish representatives of the H. C. Frick Coke a joint mediation session. Ching issued the bid after conciliation talks on Monday with the Southern pro- Co., largest coal subsidiary of U. S. Steel.

The Federal chief conciliator will also hold a session today with leaders of the Northern, Midwestern, and Western coal industries to explore their stand in the long stalemate.

Highly placed Administration sources believe that the President will intervene in the coal strike, probably with a fact-finding board, if mediation efforts fail to show progress by the end of this week.

In Chicago, John L. Lewis canceled the second day's meeting of his 200-man policy committee, called together for purposes yet undisclosed.

Seabiscuit Runs Against Handicap

By Richard L. Coe

THIS IS A BUSY WORLD, I grant you, with all sorts of chores which need immediate tackling, but among the most overlooked pitiable causes I give you the plight of screen writers assigned to write movies in which animals appear.

Such a tour of duty invariably sends the writer into depths of despond about the human race. His inferiority complex becomes hopelessly inflated. So inflated does he become with the benign virtues of the horse, dog, bird or, so help me, rabbit, that his misery at being a member of the merely human race unhinges his mind. The best he can manage, if he's thinking about animals, are stiff, maiche figures which resemble the bipeds only insofar as such figures as Shirley Temple, Barry Fitzgerald and Lon McCallister at their stockiest, resemble human beings.

Latest victim of this self-pitying disease is John Taintor Foot, who has written a screen play about human beings while touching on the biography of a horse. In "The Story of Seabiscuit," Taintor is allowing us some fine racing shots of the great Biscuit, but the best he's been able to do for the human beings is to give us the set of people on view at the Warner.

Fitzgerald is a trainer who's been brought over from Ireland to Kentucky with his niece, who is studying to be a nurse, Miss Temple. Shirley saw her jockey brother killed and never, never, never will she love another man who rides a horse. Which she tells Lon McAllister, who, natch, is a jockey, immediately in love with Shirley, and who seems to be the only attractive young male in the entire horse circuit.

Barry, meanwhile, settles on just the horse he thinks will be a winner, which seems to be his job since he was brought over from Ireland for just that purpose. Then his employer reminds him that he's not running this outfit, so Biscuit is released from the farm. Fortunately, Barry develops a deathly cold and has to take a job in California, where the Howards allow him to buy Biscuit. Triumph comes, as always it comes and truly came to Biscuit, whose speedy zeal once financed a new pair of shoes for me.

The track shots are good, the film using several of Biscuit's own races in color and black and white. His Santa Anita Handicap of 1940 is a climax and a good one.

Precisely how closely the picture's yarn follows the people in Seabiscuit's life I wouldn't know, and I can't locate Shirley Povich to set me straight. The facts may well be.

But in depicting his people and situations, Writer Foote's imagination has been as hogtied as all writers' are when seeking a story to fit an animal's friends. Boy meets girl. Boy loses girl. Boy get girl.

Which is very sweet and I'm glad, glad, glad. Still, when going to see "The Story of Seabiscuit" or the story of any other noble creature, I'd much appreciate not getting the story of love, loye, love but getting down to business about the laudable beasties.

OUT OF CHARACTER—Denise Darcel, once "Miss Paris" and making her American film debut as the only feminine character in "Battleground," will be on tap tonight for the film's gala invitational preview at the Capitol. Others attending tonight from the cast, less photogenic but more famed as stars, include George Murphy and John Hodiak

TONIGHT'S "Premiere Preview" of "Battleground," before a distinguished invited audience at the Capitol, was preceded yesterday afternoon by a star-studded luncheon of the Women's National Press Club.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

JIM TATUM, the Maryland coach, has sounded many a plaintive note during the week of an approaching game, but yesterday he struck something new in mournful poses. Of unbeaten Boston University, Tatum is lamenting, "They've been so hot all season they've made B. U. fans out of my Maryland scouts."

Tatum's men have been tailing Boston U. in its last four games, preparing intelligence for Maryland's foray into Boston on Saturday. "They've been so charmed by Buff Donelli's team, I'm afraid they'll switch allegiance," says Tatum.

POVICH

Long ago, Tatum says, he was disabused of the suspicion that B. U. was a one-man team geared to the over-all talents of Harry Agganis, the sophomore quarterback. "You concentrate on stopping Agganis, and you get killed by Whelan, Luker and Kent in that B. U. backfield."

Tatum is speculating that if his Marylanders get four touchdowns, they might hold B. U. to a tie, but there is an outstanding difference of opinion on that score. The bookies vouschafe that you can have Boston U. and six points.

AT MARYLAND, there is a special respect for a Donelli-coached team. If Buff isn't the best coach in the business, he makes it a close fit," said Tatum, "and on one count he has no master. He can get more deception into a club's offense than any other man. When you play one of his teams, it isn't a question of tackling the ball-carrier; you have to find him first."

Donelli brought his Duquesne team to North Carolina in 1942, Tatum remembers, and gave the Tarheels a horrible time of it. "On the first six plays of the game, our lads wound up tackling all four of Donelli's backs and every tackler thought he had the ball-carrier. He comes closer to making the ball disappear than any coach who ever operated."

Tatum admits he has been forewarned about Agganis. "The first reports I had were that Agganis made a good team out of B. U. He must be the hottest sophomore that ever stepped on a football field. And then my men realized that Agganis had a lot of stuff to hand off to, halfbacks who can move with the ball or catch a pass. It's the kind of a team that Peahead Walker is always talking about—one that can run with the ball, pitch it and catch it."

HE'D GIVE his right arm, at least up to the elbow, for a quarterback like Agganis, Tatum was saying. "Transplant him to Maryland, and I'd like our chances against Army. I don't want to compare my quarterbacks with Agganis. It would be unfair. He's a dream, 195-pounder who can do everything. My kids, Tucker and Lavine, are smallish and do a good job on pure blood and guts."

Maryland, with its split-T formation, on Saturday for the first time will be meeting a team that can out-complex Tatum's complicated attack. Donelli's B. U. outfit, though largely sophomore, has been confounding all opposition with razzle-dazzle offensive formations. They rarely line up in the same way twice.

Sometimes they operate from the closed-T, but they're as apt to go into a wide, split-T. Occasionally, Donelli has them in a winged-T formation, and sometimes he sends a flanker out wide. With the defense, it becomes a guessing contest, and one of the reasons why the Terriers can suddenly explode with an all-the-way thrust after being stopped on earlier downs.

BOSTON TOWN has lucked into what may be the best ball game in the East on Saturday, with the Notre Dame-Carolina affair in New York having apparently collapsed as a tight contest. With defeats by Tennessee and L. S. U. having exposed Carolina as run-of-mine opposition, the Irish are now 28-point favorites for what was scheduled as a feature game.

Boston U. is riding high, with an average of 40 points scored by game. The opposition hasn't been much, but even that factor can't quite gainsay the power B. U. has been unleashing, with Agganis averaging nearly three touchdown passes a game and the Terriers demonstrating that they can go on the ground as well.

Maryland is apt to drive Boston U. into the air, though. The Terrapins have taken rank as the second-best defensive team in the Nation against a ground game, and that Maryland line may have no superior in the East. It may be the irresistible force against the immovable object. In such cases, the phsyicists say, both go up in vapor. That, at least, would be a new twist in a football game.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 8.—Salvatore J. Cicero, Baltimore trainer, was suspended for 10 years by the Maryland Racing Commission today as the aftermath of a Pimlico horse-doping case.

The verdict came after stable helper "Indian Joe" Lourin, testified at the hearing that he held the horse while Cicero "spiked" the animal with a hypodermic needle. The horse was Rough Ordy, $40 winner of the second race on October 28.

Cicero took the stand and denied the charges.

Rough Ordy Got Two Shots

However, Lourin, in response to questions by H. Courtenay Jenifer, commission chairman, stated emphatically:

"The mare was spiked. I held the mare. He needled her with a hypodermic which he had.

"Ten minutes before she went in the smokehouse (the receiving barn) he gave her two shots, one in each side. He got the solution out of a bottle, which he put in the hypodermic.

"He stuck the horse in the chest with the needle. He didn't talk to me about it in advance.

"He said Nick the Greek was a big gambler and bet on her—a couple of thousand dollars.

"If she wins, then I get a stake.

"That night I get $3 off of Sal.

"The next day a follow gave me $25 and a shirt."

The witness then identified the "fellow" as being one of two men whom he said were named Nick and Mike.

Lourin also declared that at the time of the actual administering of the needle to the horse, Robert Hough, groom, had closed both stall doors and stood outside with his back against them.

Cicero, testifying in his own behalf, stated:

"I did not administer any drug, nor was any administered in my presence.

"I did not instruct anyone to do so, and certainly did not know that any had been administered."

During his test, Cicero declared that, in company with an agent of the Thoroughbred Racing Bureau, whom he identified as Foy R. Allen, that he had searched the living quarters of Joe Lourin, several days after the race, and had found two capsules.

One, Cicero said, was found in the pocket of Lourin's shirt. The second was found in a box labeled quinine, in Lourin's trunk.

Subsequently, Cicero stated, one of the capsules was found to have contained benzedrine.

Capital Classic Set Friday

West Virginia State, defending champions in the Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and North Carolina College clash in the eighth annual Capital Classic at Griffith Stadium Friday night at 8:30.

The North Carolina Eagles provided the upset of Classic history in 1946 when they edged the then undefeated Tennessee State College team to knock it out of the national championship.

West Virginia is undefeated this year in six games while North Carolina has three wins in four conference starts to date.

West Virginia State stars Ed Wickliffe, 240-pound tackle; Clarence Clark, end, and Charlie Fairfax, halfback speedster. All are seniors.

North Carolina has a young team with sophomores and juniors predominating. Sam Yett, 190-pound halfback, is one of the outstanding Negro college backs in the country.

Clayton, Rosado Box at Turner's

Four eight-round bouts will be presented on next Monday night's boxing card at Joe Turner's arena.

Marshall Clayton, former All-Army lightweight titleholder, faces Bobby Rosado, Puerto-Rican born boxer now fighting out of New York in one match already signed. The others will be announced later.

Clayton needs little introduction to Washington fans, having won three bouts at Griffith Stadium this summer, and a few weeks ago he fought a draw at Turner's with Earl Priestly, of Camden, N. J.

What Can G. W. Do With Duke This Time?

LAST YEAR DUKE swamped George Washington by 62-0. Saturday these teams meet again, at Griffith Stadium. Can GW win?

Answer that one correctly and you may be well on your way to winning The Washington Post's Pick-the-Winner Contest this week.

Each week the winner of the contest will receive two tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 26, and an all-expenses-paid trip to this game for two persons.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week also will receive four tickets to a major college or professional game in this area. The Washington Post will select this game.

The contest each week will include 21 major college games. Each contestant will select the winner (or tie) of 20 of these games. On the twenty-first game, each contestant will give the "Probable Score."

Kid Star Has 48 Points in 12 Minutes of Play

By Bill Gilbert

PRESIDENT TRUMAN takes his afternoon walks mostly for exercise and fresh air. But one afternoon he happened by the Ellipse and saw some good football, too.

Little Jimmy Susha, a 4-foot, 11-inch, 83-pound halfback on the Georgetown Boys' Club 80-pound football team, was on the field that day.

It was his team's homecoming and Mr. Truman's presence added to the pressure. Jimmy was up to the occasion, however, and scored three touchdowns to pace his team to a 27-7 win over the Eastern Branch. Two of the touchdowns were on 50-yard runs and the third on a 30-yard pass from Mike King.

HE'S LEADING the Washington Boys' Club Football Conference as well as the 80-pound division in scoring. He has played in four games and has eight touchdowns for 48 points.

His coach, Joe Branzell, has only used him for 12 minutes in the four games. Joe boasts that Jimmy needs only a couple of minutes to give his team a comfortable margin.

Georgetown uses the single wing with a lot of reverses for deception. That's where Jimmy fits into Branzell's schemes. "He's fast on his feet and a good, quick thinker. He's shifty and deceptive and on some of those reverses, if the opposition is fooled for a moment, that's when Jimmy slips away."

JIMMY CAN CATCH passes, too—long or short. "Just like a pro," Branzell says.

Football isn't Jimmy's only sport. He plays baseball and gets on base with his bunts and then steals second at every opportunity, which is pretty often. He's a basketball player, too, and sets up many a play with his quick mind. Along with all this, Jimmy somehow finds time to do a little boxing.

Jimmy is 13 years old and is the son of Al Susha, a softball umpire in the area. He lives at 2140 N st., nw. and is in the ninth grade at Gordon Junior High. When he graduates, Western High will get a whale of a prospect.

Ironically, Jimmy didn't play for Georgetown Saturday against Merrick. He had to go to New York to see his uncle get married. They probably strapped him in his seat in the church, because when scatback Jimmy sees an opening as wide as that church aisle, he's off to the races.

He Holds Ball 25 Seconds, Then Sinks Payoff Shot

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Thin Jim Pollard of the Minneapolis Lakers used his wits last night to grab a 68-66 decision from right under the nose of Washington's bewildered Caps at Uline Arena.

For the smartest play of the season, Pollard came into possession of the ball 30 seconds before the final buzzer.

The score stood 66-all.

Halbert Shadows Pollard

All 10 members of both teams were concentrated in that small area 20 feet out from the basket.

Directly in front of Pollard stood Chuck Halbert, 6-feet-9 defensive stalwart of the Caps.

For 25 seconds Pollard stood in his tracks, sometimes disdainfully with the ball resting on his hips, watching the clock and watching Halbert for any aggressive move that Halbert might make.

Before Pollard finally made his move, every one of the 3,444 spectators knew what his strategy was.

Pollard Feints . . . Lets Go

He was going to hold that ball until the last few seconds, take one shot and gamble on it being good for the win.

With less than five seconds left, Pollard feinted toward Halbert as if he (Pollard) would drive for the basket. Halbert's reflex action carried him back just far enough for Pollard to have room for an unguarded jump shot at the basket.

The guy was as relaxed as an Old Pro—as relaxed as Joe DiMaggio making a routine play in the outfield.

Up went the ball off Pollard's left hand. Straight into the net it sailed with a tell-tale swish.

And the Caps were whipped.

A few seconds later, after the Caps had made one last desperate heave at their basket, members of the Minneapolis team rushed for Pollard and climbed all over him in high glee for making the smartest play of the young season.

Caps Appeared 'In'

The tide of battle had shifted in the last two minutes. Washington seemed almost home with a 66-62 lead fashioned on a field goal by Nick Nichols and a tap-in by Dick O'Keefe.

Herman Schaefer of the Lakers took a pass from big George Mikan to cut the lead to a basket and the Caps tried freezing tactics.

They weren't successful when the ball went astray and Tony Jaros raced half the floor to take a long pass and stick the tying goal with less than a minute left.

That set the stage for cagy Mr. Pollard, and his heroics inflicted the first loss of the season on the Caps.

The defeat was particularly hard to take for the Caps because they gave 6-foot 10-inch George Mikan one of his worst nights in pro basketball.

Playing spectacularly, Jack Nichols outscored Mr. Basketball, 19 to 11, and didn't allow him a field goal after he got three in the first period. Halbert spelled Nichols briefly on defense.

The Caps fell behind at halftime, 40-36, although Mikan got only one point in the second period. In the third period, he failed to score and made only two fouls in the fourth.

Best Minneapolis could do in that third session was score nine points while the Caps were gathering 19. Johnny Norlander, Chuck Gilmur, Nichols, Freddie Scolari and Dick Schulz played the entire 12 minutes.

But Pollard couldn't be stopped as completely as Mikan. He couldn't be stopped at all at the end and wound up with 21 points for his night's work.

In the C. Y. O. preliminary, Blessed Sacrament defeated St. Dominic's, 37-26.

'Shotton My Pilot in '50,' Rickey Says

By Joe Reichler

Brooklyn, Nov. 8 (AP).—Branch Rickey, Brooklyn Dodger president, today reengaged Burt Shotton as manager of the club.

In announcing the reappointment of the 65-year-old Shotton, Rickey simply said: "Burt Shotton is my manager for 1950."

Rickey did not disclose the terms nor the length of Shotton's contract, which incidentally has not yet been signed. However, it was believed that Shotton was hired for one year at the same salary he received for leading the Dodgers to the pennant last year—$25,000.

Following the World Series there was considerable speculation that Burt would retire. It was reported that the unusual amount of second guessing which followed the Brooks' drastic defeat had soured Shotton on managing.

Did Shotton ever have any doubts about returning, and if so, what changed his mind?

"It could be," he replied. "But I had lots of time to think things over. I got some very nice letters from the press. When I learned that there were other people who thought of my welfare besides myself, I decided to return to Brooklyn."

Rickey disclosed that he had offered the job to Shotton a month ago, but Burt had asked for time to think it over.

"It was not until three days ago that I got his answer," Rickey said. "I phoned him and told him that I intended to hold a press conference today and asked him to give me his answer. It was not until then that he told me he would accept the manager's job."

Seeks Upset Friday

Western's Big Chance Comes In Annual Tiff With Wilson

Western High's unsung Red Raiders make their last stand Friday against Wilson, and they're confident it will be a winning one. The showdown game is set for Central Stadium at 3 p. m.

If the Raiders can upset their arch rivals, they will keep alive their chance for the Southern Division Interhigh title.

If the Raiders lose they are eliminated, and Wilson has practically a shoo-in, needing only to beat little Chamberlain for the honor of representing the South against the North for the city title.

The South-North Interhigh classic is set for the night of November 25 at Griffith Stadium with The Washington Post and the Board of Education teaming as sponsors, and the Almas Temple Shriners presenting the championship trophy.

While Wilson has busily racked up six wins in seven games this season, Western has won only two out of six. However, comparative records do not dampen the Raiders' hopes.

Their big argument is, "We walloped Wilson, 28-0, last year. Both teams have practically the same personnel. We can lick Wilson again."

Fact is, Wilson hasn't beaten Western in three years despite Wilson's reputedly superior manpower.

The Raiders have been the No. 1 hardluck high school team this year. They lost to St. John's, 7-0, and Eastern, 7-6, on blocked kicks. They were giving Washington-Lee of Arlington a terrific battle for one half, when they lost their three best backs on injuries and bowed, 34-6.

Western's other loss was to Anacostia, 19-0, but the Raiders beat Roosevelt and Chamberlain.

Dale Larsen, Raiders' 138-pound punt return artist, Dick Casey, their line socking fullback, Paul Weinstein, their sophomore passing star, and Jim O'Leary, who kicks the ball a mile, will be ready for Wilson.

Friday will be a busy day for the Central Stadium, for at 11 a. m., Central meets St. John's. Central is unbeaten in seven games, while St. John's has a 4-2-1 record.

Girls Battle On Turner Show

A four-girl match headlines tonight's wrestling show at Turner's Arena. Celia Blevins and Nell Stewart will meet Shirley Strimble and Ellen Olsen in the feature match.

Marvin Mercer tangles with Steve Karras in the semiwindup while other preliminaries pit Laverne Baxter against Barney Barnard and Joe Kowalski against Jack LaRue. First bout is at 8:30.

Area Player of the Week

Whitey Michels of Virginia

His Passes Beat Penn Saturday

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

IN THE football brochure, The Washington Post's player of the week is described as "a fair passer, our only experienced quarterback."

Based on his performance against Pennsylvania Saturday, Whitey Michels, of the University of Virginia, has good grounds for a libel suit against Dick Turner, the Cavalier publicist who wrote it.

Michels—full name is Richard Michels—was an All-American quarterback on Franklin Field—that's what Penn Coach George Munger said—as the undefeated Virginians slapped down the two-touchdown favored Quakers by two touchdowns.

His coach, Art Guepe, a great back at Marquette 12 years ago, said he called only one bad play. Greasy Neale, Philadelphia Eagles coach, was not quite as complimentary: "I thought he made two bad calls, but if any pro quarterback makes only two bad calls we consider him a genius, so I guess Michels was great Saturday.'

Until Saturday, it wasn't necessary for Michels to pass, so good was Virginia's running game. The 22-year-old cottontop from Charleston, W. Va., had the team made, so to speak. Whenever the Cavaliers needed a yard or a long gain, he simply caled on Fullback Johnny Papit and Papit responded.

Saturday, however, it was going to be different. The Cavaliers expected, and they were right, that the Quakers would mass their defenses to stop the Nation's leading rusher. So Michels just passed 'em silly.

He completed 9 out of 12 for 123 yards, threw one touchdown aerial and set another in motion with a pass.

But Michels' quarterbacking was more magnificent than his precision passing. He had the Quakers guessing all afternoon and they didn't guess right once.

In the first quarter, when the Cavaliers recovered a fumble on the Penn 33-yard line. Penn lined up in an eight-man line, expecting smashes by Papit. But what they got was a lulu of a pass by Michels to Steve Osisek in the flat for a 32-yard gain. Two plays later, Buddy Shoaf crashed over for a touchdown and the Cavaliers were en route to their first victory over Penn in 59 years.

Greasy Neale Says 'He's Great'

On the last play of the first half, Michels was hit by three Penn linemen trying to pass. He suffered a painful partial shoulder separation and had to be carried off the field. Doctors administered novacaine.

He was back in action, as sprightly and slick as ever, when the second half got under way.

Michels became Virginia's varsity quarterback last November—by forfeit. Joe McCary, the regular signal-caller, was injured and the 155-pound Michels stepped in.

He's been in the driver's seat ever since and the only thing that will remove him is graduation, which comes next June, unfortunately.

Pirates Buy Schenz From Bums

Pittsburgh, Nov. 8 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates bought "infield insurance" today in the person of Hank Schenz. The former St. Paul second baseman was purchased from the Brooklyn Dodgers for a "nominal cash sum." The 28-year-old Aurora, Ind., resident batted .345 this year for the American Association pennant winners.

Little Harp Nosed Out in $46 Payoff

Pimlico, Nov. 8.—Today's high temperature wasn't the only reason favorite players were hot under their collars. The public choices were as cold as a well digger's feet as longshots popped with regularity on the Tuesday program.

The successful moon shooting carried right into the King Heather Purse, the afternoon's feature. R. R. McClarin's New Oxford was the winner to the tune of a $46.20 win mutuel. Ridden by Apprentice Nolan Griffith of Charles Town, Marlboro and Hagerstown fame, New Oxford hung a half-length defeat on Shamrock Stable's Little Harp, the favorite.

Third money in the field of nine went to E. A. Nicodemus' Laran. The winner was clocked in 1.10 4/5, only three fifths of a second over the track mark for six furlongs and shared by The Pincher and Istan.

Finnegan Rides Double

New Oxford and Little Harp fought it out virtually from start to finish with New Oxford drawing out going into the wire. The others in the sprint field were never dangerous as far as first money was concerned.

The card began with Trainer A. J. Cochran and Jockey James Finnegan figuring in both ends of a $119.40 pay-off on the 6-1 daily double combination. Mrs. Cochran's Lictor won the first at $18.60, Finnegan keeping the 7-year-old in front all the way. He brought A. J. Poinsett's Star Conquest from behind to take the second at $24.

The longshot habit spread into the steeplechase. Refugio, an 11-year-old, came to life with a bang for the Adams family. With Frank doing the riding, the veteran got home at a $20.40 mutuel.

Red Design Won by Nose

C. H. Schied's Maryland Day, disqualified for bumping in the Pimlico Futurity, was installed the favorite in the fourth race but along came D. A. Rosenbaum's Red Design to take a nose decision on the wire and once more the results board sagged, this time with a $67.60 mutuel.

Nor did the longshot parade end there. Tacaro Briar won the fifth race for Robert L. Hall, jr., of Marlboro. The son of Neddie took it in the last jump and paid $13.40. Arnold Hanger's Rialto the choice, was third behind Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Briar White.

Walter M. Jeffords' Green Baize was the beaten favorite in the seventh as Mrs. Mowsley's Merry Risk won at $8.40 in a photo with M. Kahlbaum's Risk A Whirl.

The shutout of the choices was complete when Radiate 2d was out of the money in the eighth race, won by Watson Elliott's King Chatter, a $17.80 shot ridden by Jack Robertson.

CORRECTION

Denver, Georgetown's opponent Saturday, was credited with beating Oklahoma A. & M., 48-2, in The Washington Post's table of records yesterday. Actually, Denver lost by that score.

Substitution Wins National Show Championship

Tivnan Surprises as Scouts Overlook Him

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

FROM THIRD-STRING tailback to star of the team in one week—that's the story of George Washington's Jack Tivnan.

The 19-year-old sophomore was such an inconspicuous member of the Colonials until last Saturday that Maryland's scouting report didn't even mention his name.

And all that long-legged Tivnan did was gain 109 yards running and passing against the Terps, second best defensive team in the Nation. He completed nine out of 20 passes, pitched for one touchdown and set up another.

After the 40-14 Maryland victory, Terp Coach Jim Tatum generously proclaimed, "Tivnan is the best off-tackle runner I've seen since Beattie Feathers was going great guns at Tennessee. Duke will have to stop him to stop G. W. next Saturday."

The Colonials and Blue Devils clash Saturday in a 2:30 p. m. Southern Conference game at Griffith Stadium.

The Terps' oversight regarding Tivnan is excusable. Tivnan was on the field only for the kickoff play against Washington and Lee, and he sat out the entire Lafayette game.

"GW really surprised me with that boy," said Tatum. "He had only the narrowest kind of opening in our line to break through, but he did it by his smart cutting at just the right time."

THE 6-FOOT 1-INCH, 175-pound Tivnan was last year's freshman team star. But when he reported for varsity practice, he had to step in line behind Andy Davis and Johnny Shullenbarger, No. 1 and 2 tailbacks.

"It's tough trying to beat out those two fellows," said Tivnan, "but if I can break into the game long enough for my initial nervousness to wear off, I'll do all right."

Last week, when the Terps pinned down Davis and Shullenbarger, Tivnan got his chance and fulfilled his promise.

Jack is a native of Wayland, Mass., and played on the small high school team there. Roger Antaya, GW end coach, who lives in nearby Cohasset, Mass., spotted Jack and carted him to Washington for the Colonials.

All Fire Takes Open Jumper Title

By John Chandler

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Substitution, 9-year-old bay gelding from Virginia, won the working hunter championship at the sixty-first National Horse Show today by winning the $1000 working hunter stake at Madison Square Garden.

The gelding, owned by Mrs. John T. Maloney, Warrenton, Va., was conformation hunter champion of the 1947 show. He was injured after that, and has been missing from the show ring until late this year. The winner was ridden by Miss Ellie Wood Keith, University of Virginia.

The prized open jumping championship was won by All Afire, aged brown gelding owned by H. E. Millard of Annville, Pa., after a jumpoff with the Cardy Farm's Atomic.

Gold Lode, 8-year-old bay gelding owned by Vernon G. Cardy, Val David, Quebec, won the conformation hunter championship. Gold Lode got third place in the Alfred B. MacLay Memorial Challenge Trophy, $2000 hunter stake, to win the overall title with a total of 28 points.

Portmaker, 9-year-old brown gelding, won the MacLay hunter stake and took the reserve championship, with a total of 23½ points. Portmaker, owned by Dr. and Mrs. Alvin I. Kay, Bethesda, Md., was the 1946 conformation hunter champion, and was reserve in both 1947 and 1948.

Seven horses had a chance to win the open jumper crown during the final day of the show, but several never got into the final event due to an excess of faults in a morning preliminary. One was the 3-year-old pinto gelding, Ping Pong, owned by Morton W. Smith, Middleburg, Va.

Ping Pong had been tied with Sun Beau, from the stable of Sterling Smith, Ravenna, Ohio, for the lead in the jumping race with 12 points up until today. However, Ping Pong had 10 faults in the preliminary, and Sun Beau had eight. Sun Beau jumped in the final stake, but had 18½ additional faults tonight, principally because of two refusals.

Substitution was the third Virginia horse to win a championship today. Really Rugged took the young hunter crown, and Feudist Knight the three-gaited amateur championship stake. Watch Me, owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry, Cobham, Va., captured the pony championship Sunday.

Substitution also took the working hunter preliminary championship, with horses shown at a walk, trot, canter and gallop. With all classes completed in the working hunter division, Substitution wound up with a total of 21½ points.

The reserve honor went to Fitzrada, owned by Col. and Mrs. H. H. Pohl, Leesburg, Va. Fitzrada took second in the preliminary, and had a total of 13 points toward the show championship.

Ball Confident in His Debut As Head Man of Redskins

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Quiet confidence marked the opening of Herman Ball's reign as head coach of the Washington Redskins yesterday.

In contrast to last February's gaudy debut of John E. (Billick) Whelchel, whose retirement "by mutual agreement" was announced Monday, Ball's first day at the helm was a disappointment.

But there was no disappointment with his selection for the job.

Redskin players congratulated him boisterously before taking the week's first workout at Griffith Stadium. Fans and the press seem to be solidly behind the calm T-formation student who worked his way up from part-time scout to head man in six years.

Ball himself, although starting his career with the unenviable job of trying to stop the Philadelphia Eagles here Sunday, was as confident as anyone.

"I'm not going to make a lot of major changes," he said, "but there are quite a few adjustments I want to make. The first thing, though, is to dust off every play in our files and do something about beating the Eagles."

Indicating that he will be no "crying towel" coach, Ball even hinted that the Redskins might come up with an offense which would go against the hulky Philadelphia line, a defense that would at least slow down Thompson, Van Buren and Pritchard, etc.

Washington still leads the National Football League in total yards gained after Sunday's 27-14 triumph over the Pittsburgh Steelers . . . The Redskins have gained 2750 yards while the Eagles, the class of the league, rank only third with 2576 . . . Although Sammy Baugh dropped behind the New York Bulldogs' Bobby Layne in the passing race, the Redskins moved into leadership of the aerial department with 1654 yards gained, a single yard more than the Chicago Bears . . .

The identity of the three college players drafted by the Redskins at Monday's meeting in Philadelphia will not be revealed for several weeks, it was announced . . . But it is known that at least two of them are linemen and none is a big "name." . . . The autographing championship held by Baugh for so long was usurped last Sunday by Harry Dowda, who was on the field after Baugh had gone to the showers . . . The Eagles should be 30-point favorites over the Redskins Sunday, but just try and get it.

Recreation Board Receives Leoffler's Publinx Figure

The long-drawn-out question of operation and control of the District's public golf courses had a brief inning at the D. C. Recreation Board meeting yesterday.

It was disclosed that the board's special golf committee met recently with Elwood Seal, counsel for the S. G. Leoffler Co., current concessionaire.

Seal made an "informal offer" for Leoffler which estimated the figure needed to buy out the publinx impressario here since 1921.

The committee yesterday declined to discuss Seal's offer, saying it needed "further study."

Months ago, S. G. Leoffler told The Washington Post that he gladly would settle for a quarter of a million dollars and get out of the golf course business.

The original complicated issues still remain. If Leoffler wanted only $1000, the Recreation Board still has to go through the tortuous channels of getting an appropriation from Congress.

Just what Leoffler is owed has baffled a congressional subcommittee's investigation, the Interior Department and the GAO.

While these and many other questions are thrashed out, chances are that Mr. Leoffler will be operating the courses for some time. Yesterday, Leoffler intimated that this would be all right with him, but he'd have to have the greens fee increases he sought unsuccessfully last September.

Meanwhile, Recreation Board officials authorized a study of municipal golf courses. Milo F. Christiansen, superintendent of recreation, who led the study, recommends that the courses here be operated directly by the board.

Steps in that direction leisurely are being taken.

Papit Still Leads Nation In Rushing

While Virginia used Whitey Michel's passes to baffle favored Penn, Johnny Papit picked up 54 yards in 18 tries Saturday to maintain his rushing leadership in the Nation.

National Collegiate Athletic Bureau figures released yesterday show Papit leading Mississippi's Johnny Dottley by 97 yards with an impressive 1040-yard total. Each has two games left.

Papit's running is so good it places him tenth on total offense.

Rep. Kennedy Gets a Workout —And Needed It

Medford, Mass., Nov. 8 (AP).—Congressman John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.) watched a Medford high school football practice yesterday and decided he'd work out a little.

The Congressman is 32, but looks a lot younger. And when he came out on the field in a football suit he was just a new boy to Halfback Freddy Greenleaf, who yelled:

"Here, kid, come on over here and snag some passes."

The Congressman snagged. Then Halfback Greenleaf had the Congressman throw a few. Then Halfback Greenleaf had the Congressman run down punts.

Next, Halfback Greenleaf decided that what the new boy needed was a little tackling drill. But just then Coach Johnny Prior came over and said to Halfback Greenleaf: "How's the Congressman doing, Freddy?"

Halfback Greenleaf said: "Is that what they call him? He needs a lot of work, coach. What year's he in?"

Around The Town

Greenbelt Boxing Show

The Greenbelt Boys' Club will stage its first boxing show in its history Saturday night, November 19 at 8 o'clock at the Greenbelt Center School Auditorium.

The event was made possible by John J. Noone of Greenbelt, Md., who won $28,000 in prizes on a network quiz show some time ago. Among the prizes was $1000 to be donated to any worthy organization. Noone named the Greenbelt Boys' Club and a complete boxing ring and equipment were forwarded to the club.

Eagles Play Waynesboro

The Anacostia Eagles unlimited football team makes its annual trip to Waynesboro, Pa., on Armistice Day to meet the Waynesboro Tigers at 2:30. The Tigers are undefeated in three years.

Minnesota Movies

The University of Minnesota Alumni Association of Washington will show movies of the Minneapolis Aquatennial in color on Wednesday evening at 7:30 and then again at 9 o'clock in the North Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

W. W. Riefler in Line For Job Nourse Quit; Olds a Power Consultant

Winfield W. Riefler has the inside track to be named chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors. He's the No. 1 economist to the Federal Reserve Board. Riefler is opposed, however, by several Administration Senators who insist he's opposed to the President's domestic program.

Leland Olds has been appointed a power consultant to the National Security Resources Board. The Senate recently rejected his nomination for a new five-year term on the Federal Power Commission.

Stuart B. Tulloss will retire the end of December as chief of investigators for the General Accounting Office. A career civil servant, Tulloss recently celebrated 40 years in the Federal service. He has been with GAO since it was organized. His successor will be William L. Ellis, an assistant to the Comptroller General, who has specialized in legislative work, an excellent choice. Comptroller General Lindsey Warren has commended Tulloss for his many years of "outstanding public service."

Arthur Flemming, a former GOP member of the Civil Service Commission, who is now president of Ohio Wesleyan University, will head up a "little Hoover Commission" to make a reorganization study of Ohio's State government.

INTERIOR: A little-noticed provision in Interior's appropriation act is worth noting. Under contingent expenses, the law reads: "Traveling expenses, including not exceeding $10,000 for inspections and investigations by the legislative branch as well as attendance at meetings or conventions concerned with the work of the department, and any request from appropriate authority in such branch in connection therewith shall be immediately complied with by administrative authority in the department." In other words, Interior must foot the bills of members of Congress and their staffs to check on its operations.

JOBS: Civil Service will begin to accept applications today for these jobs—policeman, fireman and policewoman, $3077 to start; geologist, $3100 to $3825; highway engineer trainee and engineer, $2650 to $3825.

STORY: Several Federal workers are having fun by the circulation of a "memo" which reads as follows:

"RE: DEATH OF COMPANY EMPLOYES

"It has been brought to our attention that many employes are dying and refusing to fall over after they are dead. This must be stopped. On or after January 1, any employe found sitting up after he has died will be dropped from the payrolls at once (i. e. within 90 days). Where it can be proved that the employe is being supported by a typewriter or other property of the company an additional 90 days will be granted.

"The following procedure will be followed: If, after several hours it's noted that the worker has not moved or changed position, the supervisor will investigate. Because of the highly sensitive nature of this company's employes and the close resemblance between death and their natural working attitude, the investigation is to be made as quietly as possible as not to disturb the employes if they are only asleep.

"If some doubt exists as to the true condition of the employes, extending the pay check is a fine test. If the employe does not reach for it immediately, it may be reasonable to assume that he is dead. In some cases the instinct is so strongly developed, however, that a spasmodic clutch or reflex action may be encountered. Don't let this fool you.

"In all cases a sworn statement by the dead person must be filled out on a special form No. 66 600-A. Fifteen copies will be made. Three copies are to be forwarded to payroll department and three copies are to be given deceased. Destroy the rest.

"A 22-W application for permanent leave must be filled out by the employe. Be sure to include correct forwarding address. If he cannot write, his signature must be witnessed by two other employes, preferably alive. Complete case by pushing body to the side to make room for the next incumbent."

Shapiro Footed Gambling House Bill, Court Told

'Ice Man,' Now Dead, Gave Them $6200 For Remodel Job, Builders Testify

The ghost of Isadore "Ice Man" Shapiro, reputed gambler who died June 11, walked again in District Court yesterday in the gambling trial of William "Snags" Lewis and 13 others.

Two Washington contractors testified their firms were paid $6200 by Shapiro to remodel a frame bungalow at 4310 46th ave., Bladensburg, Md. Lewis was arrested March 25 in this remodeled bungalow, which the Government claims served as headquarters for a 14-million-dollar-a-year gambling syndicate.

Paid $5000 In Cash

Sam Lieberman, alias Sam Lee, president of Associated Contractors, Inc., testified he received more than $5000 from Shapiro personally, and in cash, for the "Lewis job."

"Put the bill in Lewis' name and I'll pay you," Lieberman said Shapiro told him.

C. Monroe Baile, 3151 Westover dr. se., treasurer of the contracting firm, testified that the remodeling was done between August and December, 1947, and consisted of heating, plumbing, air-conditioning, sound-proofing and pine-paneling.

The name of Shapiro, known as "The Ice Man" because he allegedly knew how to put authorities "on ice," first cropped up in the Lewis trial Monday. Murray J. Olf, owner of State Wide News Distributors, testified Shapiro paid him $60 a week "in cash and in advance" for a sports ticker Olf leased from Western Union and subleased to Mrs. Sadie Stanton, owner of the bungalow.

Declared Hostile Witness

Prosecutor Wiliam Hitz asked Judge Matthew F. McGuire to declare Lieberman a hostile witness half way through his questioning. When the judge declared him hostile, Hitz gained the right to cross-examine his own witness.

Lieberman had testified he had known Lewis "all my life" but said that he had never discussed with Lewis the remodeling of the Stanton home.

Hitz then confronted Lieberman with a memo, which Lieberman admitted was in his handwriting, saying "Snags told me lady in house going to take care of vestibule."

Lieberman then testified that he could not remember,—"that's been a long, long time ago."

Deputy Describes Raid

U. S. Deputy Marshal Edward J. Geraci, the last witness of the day, described the raid he and others made on Lewis headquarters, March 25.

He testified that marshals broke through two doors but were admitted through a third door "to the gambling room," where he said, eight of the defendants were standing.

"A bundle of money as big as a brick," containing $16,980 in bills, an operating racing ticker, six paper bags with numbers slips and money inside, coin wrappers and scratch sheets were among the evidence seized, Geraci said.

Other witnesses yesterday were Gilbert Stanton, son of the owner of the bungalow; Miguel Gonzales, owner of a barber shop, of 127 R st. ne., and David H. Coates, a professional photographer who accompanied authorities on the Lewis raid.

Stanton testified he did not know his mother rented any "office space" to Lewis. He said he had never seen the special room before the raid. Hitz asked him, "Did you not on numerous occasions warn your mother to get out of that business or she'd end up in trouble?" Stanton uttered a vigorous denial.

Paid for Recommendation

Gonzales testified that he was paid $50 by Lieberman for recommending the Lewis job to Associated Contractors. He testified he knew Lewis only as "Snags," and could not remember any details of the "bonus check" he received.

Coates, who had appeared earlier, identified five pictures he said he took of the Stanton bungalow during the day of the raid.

Special Grand Jury To Disband Nov. 16

The special grand jury that has been investigating gambling here since May, 1948, will be disbanded November 16.

In disclosing the disbanding date, United States Attorney George Morris Fay said that the 18-month statutory periods alloted to grand juries here will then expire.

Asked whether any further reports could be expected of the grand jury before its adjournment, Fay said, "Don't speculate on it." Beyond this, he had no statement, he said.

In Divorce Suit

Heavy Drama Recited by Detectives

A scene of violent emotion in which a Washington wife, having allegedly admitted to being out with another man the night before, pleaded with her husband "Baby, take me back! Baby, take me back!" was described yesterday in District Court.

The divorce suit of Johnston Fraser Stewart, 30, former congressional legal adviser, against Mrs. Betty Ann Stewart, 38, on adultery grounds also brought out testimony ranging from what makes a man a member of a Methodist church to a report of a New Jersey Senator "blowing his top" because of a telephone call he was said to have received from Mrs. Stewart seeking information about her husband.

Interesting direct testimony was supplied by a Washington private detective, Perry Bonner.

He said that in the wee hours of June 18, 1948, he gained entrance to Room 919 Mayflower Hotel, where he said he found the blond Mrs. Stewart with a man who was scantily dressed.

Higgins Identified

The man was identified in testimony as James H. Higgins of the Inland Rubber Co., Chicago. Higgins is corespondent in the suit.

The gray-haired and fluent Bonner, a sleuth since 1910, described his tactics in getting into the room.

When the door finally was opened Bonner said Mrs. Stewart "looked like she had thrown her clothes on." Higgins, he stated, was wearing nothing but an undershirt.

Denny J. Murphy, Bradbury Heights, Md., another private detective, had testified earlier that only one of the twin beds in the room was "messed up."

Bonner went on to describe the scene he said took place later that morning in the office of Stewart's lawyer with Stewart and his wife present.

"She begged her husband to take her back," he said.

"A Clean Breast"

"I made a clean breast," Bonner quoted Mrs. Stewart as saying to her husband. "I told you I was in the room! I told you I was in bed! For God's sake, forgive me!"

Then, said Bonner, eyeing Mrs. Stewart at defense table, "she pulled one of those phoney faints—as she can do."

"She kept calling her husband 'Baby,'" Bonner said. "'Baby, take me back! I'm sorry . . . Baby, take me back!'"

Stewart, who was a labor lawyer on the staff of a congressional committee, testified that he had been unemployed since January of this year as a result of his wife's conversations concerning him with Capitol Hill figures, including a United States Senator.

On one occassion, he said, a person identifying herself as Mrs. Stewart telephoned Senator Robert C. Hendrickson, Republican of New Jersey, the State Stewart comes from, and "sought information on where I lived."

"The Senator," said Stewart, "was rather closely questioned until he came close to what we call blowing his top."

Residence Questioned

The question of Stewart's Washington residence—and hence the question of court jurisdiction—has been raised by the defense. When the plaintiff had finished his case yesterday, Mrs. Stewart's attorney called his first witness in connection with this point.

He was George H. Ward, 71, business manager of the Foundry Methodist Church, of which Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Senate chaplain, is minister.

Ward said church records did not show Stewart as a member of the church, that a person can be "a real, actual member" of a particular church without transferring his church affiliation. Stewart had testified he attended the Foundry Church regularly.

Mrs. Stewart, who lives at the Croydon, 1815 17th st. nw., is scheduled to take the stand today in Judge F. Dickinson Letts' court to tell her side of the story.

Court Rules Out $50 Damages in 'Trifling' Rent Case

Tenants here who are overcharged some "trifling amount" monthly for rent, cannot sue for $50 damages for each month's overcharge, the Municipal Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

The court clarified a portion of the District Rent Act giving tenants the right to claim either double the weekly or monthly overcharge or $50, whichever is the larger.

The opinion, written by Chief Judge Nathan Cayton, said, "If each weekly or monthly overcharge could be treated as a separate violation, a landlord who had collected some trifling amount over the ceiling could still be forced to pay $50 for each violation."

The case does not affect suits for double damages but only the $50 suits.

Mike Rector Celebrates Year in Hospital; Gets $1500, Television Set, Movie Projector

FOR HIS EDUCATION—Mike Rector shares a pleasant smile with Burton Langhenry (center), president of the National Capital Optimist Club, and Bruce Baird, president of the National Savings and Trust Co. Langhenry presented Mike a $1500 check to start a fund for his education. It will be kept in the bank for the burned boy

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

SURROUNDED BY GIFTS—Burton Langhenry presents to Mike the gifts which poured in yesterday at Casualty Hospital. Among them are a new television set, a movie projector

It was a big day yesterday for Mike Rector—the biggest since the plucky 4-year-old entered Casualty Hospital almost a year ago, so criticaly burned over 70 percent of his body that practically nobody thought he would live.

The sun porch where he lay in a new wheelchair yesterday was full of people, cameras and big glaring lights.

But what brought excitement into Mike's big brown eyes was the succession of new things that came into the porch. They were presents from the Optimist Clubs of Greater Washington, to celebrate his year in the hospital, and to make it a little easier to wait a few more months before going home.

Made "Optimist of the Year"

There were the new wheelchair, a movie sound projector and screen, a television set—all for the boy who had suffered 26 painful skin grafts since last November 12, when he was burned. He even became a member of the Junior Optimist Club, and was made Optimist of the Year.

There were peajackets with hoods for his two sisters, Rose Lee, 12, and Marion, 10; a red wagon for his 7-year-old brother, Eddie; a scooter for 5-year-old Billy, and a toy boxer dog for the baby, 2-year-old Thomas Allen.

All his brothers and sisters were there, except the baby. Mike's father, who gave some of his skin for the grafts five times, was there, and so was his mother.

Gets $1500 Toward Education

But the biggest gift that the five Optimist Clubs of greater Washington brought to the hospital yesterday was something Mike didn't appreciate at the time, though his parents did.

It was a $1500 check to start the Mike Rector Fund for the boy's education. Burton Langhenry, president of the National Capital Optimist Club, handed it over to Bruce Baird, president of the National Savings & Trust Co., where the fund will be kept.

Trustees will be Langhenry, Winfield Martindill of the Optimist Club of Washington, Richard Richardson of the Silver Spring Optimist Club, Edward J. Loveless of the Arlington club, Frank E. Mann of the Alexandria club, and Dr. Joseph R. Young, who has been in charge of Mike's medical treatment.

Everything OK for Day

Optimist Club members hope the fund will grow and grow. Contributions should be sent to the Mike Rector Fund, care of the bank.

But all this was something for Mike to think about in the future. The new chair, which he will take with him when he goes home—probably next spring, the doctor said—was there, and it was "OK." The TV set which will be his and which will replace one to be sent home for his family, was also "OK."

In fact, even though he faces eight or ten more skin grafts, according to his doctor, everything yesterday seemed to be "OK" to Mike.

District Rejects Request to Pay For Prison Chaplain Service

A church group request that the District finance Department of Corrections chaplain service was turned down by the District Commissioners yesterday on the ground that it is not "a function of local government."

The request had come from the Washington Federation of Churches, which for the past nine years has paid a trained chaplain to work in the District's four penal institutions. Informed of the Commissioners' action, a federation official said he didn't think his group would "take 'no' for it."

The federation had asked the District to assume financial responsibility for the program by next July 1 because "so many other public institutions need the service."

The Commissioners turned down the request at the recommendation of District Budget Office Walter L. Fowler, who said his office did not consider "the service to be a function of local government."

"Physical welfare of . . . inmates is the responsibility of the District," Fowler said, "and the spiritual welfare that of the churches of the community and should be administered on a voluntary basis."

Fowler also felt that appointment by the District government of a paid chaplain of any one faith "could be a controversial matter and should be avoided."

The federation had pointed out that the Federal Government supports such programs at St. Elizabeths Hospital and in Federal prisons. Fowler said the Federal Bureau of Prisons "with its Nationwide responsibilities" can't be compared with the "purely local Department of Corrections."

In addition to asking that the District pay the chaplain, the federation also recommended that two other chaplains be added.

The federation pointed out in a letter that the chaplain now is forced to spend most of his time at the Lorton Reformatory where he interviews each new prisoner, counsels those in distress and makes recommendations on men up for parole.

His work at the reformatory, the letter stated, leaves the chaplain only one half day a week to devote to prisoners at the workhouse, the women's division and the jail.

Chaplain service is needed particularly at the jail, the letter stated, because persons there are in a "crisis situation and are more receptive to help and guidance . . . than at any other period of their incarceration."

The Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, federation executive secretary, said his group had expected a chance to discuss the matter with the Commissioners before action was taken.

He indicated the federation feels it has been performing a service which should properly be financed by the District.

A meeting will be sought with the Commissioners, Dr. Reissig said, adding, "I don't think we're going to take no for it."

Woman Clerk Found Dead in Flaming Chair

A 41-year-old woman Bolling Air Force Base clerk was found burned to death in a flaming chair in her apartment yesterday.

She was Mrs. Ruth E. Hunter, wife of Army Corpl. Robert G. Hunter, 27, who was downtown at the time of the tragedy at their home, 3874 9th st. se. Police believe the fire was accidental.

Corpl. Hunter, who told police he was having his automobile repaired during the afternoon, returned home about 8 p. m. to find that his wife had been carried out of the apartment about two hours before by a neighbor, Capt. Robert G. Lind, USAF. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Gallinger Hospital.

Capt. Lind said he smelled smoke and got the janitor, O'Del Wilson, 38, of 3876 9th st. se., to let him into the Hunter apartment. The room was filled with smoke and an overstuffed chair in which Mrs. Hunter was sitting was ablaze.

National Conference Board Meets Today

The annual meeting of directors of the National Conference of Christians and Jews will convene here today at the Willard Hotel.

The directors, coming from all parts of the country, will elect officers and plan a 1950 program designed to promote good will among Protestants, Catholics and Jews.

President Truman is expected to address a luncheon Friday at the Mayflower.

District to Fire Employes Who Don't Pay Taxes

Chest Hits 55 Percent Of Quota

The Washington Area Community Chest Workers turned in reports bringing the drive total up to $2,207,958 — 55.31 percent of the quota. This was an increase of $205,371 over the previous report last Friday.

At a report luncheon in the Washington Hotel, Josh Lee, member of the Civil Aeronautics Board, warned that drive workers were now at the same point as many English Channel swimmers and "the last half is the hardest."

General Chairman Frank J. Luchs told reporters after the affair that "from now on we will have to gather in the bits and pieces and really scratch around for pledges. The big chunks are in."

Montgomery County's first honor certificate was presented by Lewis Hopfenmaier 2d, business area chairman for the county drive, to Charles Schwartz 2d, of the Charles Schwartz & Son, jewelers, for attaining 100 percent participation at the firm's store at 900 Ellsworth dr., Silver Spring. The store was opened last Wednesday and the campaign completed by the weekend.

Eleven local firms were added to the Business I honor roll for "outstanding performance." The groups were the Food Fair Super Markets, Bates Jewelry Co., D. J. Kaufman & Co., Norton & Co., Broad Branch Market, Stephenson's Bakery, Earle and Ceres Restaurants, Milton S. Kronheim & Sons, Inc., Franc Jewelry Co., A. Kahn, Inc., and Chandler's Boot Shop.

Standings reported at the luncheon were: Business I, 44,102 contributors, $864,272, 58.9 percent of quota; Business II, 2873, $73,717, 30.49 percent; Government, 141,213, $1,035,114, 65.29 percent. Residential, 3828, $148,880, 44.93 percent.

Montgomery Low

Alexandria, 2295, $26,376, 39.23 percent; Arlington, 1448, $14,072, 23.11 percent; Fairfax, 1400, $10,410, 25.19 percent; Montgomery, 1491, $22,858, 16.81 percent; Prince Georges, 1451, $12,256, 20.28 percent.

A total of 200,101 have contributed toward a goal of $3,991,719.

Today the Business II and Advance Gifts General sections will meet at the Washington Hotel in separate luncheons at 12:30 p. m.

The Headquarters Command of the Air Force, consisting of Andrews and Bolling bases, announced the 1949 quota of $11,557 was exceeded yesterday by $43.61.

Intimidation Of Witness Laid to Accused

A defendant in a District Court criminal case was held yesterday for grand jury action on a charge of threatening a witness against him in a courtroom.

Held under $2000 bond for allegedly intimidating a witness to obstruct justice was Livingston H. Hill, 54, of 4925 Lee st. ne. The court was told that he threatened to "knock the G-D head off" Joseph A. Caetto, should the latter testify against him. The threat was made, it was charged, in Judge Alexander Holtzoff's court.

Hill was scheduled to go to trial on an indictment charging him with larceny after trust of $100 from William R. Sullivan, 1830 U pl. se. Hill took the money, it was charged, after it was given to him to purchase material for construction of a porch for Sullivan.

Caetto, a District fireman, of 1900 U pl. se. was to testify that Hill admitted receiving the money from Sullivan, according to Detective Sergt. John R. Luskey of the Check and Fraud Squad.

Underpass Asked To Cut Danger of Railroad Tracks

Members of the Lamond Heights Citizens Association last night indorsed a neighborhood petition calling for a pedestrian underpass to connect Sheridan st. and Blair rd. nw.

According to Joel P. Sharon, association president, 75 school children who live in the northeast section attend the Whittier School, 5th and Sheridan sts. nw. and must cross the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks to get to school. The underpass would eliminate this hazard, he said.

The 75 members who met at the Masonic and Eastern Star Home, New Hampshire ave. and Peabody st. ne., requested permission from District Commissioners to place temporary sewer lines under a section of Rittenhouse st. between Eastern and New Hampshire aves. ne. so a new road may be built.

Policy Is Reversed After Request for Help From Bureau Of Internal Revenue

In a reversal of policy, the District Commissioners yesterday served notice they may fire city employes who evade Federal or District taxes.

The order sent out to department heads referred to any "legal indebtedness" to either government but it came specifically in response to a request for help from the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Last summer, the Federal bureau had asked the Commissioners to help it collect income taxes owed by District employes.

The bureau suggested a good way to do it would be for department heads, with a Federal agent present, to call in employes owing money and have them sign agreements to pay.

The Commissioners took no action then—though they received a legal ruling that disciplinary action could be taken for nonpayment of taxes.

Yesterday's decision evolved from a new Federal request and a meeting Monday of several department heads.

A report drawn up at that meeting, and adopted as a policiy by the Commissioners, stated that although the District government should not act as "a collection agency," the Commissioners feel employes "are not satisfactory employes who willfully and without sufficient excuse or reason neglect or avoid payment . . . such neglect or avoidance . . . will be ground for disciplinary action even to the extent of dismissal."

The Federal Government claimed 122 District employes owed it about $13,000 in income taxes as of October 28.

Right of '11 Punks' Upheld, McGrath Says

Even "those 11 punks" in New York received every possible protection insofar as civil rights are concerned, Attorney General J. Howard McGrath said last night in referring to the trial of the 11 Communist leaders recently convicted of conspiracy to overthrow the Government.

McGrath's comments were made in a brief talk before members of the District Bar Association meeting at the Mayflower Hotel.

The Attorney General reminded his listeners that there may be "traitors" also in the legal profession that should be weeded out, as he reviewed the duties of lawyers in preserving civil liberties.

In a business session, the association voted to approve "that inscription customarily carried on letterheads of ethical patent attorneys who are members of the bar," and resolved that the American Bar Association's committee on legal ethics, which ruled such inscriptions improper, be asked to reconsider.

"Specializing in patent law," is the usual legend on letterheads of patent lawyers, it was explained.

Father of 9 Guilty In Traffic Death

Thomas R. Moore, 34, Upper Marlboro, Md., farmer, father of nine children, found guilty of manslaughter yesterday by a jury in Prince Georges County Circuit Court, was sentenced to serve two years in the Maryland House of Correction.

The jury found that Moore was driving an automobile which crashed head-on into a car driven by Lewis F. Frey, 57, Linthicum Heights, Md., March 28, 1948, on Crain hwy., south of Hall, Md.

Mary Virginia Ryan, 32, of Baltimore, Md., was killed and Frey was crippled.

Plan to Move Girls From Cardozo Lashed

Negro members of the Board of Education yesterday bitterly opposed School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning's plan to relieve overcrowding at Cardozo High School by transferring 500 girl students to Park View Elementary School.

Dr. Phillip T. Johnson and Mrs. Velma G. Williams said they favored immediate transfer of Central High School to use by Negro children even if it meant scrapping plans for a new Cardozo High School.

After a two-hour meeting in which the two board members delivered a blistering attack on the Corning plan, the board's committee on buildings and grounds deferred action.

Committee members agreed to hear an analysis of the plan by an outside educator to be selected by Dr. Johnson before making a recommendation to the full board November 16.

The report in which Dr. Corning last week presented his plan was described by Dr. Johnson, a physician, as "fallacious, inadequate, educationally unsound and full of red herrings."

Fourteen Empty Rooms

Dr. Corning proposed that 14 empty rooms in the Park View School be used to house 500 Cardozo girls until the new Spingarn High School is completed in 1951 or early in 1952.

The school superintendent said that transfer of Central would disrupt the long-range school building program which calls for the construction of new Cardozo and Armstrong High Schools within the next few years.

Dr. James A. Gannon, board member, defended the Corning proposal at yesterday's hearing as "sincere and written only after prayerful consideration."

Dr. Johnson described the proposed Cardozo and Armstrong replacements as "cabins in the sky that never will be reached."

He said that it had taken the Negro residents more than 10 years to get Spingarn and doubted two other schools ever would be built.

Chagrin Expressed

Mrs. Williams said that she was "greatly disappointed" that Dr. Corning had "pitted children's interests against a new building."

"Cardozo is a dream building and I don't give a rap if we never get it if children's needs are met now," Mrs. Williams said.

She declared it would be a "disgrace" to go to Congress and seek funds for a new Negro school when there is available space in white schools.

Negro civic groups who have favored the transfer of Central have argued that there is sufficient space in other white senior and junior high schools to scatter the 1335 white students now attending Central.

Both Mrs. Williams and Dr. Johnson said that overcrowding at Cardozo has resulted in an inferior education program for Negro youth.

Cardozo, with a capacity of 1040 students, now has an enrollment of 1796.

Mrs. Williams charged Dr. Corning with "autocratic administration" and declared that in failing to recommend the transfer of Central he had "defied and ignored" the wishes of Negro residents.

She said that Negro residents have been petitioning the board since last spring for relief for Cardozo but they had been "put off."

In attacking the "educational soundness" of Corning's proposal to use Park View as an annex to Cardozo, Dr. Johnson said it would "violate" the board's policy of coeducational training, "break the school's esprit de corps," and "split up" the girls' cadet program.

Before board members spoke, the committee heard three speakers oppose the Park View plan. They were David E. Wells, president of Pleasant Plains Civic Association; James E. Ellis, chairman of the steering committee of Park View P-TA, and Gardner L. Bishop, head of the Consolidated Parent Group.

Sharpe Urges Junior High Schools Be Abolished

School Board President C. Melvin Sharpe yesterday suggested that the District solve its schoolhouse shortage problem by abolishing junior high schools.

The board president said that need for elementary schools could be met by placing ninth-grade students in senior high schools, utilizing junior high buildings for grades five, six, seven and eight, and using available elementary buildings for the lower grades.

Cantrell Disagrees

Sharpe said he never had been sold on the junior high school program.

Associate Superintendent Lawson J. Cantrell, who administers white junior high schools, said he hasn't "the slightest doubt that junior high schools are worthwhile and should be continued."

Separated from elementary schools grades 7 and 8, they are able to offer a richer program and greater variety of subjects as well as extra curricular activities, Cantrell said.

Different Program

"It is a universal feeling among educators," Cantrell said, "that the psychology of the adolescent requires a program different from that offered below in the elementary grades and above in high school."

Junior high schools were established to provide a place where the needs of the adolescent could be best met, Cantrell said. The separate junior high school program first became a part of the District school system in 1919 after it had been successfully tried out in other communities. California and Ohio were among the States that pioneered, he said.

Five Famous Authors at Post Book Luncheon Discuss the 'Welfare State', D. C. Home Rule

The Washington Post

BOOK LUNCHEON GUESTS—Well known authors who were guests at yesterday's Book and Author Luncheon, sponsored by The Washington Post, are (from left) Hartzell Spence, Merle Miller, Alice Tisdale Hobart, Arthur M. Schlesinger, jr., and Frederick Gutheim

Five famous authors broke out of their bound volumes yesterday to ask for home rule, civil rights, the "welfare state" and a book by a cow.

More than 400 persons crowded into the Presidential Room of the Statler for the opening of the fifth season of The Washington Post Book and Author Luncheons to hear:

Writers Arthur M. Schlesinger, jr., Pulitzer Prize-winning author of "The Age of Jackson" and his latest work "The Vital Center;" Merle Miller, author of "That Winter" and "The Sure Thing;" Alice Tisdale Hobart, author of "Oil for the Lamps of China" and "Cleft Rock;" Hartzell Spence, author of "One Foot in Heaven" and "Happily Ever After," and Frederick Gutheim, author of "The Potomac," the newest addition to Rinehart & Co.'s Rivers of America series which was published yesterday.

Schlesinger, whose latest book deals indirectly with the issues of the so-called welfar estate, cracked back at its political adversaries.

The current debate over the welfare state, the youthful historian declared, "has come to be a most monstrous, irrelevant, futile and false controversy."

Suggesting that the people presently attacking the welfare state "really don't oppose it," Schlesinger quoted a recent statement by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) as the most "concise" definition of what the welfare state is all about.

He referred to a paragraph in a magazine article by the Republican Senate leader which said "I believe the American people feel that our productivity is so great that we can afford to put a floor under the necessaries of life—food, education, medical care, housing—so that every family may have available a minimum decent living."

Schlesinger urged that "we do not now fritter away our energies" on the welfare state catchword, but that "we enter into honest debate" on how best to achieve the basic security objectives as generally expressed by Senator Taft.

Gutheim Sees Home Rule

Gutheim, a Washington resident the past 40 years, said, "We are closer than ever before to home rule and the franchise. We are so close, indeed, that it is now possible to question whether merely to grant these much-needed and long overdue reforms . . . to make up the deficiencies of enforced political immaturity, will be sufficient answer to the political problems of what has become a metropolis of a million and a half people . . ."

The Potomac River author emphasized that home rule and administrative reforms are the "indispensable" preliminaries, "but we should not be deceived into thinking that they will really come to grips with the expanding city to meet the need for a metropolitan area government and metropolitan-wide planning."

Washington needs "big government," Gutheim concluded," as much as it needs self-government and good government. It is not going to get it from Capitol Hill. It is going to get it from the only place good government ever comes from—from the people themselves."

Spence gave an enthusiastic audience several intimate sidelights on how his fourth best seller, "Happily Ever After," tells the true story of his and his wife's adjustment from hectic New York City living to learning the ropes on their 700 acre farm near Charlottesville, Va.

He said he read 800 Agriculture Department pamphlets before he started his new cattle-raising career, and in that collection he never came across a booklet that told him what was wrong with his pastures.

"The Agriculture Department should write a personalized, dressed-up book signed by a cow—from the viewpoint of a bovine mother—that us ignoramus farmers can understand," he said.

On a serious note, Alice Tisdale Hobart said all her writing is "strung" on the thread of revolutions, since she has lived through 20 years of revolution-wrought China and Mexico.

"I returned to America in 1927," she commented. "I am allergic to the causes of revolution, and my three American novels are stories of the little tendencies leading away from democracy."

Former newsman Merle Miller, whose recent novel, "The Sure Thing" tells the story of a loyalty investigation in the State Department, expressed concern over the "increasing tendency in American life . . . to simply end the careers or fire from jobs, people who don't necessarily believe with the majority or who have made mistakes in the past."

Book and Author Luncheons are also scheduled for January 25, March 22, and May 11.

Ram Kills Woman, 76

Delray, W. Va., Nov. 8 (AP).—The body of Mae Carlysle, 76, was found on a farm near here today, and a coroner ruled she had been butted to death by a ram. Apparently she had been trapped by the ram as she tried to crawl between the rails of a fence.

Ex-Commissioner McCoach's Wife Injured by Auto

Mrs. Anna B. McCoach, 60, wife of David McCoach, jr., vice president of the Charles H. Tompkins Construction Co., and a former District Commissioner, suffered a fractured left leg when struck by an automobile yesterday on Connecticut ave. near Woodley rd. nw.

Mrs. McCoach was returning to her home at the Wardman Park Hotel from a shopping trip. She was taken to Walter Reed Hospital.

The driver of the automobile was not charged, police said, but a hearing on the accident will be held later.

Dr. Julius Schreiber To Lecture Tonight

Dr. Julius Schreiber, former executive director of the National Institute of Social Relations, will discuss "Your Child and His Community" at a lecture tonight at 8:15 in the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida ave. nw.

Dr. Schreiber, now a practicing psychiatrist, is the author of "Mental Health and Social Enviroment." His talk is the fourth in a series of five sponsored by the Washington Ethical Society on child development.

Maj. F. W. Barrett

London, Nov. 8 (U.P.)—Maj. Frederick Whitfield Barrett, race horse trainer for three British Kings, died yesterday at his home in Wroughton. He was 74.

Barrett trained several National Hunt winners for the late King George V, including Marconi, the steeplechaser that won the event in 1935. He also trained "first winners" for King George VI and former King Edward VIII.

The noted horseman captained the English polo team that won the America Cup in 1914.

Dr. Samuel Johnson

Franklin, W. Va., Nov. 8 (AP).—Dr. Samuel Johnson, 82, who had practiced medicine in this area for 56 years, died today of a heart attack.

Dr. Johnson, a native of Franklin, was the son of the late Dr. John D. Johnson. Their combined practice in the Franklin area totaled 106 years.

Rev. Bryan Green, Anglican, to Give 8-Day Mission Here

The Rev. Bryan Green, Anglican clergyman who will conduct an eight-day mission for the Episcopal Diocese of Washington, will arrive in Washington Thursday.

He will speak at a luncheon for men of the diocese at 12:30 p. m. in the main ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel. At 4 p. m. he will speak at a student rally at the University of Maryland, College Park.

Also on Thursday he will appear at 6:30 p. m. at a parish supper in St. Margaret's Church, Connecticut ave. and Bancroft pl. nw. and at 8 p. m. will speak at a rally for churches of the Northern Convocation of the Diocese of All Saints, Chevy Chase.

More than 600 women will attend a luncheon Friday at which Mr. Green will speak at 1 p. m. in the grand ballroom of the Shoreham.

The mission will begin at 8 p. m. Sunday at the Washington Cathedral and will continue each night through November 21.

Russell Weisman

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 8 (U.P.)—Russell Weisman, 59, associate editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and economics professor at Western Reserve University, died today, apparently of a heart attack.

Weisman, nationally known for his articles and speeches on economic subjects, was stricken at the City Club, where he had lunch. Artificial respiration was administered before he was pronounced dead.

Peru Museum Director To Give Talk on Mummy

Dr. Rebeca Carrion-Cachot, director of the National Museum of Anthropology and Archeology of Lima, Peru, will given an illustrated talk on "The Mummy of Paracas" at the Pan American Union Building Thursday at 8:30 p. m.

Dr. Carrion-Cachot will discuss a mummy which she recently delivered to the Museum of Natural History in New York City reportedly representative of the ancient civilization of Peru in the Paracas era. Her talk will be in Spanish and will be open to the public.

Sergeant Gets Medal For Mid-Air Heroism

By The Associated Press

Secretary of the Army Gray yesterday conferred the Soldier's Medal for Heroism upon Sergt. Marvin O. Smith of Huntsville, Ala.

Gray saw Smith save the life of Pfc. Charles A. Dye in midair during maneuvers at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., October 25.

During a drop something happened to Dye's parachute. As he was falling rapidly he landed on Smith's chute and slid down alongside it. Quickly Smith reached out and grabbed the suspension line of Dye's disabled chute. Together the two descended safely.

Falls Church Council Vote Session Tonight

The Falls Church Council will meet in special session at 8 p. m. tonight in City Hall to decide on the qualifications of freeholders who wish to vote in the November 19 school construction loan referendum.

Only persons who do not appear on a list of qualified freeholders (resident property owners) need appear before the Council in order to qualify for a vote in the referendum on a $700,000 school loan.

Marine Corps League Plans Dinner Dance

National Capital Detachment, Marine Corps League, will hold a dinner dance Thursday at 7 p. m. at the New Colonial Hotel, 15th and M sts. nw., to mark the 174th birthday of the Marine Corps.

Brig. Gen. James P. S. Devereux, USMC (ret.), commander of Wake Island, will be a guest at the affair. Commandant Oliver L. Onion announced yesterday.

Playground Ownership Questioned

The District Recreation Board yesterday voted to seek the Corporation Counsel's opinion on possible court action to determine whether the District or the Federal Government owns the land encompassing some segregated playgrounds.

The board's action, in effect, bypassed a request by Edward J. Kelly, representing the Interior Department's National Capital Parks.

Kelly had asked that the board request a court determination of the question.

Instead, the board voted merely to ask the Corporation Counsel his opinion as to whether it should ask such court action and refused to back down from its contention that the District and not the Federal Government owns the land.

If the Interior position is upheld it would end racial segregation.

Interior along with the Recreation Board, the District Commissioners and the Board of Education are being sued by five Negro mothers for an injunction to permit their children to use any public recreation facility here.

Recreation Board Chairman Harry S. Wender declared Interior Secretary J. A. Krug should himself ask the court for such a determination if he wishes. But, said Wender, the recreation unit is bound by the Corporation Counsel's ruling that the land is District property, paid for by District funds.

Interior's solicitor ruled the land was Federal and Krug asked the Attorney General 14 months ago for a ruling. No ruling has been handed down and it has been hinted none will be. Wender said yesterday "we're naive enough to believe the Attorney General hasn't rendered an opinion in order not to embarass Interior."

Kelly said the resolution he offered might help "pry" an opinion out of the Justice Department.

League Asks Care In Takoma Park Contract Awards

The Community League of Takoma Park, Md., has asked the mayor and city council to exercise more care in awarding contracts for city improvements.

The action, taken at Monday night's meeting, is the result of complaints from property owners who maintain they have been assessed for street improvements at a higher rate than the cost was originally estimated by the city.

The league's resolution asked the council to inform affected property owners, before contracts are awarded, of any substantial increases in cost over original estimates.

F. Q. Morton Dies at 68; Rites Saturday

Ferdinand Q. Morton, 68, retired president of the New York Civil Service Commission, died yesterday at Freedmen's Hospital after a prolonged illness.

Prior to his appointment to the commission in 1922, Mr. Morton was an assistant district attorney in Manhattan for seven years. In 1916, in recognition of his political activities, he was named leader of the United Colored Democracy by Charles Murphy, then leader of Tammany Hall. Throughout his life, Mr. Morton worked to promote the welfare of the residents of Harlem and to advance the political and economic status of Negroes.

Born in Macon, Miss., September 9, 1888, Mr. Morton was brought to Washington in 1890 by his father, Edward J. Morton, who had been born in slavery but rose to become superintendent of colored schools in Knoxubee County, Miss. During the years that Mr. Morton senior worked as a substitute clerk for the Treasury Department, the son was graduated from Philips Exeter Academy and attended Harvard College for three years.

In 1909 he took his degree in law from the Boston University law school and was then admitted to the New York bar. He practiced law in New York in association with J. Frank Wheaton. After retirement from public life in January, 1948, Mr. Morton returned to Washington and was under medical care until his death.

He is survived by a brother, Dr. Frederick D. Morton of 1918 17th st. nw.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 1 p. m. from the McGuire funeral home, 1820 9th st. nw. Burial will be at Woodlawn Cemetery.

Charles Brown Funeral Today In New York

Funeral services will be held at noon today in New York City for Charles E. Brown, jr., 55, vice president of the Okonite Co. of New Jersey and a former Washington representative of the firm. Burial will be in Lake Forest, Ill., on Thursday.

Mr. Brown died yesterday at St. Luke's Hospital in New York City after a long illness.

He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., and was educated at St. Mark's School in Southborough, Mass., and Princeton University. During World War I he served overseas as an Army aviator.

Mr. Brown joined the Okonite Co. in 1925 and was appointed vice president in 1941, serving in that capacity as the company's Washington representative. While here he lived at the Westchester Apartments, 3900 Cathedral ave. nw. Following World War II he returned to New York as general sales manager of the firm, which position he held at the time of his death.

He was a member of the Army and Navy Club here, the Princeton Club of New York City, the Ivy Club of Princeton, N. J., and the Chicago Club of Chicago.

He is survived by his wife, the former Harriet Peebles of Athens, Ala.; his two sons, Charles E. Brown 3d, and Peter W. Brown; his daughter, Marcia Brown, and a sister, Mrs. W. Mahlon Dickerson, all of New York City, and a brother, Townsend Brown of Chicago, Ill.

Waxed Floor Goeth Before A Fall in Constitution Hall, Star Learns the Hard Way

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

B. Artur Ellis—The Washington P.

RED-HEADED Moira Shearer (left) and Margot Fonteyn settle down to a big cleanup chore before last evening's performance by the Sadler's Wells Ballet Company. Scraping wax from the soles with scissors, they hope to start off with clean slippers, although the overly-waxed stage at Constitution Hall can shortly "slick" them up again.

IN FULL VIEW of President and Mrs. Truman Monday night, Washington's most shame-making scandal reached a climax. The climax came when Margot Fonteyn, premiere ballerina of the Sadler's Wells Ballet, slipped, fell, and doubled to the floor gracefully as she made her initial entrance in "Le Lac des Cygnes."

Lead-ups to this peak came when Moira Shearer, dancing in the Blue Birds pas de deux, stumbled; when her partner, Alexis Rassine, had no room to execute the required, space-taking leaps, and later, when the full corps de ballet in "Le Lac des Cynges" was forced to maneuver in such close proximity that the dancers had difficulty in raising their arms.

The main reason for these harrowing happenings is, of course, the lack of any theater, opera house or even adequately equipped convention hall in this, our Nation's Capital. Contributing reasons for the artists' discomfiture in Constitution Hall are the inadequate-sized stage which is unequipped to handle scenery, the system of lights, which blinds performers, and on Monday night the inexcusable condition of the stage floor.

It was coated so thickly and unevenly with sticky wax that the dancers were not only in constant terror of slipping but were actually handicapped in movement by gobs of wax adhering to their delicate shoes. Miss Fonteyn thought she had solved the difficulty by parking a scissors near the back drop and slicing off the wax after each exit. But even sharp scissors couldn't penetrate the nasty stuff.

Audience Was Peeking

IN PRE-PERFORMANCE warm-ups the dancers were amazed to find the audience watching them over the topless curtain. Some smart spectator, looking at the crinkled velvet drapes, crackled sourly: "That looks just like the shower curtain in 'South Pacific'"! Aren't there any public spirited Washingtonians who will band together and build an efficient, modern theater? Couldn't Congress do something about it? They'd make money!

Miss Fonteyn and Miss Shearer look just as alluring off stage as on. And like most dancers, they are simple, without the "side" or temperament which actresses often affect.

Miss Shearer, who starred in the movie "Red Shoes," has china blue eyes, naturally flame-colored hair and extraordinarily alabaster skin flecked with faint freckles. At a party after the ballet she really looked the loathesome adjective "adorable" in a two-piece copper-colored satin suit, its lapels trimmed with tiny jet beads.

Margot Fonteyn, whose sensational dancing had New York literally at her feet, draws her jet hair into a neat bun. She wore a short, almost backless black satin dress which rose in front, almost chin high in twin pocket points. Her stockings were filmy black and the somberness offset by earrings and choker necklace of huge, diamond-cut crystals. Though she appears even more fragile than Miss Shearer, her constitution is rugged like other ballerinas. It has to be, for her to dance twice a day, rehearse between times and take in the incredible number of after-performance parties given in her honor.

Stick to the Rules

THE ballerinas have to stick to very strict rules, however. Miss Ninette De Valois, the director, fines those late for rehearsals $4. And on Monday night Violetta Elvin, who was programmed to dance the lead part in "The Rake's Progress." was replaced by an understudy because she missed the afternoon rehearsal. One or two of the younger ballerinas were fined because they were being shown the town by William Walton.

He made the mistake of taking them into a Hot Shoppe and, in an expansive mood, ordering them milkshakes. Enchanted they asked for another round, and by their slow, ecstatic sipping, were set back $4. "Those milkshakes!" one of them sighed. "It was well worth being fined." Since coming to this country, the leading ballerinas claim that the masculine dancers have been able to lift them higher with apparent ease. "We think it's the steaks they've been eating!" said one demure dancer.

Before the performance President Truman went backstage and shook hands all around with the company. The dancers were delighted and flattered by this unexpected tribute.

Next time the Sadler's Wells Ballet comes to Washington let's hope there'll be an adequate stage, and that they'll be able to show off some of the 50 tons of scenery they brought along from England!

Eleanor Pulsifer, Mr. Western to Wed

Barry Woods Weds Bonnie Barker in Alexandria

By Marie McNair

POPULAR and personable Barry Woods joined the ranks of benedicts yesterday. He and pretty Bonnie Barker of Kansas City and California were married quietly in the Washington Street Methodist Church in Alexandria, with no previous announcement of an engagement having been made.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barker of Kansas City. She received her B. A. degree from George Washington. For her wedding she wore a bronze taffeta frock covered with filmy black lace and a single white orchid corsage. Her sister, Mrs. Charles Schubart of Kansas City, was her only attendant.

Jock Merriam was Mr. Woods' best man and the two ushers were George Mahoney and Fred Mechlin.

Mr. and Mrs. Woods will live at his house on I st. when they return from their wedding trip and expect to take a house in Georgetown this winter.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Louis F. Woods of Falls Church, Va., studied at George Washington University and was graduated from Columbus University. He served in the Marine Corps during the war and holds the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve.

THE BRAZILIAN Ambassador, Mauricio Nabuco, and his sister, Miss Caroline Nabuco, are among those from Washington who'll spend a day at the races on Saturday.

They'll be guests of Miss Rosa Ponselle, former Metropolitan Opera star, and Mrs. Symington Perin, who have both taken boxes to see the running of the famous Futurity at Pimlico.

Also in the group motoring over from here, to be guests of Miss Ponselle and Mrs. Perin, will be the Netherlands Minister and Mme. Reuchlin, Maj. John Baron Melville van Carnbee, Secretary to The Netherlands Joint Staff; Behrent Dryber, member of the U. N. Food and Agricultural organization; Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Thomas R. Cowell, and George Williams.

After the races they'll all go for cocktails to Rosa Ponselle's Italian villa in Green Spring Valley. Before the races they will be guests of the Jockey Club for lunch and that night there'll be a dinner at the Green Spring Valley Golf Club with Miss Ponselle and Mrs. Perin the hostesses.

MRS. BARRY WOODS

Visitor From The Netherlands

HOLLAND'S top lady of the theater will arrive from New York on Friday to be the weekend guest of the Counselor of the Netherlands Embassy and Mme. Helb.

She's Miss Charlotte Koehler, who has had leading roles in plays by George Bernard Shaw, Eugene O'Neill, and other ranking playwrights.

When war came Miss Koehler remained in her country. Her voice was silenced to many of her admirers when she refused to join the newly organized guild and swear allegiance to the Nazis. Instead she gave private performances as a monologist in her home.

The Helbs will give a small cocktail party on Friday for their guest, and on Saturday, Miss Koehler will be honor guest at the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association's International Festival. On Monday, she will be a radio program guest at a luncheon at the Mayflower with Bab Lincoln.

In New York Miss Koehler met producers and technicians of the stage. Later she will go to Hollywood to learn something about movie production.

Party Hosts

THE BRITISH AMBASSADOR, Sir Oliver Franks, and Lady Franks, entertained about 200 guests at a supper party at the embassy last evening for members of the Sadler's Wells Ballet which ended its two day engagement at Constitution Hall last night. Members of the Diplomatic Corps, official society and the British Embassy staff were in the company.

Justice and Mrs. Tom Clark entertained at dinner last evening at the 1925 F Street Club for Justice Clark's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, visitors from Dallas, and for Mr. and Mrs. George Kemble and Mr. and Mrs. Watt Kemble, here from Fort Worth. Other guests included a number of Justice and Mrs. Clark's Texas friends.

The Air Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. Christopher Clarkson entertained at a cocktail party yesterday in honor of Sir Frank Whittle, inventor of the first jet airplane. The fete followed the presentation by the British Ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks, of the first successful jet aero-turbine engine, to the Smithsonian Institution.

Col. and Mrs. James Hunter Drum gave a cocktail party yesterday at their home on Rodman st. Among the guests were Mrs. J. H. Purday, mother of the hostess, and her house guest, Mrs. Norris Broaddus of Kansas City.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sewall Woodbridge gave a cocktail party and supper last evening in their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel where they make their home.

Among the 35 or more guests were Admiral and Mrs. P. A. Solberg, Capt. and Mrs. Charles W. Shilling, Dr. and Mrs. Wallace Brode, Dr. and Mrs. Irvine C. Gardener, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller, Walter Stewart, Col. and Mrs. W. S. Stone and Dr. Urner Liddell.

Mrs. Luce Hostess To Opera Guild Unit

Mrs. Gardiner Luce yesterday entertained committee members and chairmen of the Washington Opera Guild at a tea at her home. Members discussed the guild's Thanksgiving dance to be held November 25 at the Women's National Democratic Club.

Assisting Mrs. Luce were Mme. Camille Chautemps, vice chairman of the guild; Miss Dorothy Remington, artistic director; Mrs. Helen Rand of New York, Mrs. Clarke Butler and Senora Dario Contreras.

Ask Anne About Making Gravy

My gravy is always lumpy; could you give me a "sure thing" recipe for roast beef and chicken gravy? C. A. T.

There are really two methods for making gravy from roast beef and chicken:

The first method is to add flour directly to the fat in the pan in which the meat was cooked. This method is successful only if there is just fat in the pan—no other liquid. If you attempt to use this method when there is moisture in addition to the fat in the pan, you are certain to develop lumps before you get the flour and fat completely blended. If you are not sure whether you have moisture other than fat in the pan, let it heat for a minute before you add the flour. If there is other moisture, steam will rise; if there is only fat there will be no steam. If steam does rise from the pan, let it heat until all moisture is evaporated before adding flour.

Pour off excess fat if there is more than 4 tablespoonsful in the pan. Add four level tablespoons of flour and work it smooth into the fat, scraping the delicious browned particles off of the bottom and sides of the pan as you mix.

When the fat and flour are smoothly mixed, remove the pan from the stove and slowly blend in water or milk. If liquid is added while the pan is on heat, it is very difficult to avoid lumps. Add about ½ cup of liquid at the start, mix in well and add the rest of the liquid—about 2 cups in all, stirring continuously. When all liquid is added and mixture is smooth, return it to the fire and cook, continuing to stir until thick.

This method can be used with either beef or chicken gravy. Milk or water can be used for beef gravy, but milk is preferable in making chicken gravy.

The second method for making gravy is used when there is a large amount of moisture in the pan and you do not wish to take time to evaporate it away. This might be the case when making gravy from a pot roast or when chicken has been cooked with the cover on.

To use this method, mix flour in the milk or water before adding to drippings. For an average sized chicken or roast there should be only about two cups of gravy, so if you have ½ to ¾ cup of drippings in the pan, add only 1¼ to 1½ cups of milk and water. To mix the flour into this smoothly, place the liquid in a fruit jar, add 4 level tablespoons of flour. Put on the jar top and shake—the flour and liquid will mix with nary a lump. Stir constantly after flour-liquid mixture has been added to the drippings to avoid lumps.

We have just purchased a used collapsible leatherette baby carriage. The inside is in new condition; the outside, however, shows deterioration from long storage. Can you suggest any method of restoring at least to some degree its original condition and navy blue color?
L. B. W.

You can very much improve the appearance of the carriage by going over it with a thin coat of quick drying enamel or a plastic coating which is applied with a brush and is made especially for use on leather and leatherette.

Before the enamel or plastic coating is applied, wash the surface with mild soap and water. Use a minimum of water and allow it to dry thoroughly before applying the finish. If the present finish is peeling any place, brush these areas with a stiff brush to remove all loose particles.

The plastic coating comes in many colors and can be purchased at a paint store which can be reached by calling District 1130.

Please tell me how to antique a piece of furniture after all the paint and varnish has been removed. Do you use an oil paint or an enamel? H. S. K.

Because the paint is covered with a glaze in an antique finish, apply a flat white or cream oil paint, not enamel, to the furniture first. When the paint is completely dry, sandpaper it smooth. Wipe away all loose dust with a cloth moistened with turpentine. Now, apply a glaze which can be purchased at a paint store or can be made by mixing one-fourth as much turpentine with varnish and adding color-in-oil to give it the color you wish. While the glaze is still wet, wipe it with a soft cheesecloth in such a way as to remove most of it from the flat surfaces and leave it heavier on the edges or in any carvings or flutings. When wiped, you have an almost invisible tint on the high spots and flat surfaces and deeper tones of glaze in the other parts.

I am interested in securing information as to how to remove the lacquer surface of a solid brass lamp which has become badly discolored. I have tried liquid metal cleaner, which does not touch it. I have also attempted to remove the lacquer with finger-nail polish remover, but to no avail. Until the lacquer is entirely removed I will be unable to clean the brass. F. M.

The lacquer will come off if you wipe the lamp base with alcohol.

What may I do to remove two white rings on my mahogany bookcase caused by a bottle of rubbing alcohol.
A Daily Reader.

If the alcohol has not removed the finish right down to the wood, you may be able to remove the rings by rubbing with powdered pumice and oil. To apply, dip a cloth in light oil such as linseed and then touch it to the powdered pumice. Rub with the grain of the wood and keep the pumice just in the area of the stain. If this should completely remove the stain, polish the entire surface with furniture oil or wax.

If the pumice and oil does not completely remove it, you might be able to make it less conspicuous by wiping with scratch removing polish.

Let 'Em Relax

It's easy to see that the fast-growing child under three needs lots of rest. Most of us are careful about naps. Most of us watch for irritability or other signs that a youngster is tired. There's another period, too, at which very rapid growth takes place. That's at adolescence—the time when boys and girls are beginning to become adults. Around about 13 to 16 or 17 years of age, young people need a good deal of rest.

Naturally, we aren't likely to be successful if we try to insist on a nap. That's "baby stuff" to them. Unfortunately, though, we parents often take a rather moralistic attitude toward some of the ways young people get their rest during these years. We don't believe they should lie abed in the mornings. It's not good for character or something. Yet this is one way—on Saturdays at least—when extra rest can be secured.

Loafing around—another habit that bothers some of us—is also a legitimate way through which young people get some of the rest and relaxation they need.

If one remembers that during periods when rapid growth is taking place individuals need lots of rest, it may be a bit easier for us to let 'em relax.

District Schools Have More 'Customers,' Council Told

A SCHOOL, like any other business, must spend more money when it extends i its services to more customers, Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of D. C. schools, told the Council of Jewish Women yesterday.

In the case of District schools, the "more customers" are youngsters born during the wartime and postwar baby boom. Unless adequate funds for their education are provided, many of these youngsters will have to be satisfied with over-crowded classrooms—perhaps with part-time instruction.

"There should be no part-time students in the Nation's Capital," Dr. Hobart said.

In addition to the increasing birth rate, a fluctuating population can be blamed for the District's school problem, the superintendent added. Both teachers and buildings are short—and may grow shorter unless action is taken.

Dr. Corning recommended that funds necessary to increase District school facilities be raised through a bond issue. He suggested as a parallel the Capper-Cramton Act of 1930, which authorized a 16 million dollar Federal appropriation for parks and playgrounds, with reimbursement provided.

IN ANSWER to a question from the audience, Dr. Corning said he has long advocated that building permits for apartment house units be withheld until provisions for nearby schooling have been made. He said that by the time school authorities are able to make arrangements for schools, the bulldozers are already at work on the apartments, causing the price of the school site lots to rise.

John W. Tramburg, director of the Public Welfare Board, remarked that Dr. Corning "had stolen his thunder." He explained that adequate schools reduce problems of the Welfare Department.

Mr. Tramburg advocated passage of HR-6000, an extension and expansion of old age insurance which would "remove from people the stigma of receiving public assistance."

First always Always first

There is always one.

One woman who senses the direction of fashion before it is launched.

She is the woman who saw genius in the first collection of Christian Dior, whose wardrobe that year reflected the new look of fashion. She prophesied the quick rise of Jacques Fath, and she will be the first to wear Balmain's black sables.

She felt the rightness of short hair with the current silhouette. She wore the first short dinner dress, and with it, fabulously long gloves and the glittering splendor of chandelier earrings.

Always, she is first.

There is always one store that is first to launch a new fashion. In the past few days, Garfinckel's has launched two that are ahead of fashion.

Last week, for the first time anywhere, we advertised Pierre Balmain's fresh-as-dawn designs in Midnight Blue Persian and Broadtail. These fashions, straight from M. Balmain's drawing board, were shown in Washington before they were shown in his mid-season Paris collection.

We were first to bring you that magnificent new mutation, Northern Light Mink. This newest of all mutation minks will be found only at Garfinckel's across the wide world.

The woman ahead of fashion is dressed by the store ahead of fashion. In Washington, she is dressed, naturally, by Julius Garfinckel & Co.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 20, and Boy, 23, Both in College, Plan To Marry Two Years Hence, But Lad's Standoffish Behavior in Company Rouses Anxiety in Sweetheart

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 20 years old and in my last year at college, whereas Bob is 23 and has two more years of schooling ahead of him. We have planned to marry in two years, as soon as he graduates, and to become engaged this coming spring.

I know that I love him a great deal, and that he feels the same about me. However, I sometimes think that perhaps I have been too hasty in my plans for marriage.

Bob has never shown me any great amount of affection when we are with our friends or in a group; and it sometimes gets to the point where I wonder if he remembers that I am with him. He is well aware of his behavior in this respect, but he says it is something I will have to accept, for he always has been that way and probably won't change.

Says He'll Never Be Demonstrative

IN OTHER ways he is kind, good natured and considerate, and it is only with "the gang" that he acts so apart from me. He has told me that I should think before marrying him, for although he loves me a great deal, he says that he never will show me any more affection than he does now. Although I scoffed at this at first, I have been thinking of it more and more.

Do you think this attitude of his is likely to become more pronounced, and later cause me an unhappy marriage? Or do you think that I should accept this trait and think of all the other ways in which he can make me happy? E. B.

Man Is Uncertain of His Intentions

DEAR E. B.: It seems to me that you are completely at sea regarding the meaning of your emotional difficulties with Bob, and since you have no notion why his actions contradict his supposed feelings, I can only guess at the nature of the problem.

It occurs to me that Bob's variable behavior may be a reflection of his mixed feelings about you, and that his formal attitude in public is perhaps a reaction to the particular relationship, and not necessarily indicative that he never would be cordially demonstrative with a sweetheart or wife.

You say that you love him a great deal and know that he cares about you. Also that he is kind, good natured and considerate, but that he acts forbiddingly cool in the presence of "the gang." All of which suggests to me that he may be privately accepting your devotion with tentative interest and appreciation, while deeply uncertain whether he wants or intends to marry you, and therefore keeps his guard up in public, so that mutual friends will understand that he isn't serious about you;—at least, not yet.

Must Dig to Find Truth About Selves

IT IS MY belief that if Bob sincerely loved you whole-heartedly, with positive matrimonial intent, there would exist between you complete security of understanding on that score,—a subjective exchange of communication, composed of feelings that flowed without need of words,—which would leave no room for the anxiety you express now.

Or to say it another way, your anxious conviction that your happiness depends on getting public assurance of devotion suggests quaking awareness (hardly faced) that all's not well within the relationship.

Inasmuch as you and Bob are college students located in a region renowned for social enlightenment, presumably you have facilities available for doing expertly guided research into the separate psychological implications of your vaguely melancholy and bothersome courtship. And in my opinion, that type of inquiry is necessary here, if you honestly wish to get to the bottom of the muddle and perceive whether you would be boon or bane to each other in marriage. M. H.

THE muted shimmer of transparent velvet is especially lovely when seen against the soft lighting of candles in church or cathedral. Here the fabric is employed in a bridal gown, cut on regal lines. Long, tapered sleeves button at the wrist and a tiny collar tops the bodice which has a yoke-insert of seed pearl design. Traditionally, a floor length or finger-tip length veil would be called for, but in this instance a short froth of tulle is used, pinned to the small bonnet with its circlet of pearls. Available at The Hecht Co.

White Velvet Popular For a Winter Wedding

By Peggy Preston

LAST time we wrote a wedding fashion story we waxed long and rapturous about cottons and chiffons. Now, six months later, the climate demands we change our tactics, and consider velvet, brocade, heavy satin and sheer wool.

Statisticians are always surprised when they discover that December rivals June as a month for nuptials. But many a young miss has seen the advantage of having a church bedecked with holly for the holiday season as a background for her wedding. Consequently, toward the end of next month, hundreds of couples will be following a poinsettia-strewn trail to the altar. And the bride, in almost every instance, will wear white.

Chaste white is the primary choice for a formal winter wedding. The fragile, pastel shades that flourish in May and June bridal gowns are somehow out of place when the snows are falling—or about to fall, as is usually the case in Washington. Color, in rich, brilliant tones, is reserved for the attendant's dresses. This is a sound fashion policy, for it puts the spotlight squarely on the bride by virtue of the very contrast of her all-white ensemble.

The selection of fabrics is wide at this time of year. Velvet, soft and lustrous, is perhaps the most beautiful of them all. But satin, traditional all the year round, is equally becoming. This year finds many heavy satins, richly trimmed in lace.

Brocades and nylon fabrics are popular. But the girl who would like to be really different might have her wedding gown made of sheer wool, so soft and pliable that it looks like crepe.

Hemline Tastes Are Tangled

HEMLINES continue to cause speculation in feminine circles. Latest tangle of tastes comes in the formal evening gown division, where skirts this winter are taking their biggest leap upward.

At this week's fashion party at the Statler, the hemlines reflected the current state of indecision on the part of both designers and consumers. There were as many full-length evening skirts as there were short ones shown. By short, we mean those measuring about 13 or 14 inches from the floor, not the familiar ballerina or ankle-length of the past few seasons.

But there is little doubt that the abbreviated dress, reminiscent of the '20's, has to be reckoned with this winter. It is commanding more and more attention, and most women are talking about it even if they're not actually buying it yet.

At Mayflower Fashion Show

Honor guests at Monday's fashion luncheon at the Mayflower lounge were Miss Patricia McGerr, author of mystery novels; Isabel Story, head of the information department of the National Parks Service, and Edward Van Devanter.

Among hostesses for the fashion show was Mrs. Lindsey P. Rawley, who entertained for Miss Luna Diamond, winner of the recent U. S. Savings Bond Opportunity Drive.

Also lunching in the lounge were Miss Rose Saul, Senora de Morales, Mrs. Stanley Smith, Mrs. Albert Cox with a party of eight, Miss Bessie Hickey, Mrs. William Ridgeway and Mrs. Henry Powell.

With Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., was Mrs. A. E. Worswick, who is en route to Nassau. Mrs. Clark Howell Woodward, who has just returned from a visit in New York and Boston, lunch at a table with Mrs. Theodore Hayes and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris.

Women Wear The Pants!

PERHAPS it's the so-called "little boy" fashion influence but certainly there are many more trousers of various sorts in fashion this winter than we've had in a long time.

The most exciting of these are the new hostess pajamas which come to us with a Paris background. The big French dressmakers outdid themselves creating beautiful pants that are utterly feminine.

Most of them have the pants partly disguised in some way—by a tunic, by flying panels, or by one of the new full transparent skirts in lace or net that buttons on or off as you like it.

President Truman Announces Returns At Gala Democratic Club Dinner

By Woodrow Wilson—The Washington Post

By Genevieve Reynolds

President Truman last night took up the role of newscaster to announce election returns across the country. As honor guest with Mrs. Truman at a dinner given by the Women's National Democratic Club at the Mayflower Hotel, he made his announcements from the head table. Between the entree and the salad—at 8:30—he jubilantly announced a Democratic victory in Kentucky, and reported that Democrat Herbert H. Lehman was leading Republican Senator John Foster Dulles in the senatorial race in New York.

After dessert, when the guests at the head table were being introduced, the President interrupted with more news brought to him by Presidential Press Secretary Charles Ross. The New York Times and the New York Daily News, both supporters of Senator Dulles, had conceded to Lehman, and to Democratic Mayor William O'Dwyer in the New York City mayoralty contest, he said.

The President said he hoped the report was true and that if it were, the victory in New York would have a decided effect on the 1950 elections.

In Navy Blue

Standing in the glare of klieg lights and camera bulbs, the President was wearing a navy blue tuxedo, with black lapels. Mrs. Truman looked lovely in a navy blue lace dinner dress with an orchid corsage.

Addressing informally the 400 guests—members of the club and their friends—the President said that the first session of the present Congress had done a remarkable job in carrying out the platform of the Democratic Party, and predicted that the second session would do an even better job.

He expressed conviction that Congress will carry out the two great objectives of the platform—welfare and prosperity for America and welfare and prosperity for the world as a whole.

"I am sure as I stand here we will work out the situation and have peace," the President said, stressing, as he did in Point 4 of his Inaugural Address, the sharing of our technical skills and knowhow with people in undeveloped areas.

The majority of wars are caused by economic reasons and overpopulation, he said. He then pointed out some of the world's undeveloped resources. Every time he looks at the globe in his office (given him by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower when the President was on his way to the Potsdam Conference), he sees areas of untold, undeveloped resources in Latin America, Africa and Canada, he said. The Tigris-Euphrates area can again be turned into a Garden of Eden, he predicted.

For Benefit of All

Discussing the hope of developing resources for the benefit of all and not for exploitation, the President said he hopes a light will break so people will understand that if we do develop resources for the benefit of all, there will be peace in the world.

Earlier in his talk, when he was speaking about the election in New York State, President Truman credited the women in New York with doing their duty and "taking the old man" to the polls with them. As an aside, he remarked that "if the women didn't have the vote, they'd be marching up and down in front of the White House shouting, 'votes for women, votes for women, votes for women'."

"We'd better watch out or we'll have a feminist Government," he laughed.

At Speaker"s Table

Several members of the Cabinet and their wives were seated at the head table with President and Mrs. Truman. Among them were the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Jesse M. Donaldson. Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the Secretary of State, was present although her husband is in Paris at the Foreign Ministers' conference.

The American Ambassador to Denmark, Mrs. Eugenie Anderson, and her husband, John, had ringside seats at the head table along with National Democratic Committee Chairman William M. Boyle, jr., and Mrs. Boyle. Mrs. India Edwards, executive director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee, was there with her husband, Herbert Edwards.

Preceding the dinner, a cocktail party was given by Mrs. Helen Rand, Mrs. Esterlene Bell and Mrs. Elizabeth Arnold in Mrs. Rand's suite at the Mayflower Hotel. Mrs. Bell is vice president of the Democratic National Council of Women.

"You are never careful," Elsa's mother admonished her.

"But I thought I had put the top on," wailed her daughter, "now my good dress is ruined—absolutely ruined!"

"Don't be such a schmoe!" observed young sister Penelope. "Get on the ball—you've heard about 'Exquisite' haven't you? They'll dye the dress so that you won't be able to tell where you spilled the Clorox. They'll restore the original beauty of your garments and drapes to look out of this world."

Younger sisters often come through with pretty fine ideas—they are, to use their own expression, "in there pitching." And so is "Exquisite" when it comes to helping you turn bad luck into good fortune. Dyeing is it? Call "Exquisite!"

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

A POSY for the Lotus. It offers a show now which is truly novel, unique, original, and in other words a variation on the steady diet of saccharine ballroom teams with which night club patrons are stuffed.

Top billing goes to Comedian Bobby Pinkus and his assistant, Ruth. Although the agent tells us that Washington audiences, have a great disdain for comedians, they're reacting beautifully to this one. With riotous energy and unabashed ribaldry and foolishness. Bobby keeps the kids howling and couples gasping in surprise.

Two young girls, the Carroll sisters, have a cute act which is a caricature of feminine friendships. "I Can Do Anything You Can Do" has each of them trying to outdo the other with dance steps and feminine wiles.

Lea Wallace, a puppeteer who usually sticks close to theater stages, performs with unusually clever puppet creations. Whether Spanish dancers, chorus girls, or French street characters, their dances are various and intricate. It's not night club fare, but then—why not?

BLUE BARRON is now in the Statler's Embassy Room for two weeks. His band is a 16-piece affair and all of his musicians sing in addition to their other duties. This accounts for the continuous vocals. Each song has vocals, each title is also sung. It may range from a solitary voice or harmony in trios, quintets, etc., to a glee club.

Blue Barron has had the one thought of being kind to the listeners' ear drums since the days when he was Sammy Kaye's manager at Ohio U. After graduation he started a theatrical booking agency in Cleveland. But his mind was on the kind of band he wanted, and he found himself studying the available musicians for use with his imaginary band. Succumbing to the idea, he organized the band, and sold it to hotels on the strength of only sweet music—"the music of yesterday and today."

Fulbright Will Seek Probe of RFC Lending

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 8 (AP).—Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) said tonight he will seek a full-scale congressional investigation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's lending policies.

He told a reporter he will recommend an investigation when Congress reconvenes in January.

Fulbright, chairman of a Senate Banking Subcommittee, reached his decision after the RFC today turned down his request that a 44 million-dollar loan to the Kaiser-Frazer Automobile Corp. be delayed.

The Arkansas Senator said he feared the loan might not be in accord with RFC objectives and "a step toward putting the Government in the automobile business."

"My conception of the RFC," he said, "is to serve in a great general business depression * * *. The RFC was not set up to prevent any just bankruptcy."

His office said Kaiser-Frazer had lost money in the first half of 1949.

Fulbright is to hear the auto firm's side of the story tomorrow. K-F officials came here tonight to confer with the Senator.

K-F wants the money to produce a low-cost car.

Earlier today, Henry J. Kaiser described as "low down" Fulbright's request that the loan be held up, adding:

"A plot to stop Kaiser-Frazer from producing the low-priced car for which Americans have been clamoring for years is at last out in the open."

Commenting on this, Fulbright asserted:

"The idea of a plot is perfectly ridiculous. I don't even know any of the manufacturers. I just don't think RFC interprets the law in the spirit it was intended. . . . He (Kaiser) is just talking out of his hat."

The RFC wired the Arkansas Senator that his request was too late because the agency's board of directors "already has finally approved" the K-F loan.

Cotton Crop Is Due to Set 12-Year Mark

The Government estimated yesterday that this year's cotton crop will total 15,524,000 bales of 500 pounds each—biggest in 12 years and 78,000 bales larger than last month's estimate.

While final production estimates will not be made until next month, Agriculture Department officials predicted this year's crop will swell the Nation's surplus cotton stockpiles by about three million bales.

The surplus is expected to climb to about eight million bales when next year's crop is harvested, despite the Government's best efforts to discourage production.

Growers will vote December 16 on whether to accept the proposal of Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan for a 20-percent cutback in cotton acreage next year. Unless two-thirds of the growers approve the proposal, they may lose their price support guarantees.

This year's cotton estimate compares with last year's actual production of 14,868,000 bales, which itself was the largest crop in 11 years. Production during the 10-year period 1938-47 averaged 11,306,000 bales a year.

Dismissal Asked in Milk Trust Case

District Court was asked yesterday to dismiss the antitrust indictment against the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Assn., Inc., and local milk dealers on the ground that the grand jury returning the true bill was illegally constituted.

The motion to dismiss was filed by Attorney John F. Hillyard, attorney for Simpson Bros., Inc., one of the companies indicted.

Hillyard charged that since majority of the grand jury were Government employes, the indictment is necessarily null and void.

Hillyard recalled the questioning this week in the Supreme Court of the use of Government employes on criminal juries where the offense is against the United States Government.

Hillyard contends that 11 of the grand jurymen in the milk case were Government workers, one was a retired Government worker and two or three others were of doubtful status.

He urged the District Court not to try the milk case until the situation as to the Federal workers on juries is clarified.

Tests of Color Video Put Off Until Nov. 21-22

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday postponed for a week the comparative tests of proposed color television systems.

The demonstrations had been set to start here next Monday. They now will be held November 21-22.

These tests will involve side-by-side showings of the rival color systems developed by Columbia Broadcasting System and Radio Corporation of America. The Allen B. Dumont Laboratories are to screen black-and-white reception of the same subject matter for comparative purposes.

RCA had asked a two-months delay to permit further field testing of its equipment. Dumont had urged postponing the tests until next year so that Color Television, Inc., of San Francisco, sponsor of a third color system, might have a chance to take part.

The commission has arranged another comparative demonstration of all the systems here the week of February 6.

Business Outlook

Murray's Conquest in Steel Refutes Big-Business Myth

By J. A. Livingston

THE AGREEMENT ending the strike at Bethlehem Steel is a crushing blow to believers in big-business "cohesion." Bethlehem didn't follow the leader. The steel industry did not present a united front of opposition to the United Steelworkers of America. Some guy, who has a fine office in some grand tower in Wall st. did not pull the strings.

Yet the dispute started out with U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and most of the industry all in the same family. First, they refused Murray's pension demands. Then most companies refused to appear before President Truman's fact-finding board. Then U. S., Bethlehem and the other companies which has previously said no to the President reconsidered and agreed to appear. Then, after hearings, they rejected, almost as a unit, the board's recommendations.

Livingston

For Bethlehem, the controlling factor in breaking ranks was that it already had a pension plan similar to that which the fact-finding board recommended. It suited Bethlehem's interest to raise the pension ante and gain a competitive march by (a) supplying steel to its customers and (b) developing good relations with the union. All of which suggests that "big business" isn't monolithic in thought, action, or policy.

UNION LEADERS, who are always looking for ways to separate employers from one another, know that well. Nevertheless, they're always ready to declaim otherwise in speeches to workers or in newspaper interviews. Thus Phillip Murray, head of the steelworkers, said at a press conference in Chicago during the strike:

"I am satisfied in my own mind that this is a deliberate attempt by the financial interests in the steel industry to destroy unions. I am referring particularly to the House of Morgan."

Murray, by negotiating separately with Bethlehem, demolished his own theory.

Managements, of course, have a community of interest. Most executives are anxious to make profits. So, they're interested in increased sales. That means they would like to reduce prices whenever feasible. Toward that objective they want to keep costs down. Unless there's increased output per worker they resist wage increases. That community of interest, however, does not make executives any more conspiratorial, say, than John L. Lewis, William Green and Murray, who, as labor leaders, want to push wages up.

Moreover, because their economic interests are diverse and competitive, managements seldom hold a united front for long. In May, 1948, General Motors pulled the plug right out from under a Chrysler strike. Chrysler had offered the United Auto Workers 6 cents, the union insisted on 17 cents. When the strike was two weeks old, General Motors granted the union a two-year cost-of-living wage contract, calling for an immediate wage boost of 11 cents. Chrysler then capitulated.

BENJAMIN FAIRLESS, president of U. S. Steel, himself, has broken employer ranks. In July, 1947, he and George M. Humphrey, chairman of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal, granted John L. Lewis a 31-cents-an-hour wage-pension package in the coal industry and ended a coal strike. Just before that, Fairless had settled with Murray for 15 cents an hour, which has a bearing on why Murray had to get a pension this year.

Lewis, incidentally, is a master in splinteration. He has been so successful in getting one group of coal operators to settle and then forcing the agreement on all the others that this year Illinois and Indiana coal owners refused to come into his parlor. They declined Lewis, invitations to separate negotiations.

Opponents of "big business" have an answer to all the foregoing. They say U. S. Steel got itself out on a limb. It couldn't give ir to Murray. But it didn't want a long steel strike to cripple the country. So it gave Bethlehem the nod to settle. Bethlehem obeyed.

P. S. I can just picture Eugene Grace and Arthur Homer of Bethlehem taking orders from Fairless, Morgan, or anyone else!

U. S. Has Enough Rubber Now, Firestone Says

San Francisco, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—This country has become self sufficient in rubber, says Leonard K. Firestone, president of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company of California.

He told a section of the American Chemical Society convention recently that "with our synthetic plants and a good stockpile of natural rubber, our position is secure.

"Never again will we be in the desperate plight into which we were thrown after Pearl Harbor."

Firestone said also that a reasonable and stable price for rubber has been reached so that prices for raw rubber will not be made subject to wild speculation and resultant booms and collapses.

He said synthetic rubber now is as good as or better than natural rubber and even better synthetic compounds are in prospect.

10-Month Ford Output Exceeds Total of 1948

Detroit, Nov. 8 (AP).—Ford Motor Co.'s production of cars, trucks and tractors in the first 10 months of 1949 totaled 1,206,088 units. Announcing this today the company said the total included 706,122 Ford cars; 169,522 Mercurys; 31,567 Lincolns; 208,398 trucks and coaches and 90,479 tractors.

In all of last year Ford production totaled 1,153,083 vehicles. The biggest year in the company's history was 1923 when production totaled 1,923,360 units, mostly model T cars.

Cotton Estimate Revised Higher

By The Associated Press

The Agriculture Department, in its semifinal report of the year, yesterday estimated the cotton crop at 15,524,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight.

This is 78,000 bales more than the 15,446,000 forecast a month ago. It compares with 14,868,000 last year and a 10-year (1937-47) average of 11,306,000.

The indicated crop is considerably larger than expected market demands. This situation has led the department to propose rigid marketing quotas on the 1950 crop designed to limit production to about 12 million bales.

The quota proposal will be submitted to growers at a referendum to be held December 15. It must be approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting before it can be put into effect.

Public Relations Unit To Meet Here Dec. 2

The American Public Relations Association will hold its fourth annual meeting, in conjunction with a regional public relations forum workshop, Washington Hotel, December 2.

Highlighting the day's activities will be two panel discussions on the subject, Whose Business Is Your Business In Washington, in which all viewpoints on methods of business representation in the nation's capital-government, labor, press, lobbying, public relations, legal and trade association, will be discussed by specialists in each field.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Cotton futures closed 5 to 15 cents a bale lower today with the November Government cotton crop forecast only a minor factor in the trading.

Evening up operations accounted for a good part of early dealings until the Department of Agriculture issued its report placing the 1949 cotton crop at 15,524,000 bales. This compared with its October estimate of 15,446,000 and the 1948 actual production of 14,868,000. Traders had looked for today's report to show a small decline from the October estimate. The outlook on the cotton supply for this season was about unchanged at 20,700,000 bales. Dealers said estimated domestic consumption will absorb about eight million bales and xeport ideas rangde between four million and 4,500,000. On this basis the cotton carrrover on July 31 next, The end of the current crop season, would be 8,200,000 to 8,700,000 bales. While this would constitute a large addition to the country's surplus stocks, dealers expected the excess to move into the Governmet loan.

Filene Store Shows Sharp Sales Climb

By S. Oliver Goodman

Sales are picking up sharply at the Edward A. Filene Cooperative of Virginia, the first consumer-owned department store in America.

The store, in the Shirlington shopping center in nearby Arlington County, showed a 35.7 percent increase in sales from March through October as compared with the same period in 1948. The cooperative opened for business in March, 1948.

Dollar volume in September jumped 80 percent ahead of the same month last year, while October sales reported 63 percent larger.

The sharp sales upturn this year should reverse the severe losses suffered by the cooperative in its first experimental year, according to Kingsley Higgins, local store manager.

A change in name recently was approved by the store's board of directors, at the request of the William Filene's Sons Corp. of Boston. Hereafter, the Virginia operation will be known as the Shirlington Cooperative Department Store. In advertising, it will be called "Shrlington Co-op (The E. A. Filene Department Store)."

The name change, it was explained, "will avoid confusion in the trade."

The Shirlington store originally was named in honor of the late Edward A. Filene, father of the cooperative credit union movement and chief supporter of the use of consumer cooperative methods in business enterprise. The local store was opened with the backing of the Consumer Distribution Corp. of New York, which was founded by Mr. Filene.

A local board of directors, elected by the store's consumer-owner's, is headed by Mrs. David Lloyd of Alexandria.

A second cooperative department store has since been opened in Providence, R. I., also with the assistance of Consumer Distribution Corp.

EQUITABLE: Walter S. Pratt, jr., who has completed a half century of service with Equitable Cooperative Building Association, was reelected president of the F st. institution for his thirteenth term. All other officers were reelected at the seventieth annual meeting, as were four directors whose three-year terms were up. Secretary Edward L. McAleer reported that assets totaled $12,531,166 and share accounts $11,324,776.

HONOR: Thomas W. Brahany will be honored by the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick at a dinner Thursday night in the Mayflower.

Brahany

Brahany, one of the best-known personalities in the local financial district, is an executive in the Washington office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane. He is a former president of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick and is widely famed for his song and play-writing talents. A former newspaperman, Brahany at one time was assistant secretary to Presidents Taft and Wilson. He is also a member of the District Unemployment Compensation Board.

CUTS CARGO RATES: Colonial Airlines announced yesterday that its cargo rates between Washington, New York and Bermuda would be reduced 20 to 40 percent. Greatest reduction would apply to specific items such as food, flowers, newspapers, magazines and related accessories. The cut is effective immediately.

Market Holiday

Principal securities market in New York were closed yesterday for election day. The Washington Stock Exchange also suspended for the day. Another holiday is due Friday, Armistice Day.

Tax Evader Gets 2 Years

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP). — A self-educated millionaire paper company owner was sentenced to two years imprisonment today for evading $1,267,512 in income taxes.

He is Alvin E. Sandroff, 47. Defense attorneys said Sandroff's education ended at the fifth grade and contended it was his unfamiliarity with tax matters that caused the shortage.

The Gvernment said the income tax was owned by the Thomas Paper Stock Co. and the Rockton Felt & Paper Co., both of Chicago. Sandroff owns both companies.

Sandroff pleaded guilty to two indictments and was sentenced to two years on each, the terms to run concurrently. In addition the two companies were fined $500 each. He pleaded innocent to an individual tax evasion charge. Prosecutors said the individual charge will be dropped.

Sandroff was accused of evading $824,305 from 1942 to 1944. There were similar charges against the Thomas company and Bert Derdiger of Chicago, an officer of the company. The charge against Derdiger was dismissed.

Sandroff also was accused of evading $443,207 in 1944 and 1945. There were similar charges against the Rockton company and Charles Crane, 35, company secretary. Crane has pleaded guilty and is awaiting a report on a probation investigation.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—Grains rallied at the Board of Trade today, and closed with a firm tone, after early irregularity. Wheat was weak in the nearby deliveries at the start, but buying attributed to mills against sales of flour to Eastern bakeries, developed some strength.

Traders said that the market had been oversold and that the result of the day's trading was somewhat in the nature of a technical correction.

At the finish wheat was 1⅛ to 1⅞ higher, corn was up 1½ to 1⅞, oats were ⅝ to ¾ higher, rye was ¾ to 1½ higher, soybeans were 1½ to 3 cents higher and lard was 15 to 20 cents a hundredweight higher.

GM Stock Tops $72 in Lively Chicago Deals

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—General Motors, with a gain of 3⅜ at 72⅝, dominated trading today on the Chicago Stock Exchange as a result of the corporation's increased dividend.

All other stock exchanges in the country, including the big New York Stock Exchange, were closed because of elections.

General Motors closed Monday with a modest gain of ¼ at 69¼ at Chicago. On the New York exchange it gained ¼ at 69⅛ Monday. After the close the General Motors dividend report was issued.

Profits of $502,414,029, equal to $11.21 a share, for the first nine months of this year set a record and compared with $327,155,222, or $7.22 a share, a year ago. And a dividend of $4.25 was declared bringing 1949 payments to $8 a common share as against total 1948 payments of $4.50.

Heavy demand for General Motors on the Chicago exchange was apparent from the beginning of the market today and it jumped to 71¾ on an opening block of 500 shares. It touched a high point during the day of 73 before falling back to close at 72⅝.

Chrysler was another favorite gaining 1⅝ at 59, ex-dividend. Studebaker was up ⅝ at 25⅝. U. S. Steel closed with a gain of ¼ at 25¼.

Other closing prices and net changes included Admiral Corp. up ½ at 28¾, Bethlehem Steel up ¼ at 30½, Nash up ⅛ at 15¼, Sears Roebuck up ⅜ at 42⅜, and Graham-Paige unchanged at 2⅜.

In the London stock market a selling wave pounded down British government securities by ½ to more than 1 point. Proceeds from the sale of these government securities apparently were switched to gold mining and dollar shares. General Motors was a favorite with a gain of 6½ points at 153. The shares are priced in dollars.

Burma Taxes 'Luxuries' Like Soap, Tooth Paste

Rangoon, Nov. 8 (AP).—Luxury items imported into Burma are to be taxed from November 1, according to a Burmese government announcement.

Governmental classification of "luxury goods" includes soap, tooth paste and tooth brushes.

It states that these luxury goods are regarded as superflous to the people's needs.

Riggs' Board Votes Special $3 Dividend

Directors of Riggs National Bank yesterday declared a special dividend of $3 a share on capital stock, payable December 15 to stock of record November 30.

This will bring total payments for 1949 to $15 a share, as compared with $14 a share last year. From 1944 through 1947, an annual dividend rate of $12 a share was maintained and $10 a share was paid in 1943.

President Robert V. Fleming, in announcing the $3 special dividend, said. "This action by the board of directors was taken in view of the excellent condition of the bank and the satisfactory earnings for the year 1949, which enabled the bank to make this special disbursement to shareholders and, at the same time, to continue its established policy of adding substantially to the capital structure of the bank."

Other Dividend Actions

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Simonds Saw & Steel Co. declared a dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, payable December 15 to stock of record November 17. Last year the company paid $1.60 on December 15. Payments in 1949 will total $2.60 against $3.70 in 1948.

Directors of Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock, payable January 10 to stock of record December 15. Previously the company paid 50 cents quarterly. An extra of 75 cents was paid on October 10. The fiscal year ends July 31.

Botany Cuts Prices

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Botany Mills, Inc., today announced retail price reductions or around $1 in some of its spring line of Botany brand shirts and slacks.

Gabardine slacks were reduced from $15.95 a pair to $14.95 on one line and from $18.95 to $17.95 on another.

One line of wool gabardine shirts that sold for $11.95 will retail for $10.95; the all worsted gambler shirt will be tagged $14.95 instead of $15.95.

Among the largest reductions is a flannel shirt with rayon-lined collar that has been cut from $11.95 to $9.95.

Lang Rejected For Christ in Passion Play

Oberamergau, Germany, Nov. 8 (AP).—The village elders today rejected 58-year-old Alois Lang, adjudged a minor Nazi follower, for the role of Christ in the 1950 Passion Play, expected to open May 21.

They chose, instead, 37-year-old Anton Preisinger, a father of five children. The mild-mannered innkeeper has curly brown hair and beard.

Chosen to play the Virgin Mary was Annemie Mayr, 20, blond daughter of a building constructor.

Lang, who played Christ in the most recent Oberammergau Passion Plays in 1930 and 1935, lost out to Preisinger not because he formerly was a member of the Nazi Party but because of his age, the villagers said. He was selected to read the prologue.

Lang told a denazification court last year he joined the party to avoid persecution and financial ruin.

At the same time, he said, he did not think he was robust enough to repeat the Passion Play role.

The performance, which lasts eight hours, requires the actor of the part to be on the stage for long periods and to carry a heavy cross.

$25,000 Given GW for Cancer Instruction

A continuation grant of $25,000 for cancer instruction has been awarded George Washington University School of Medicine, it was announced yesterday by the United States Public Health Service.

The District institution was among 27 such schools receiving annual grants ranging from $1652 to $25,000, made by the National Cancer Institute.

Grants on the list made public totaled $634,971. They were approved by Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele of the Public Health Service upon recommendation of the National Advisory Cancer Council.

In all, cancer education for medical students is now aided in 75 of the Nation's 79 medical schools through these funds, it was reported.

The grant to George Washington University School of Medicine will be used to maintain its cancer clinic which provides help to sufferers as well as giving "on-the-job" training to students, according to Dr. Calvin T. Klopp, coordinator of cancer activities at the school.

The Medical College of Virginia at Richmond also received a $25,000 grant.

71-Billion Fund Recommended For U. S. Roads

More than 11 billion dollars is necessary to eliminate deficiencies in the interstate highway system, Thomas H. MacDonald, commissioner of the Bureau of Public Roads, declared yesterday.

He said this estimate was based on 1948 prices and contemplated improvement of about 6000 bridges and construction of about 5000 other bridges on sections requiring relocation.

Speaking to the American Road Builders Association conference at the Mayflower Hotel, MacDonald also cited a recent report of the American Association of State Highway Officials to the effect that a 60-billion-dollar street and local highway program is necessary in the next 15 years.

Additional criticism of present highways came from Jennings Randolph, assistant to the president of Capital Airlines, Inc., and former Democratic Congressman from West Virginia.

Randolph described highways in "woefully deteriorated condition" and declared, "We can no longer postpone a long range, integrated highway program . . . planned for continuous prosecution over a period of years."

Revere Homes Inspected by Press Today

The latest in modern housing will be unveiled here this afternoon and tomorrow when two "Revere Quality Homes" are opened for a special press preview. The homes will be opened to the public for one month beginning Sunday.

Both were selected by the Southwest Research Institute, Revere Quality House Division, as outstanding contemporary houses in the Washington area. Other homes of proven quality and design, selling for under $20,000, have been exhibited by Revere in other large cities.

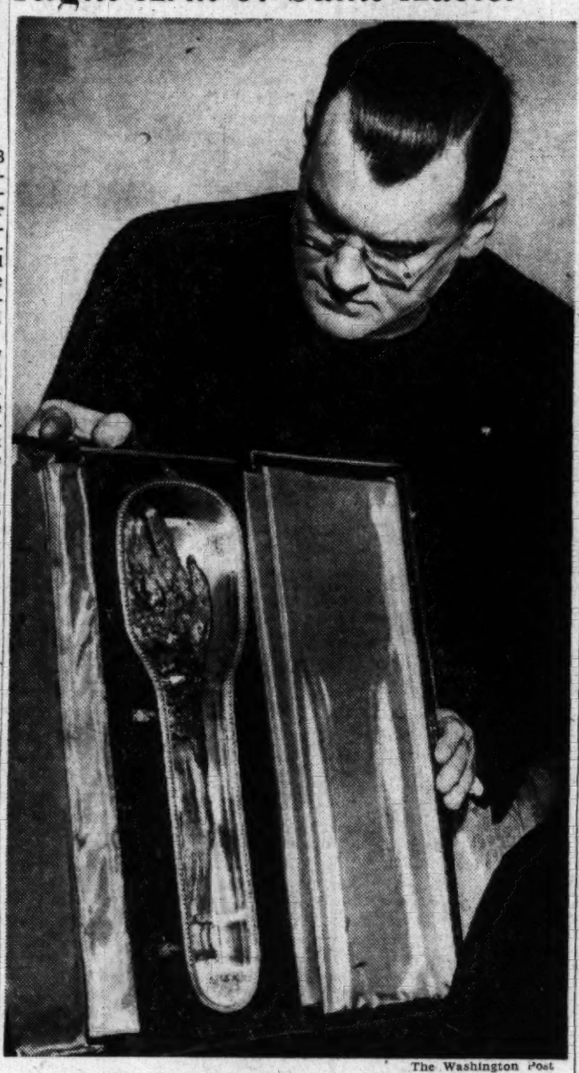
One home is at 5914 Anniston rd., Alta Vista Terrace, Bthesda, Md., built by the Carl M. Freeman, Inc., to sell for $14,950. The other is at Hollin Hills, off Fort Hunt rd., Alexandria, Va., erected by Hollin Hills, Inc., and priced at $17,250.

The Freeman home is a 3-bedroom residence, radiant-heated, of California modern architecture. The Hollin Hills model is built on three levels on a wooded hillside.

Local sponsorship of the homes is by the Washington Junior Chamber of Commerce and Hollin Hall School Equipment Fund. The Revere project is part of a nationwide drive to speak construction of quality modern homes costing under $20,000.

Press and radio representatives will tour the Freeman home today from 4 to 7 p. m. The Hollin Hills house will hold its preview tomorrow from 5 to 7 p. m.

District Catholics Venerate Right Arm of Saint Xavier



The Washington Post

RELIGIOUS RELIC—The Rev. Neil Gargan, pastor of St. Aloysius Church, displays the preserved hand of St. Francis Xavier, the "Apostle of the Indies." Scriptures say the saint used it to baptize between 700,000 and one million concerts to the Catholic Church in Asia in the sixteenth century

The right arm of St. Francis Xavier, whose death occurred four centuries ago and half a world away, was raised in blessing over hundreds of devout Washington Catholics in ceremonies here yesterday.

The ancient relic of a faith more ancient was flown by plane from Boston. It will be venerated here until Friday and then will be taken to Baltimore.

This year is the 400th anniversary of St. Francis Xavier's landing in Japan for missionary work. He died three years later, en route to China. Pope Pius XII sent the sacred right arm of the evangelist on an anniversary world tour to encourage present-day missionary work. It was shown to thousands in Japan earlier this year. It has been seen by other thousands in numerous cities in this country since September. It will go finally to St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City early next month and then will be returned to its centuries old resting place in Rome.

One of the most treasured relics of the Catholic Church, the arm was brought into Washington without ceremony by the Rev. Arthur R. McGratty, S. J., national director of the Apostleship of Prayer, of which St. Francis Xavier is the world patron.

He stepped from the plane at National Airport about 2 p. m. and was greeted in the terminal building a few moments later by four Washington priests. They were: The Rev. Neil Gargan, S. J., pastor of St. Aloysius Church; the Rev. Russell Phelan, pastor of Annunciation Parish; the Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., of Holy Trinity Church, and the Rev. William Horrigan, S. J., also of St. Aloysius Church.

Father McGratty carried the relic in an oblong black leather case. The group drove in automobiles without escort to a number of points for simple veneration services.

First stop was at the rectory of St. Patrick's Church, 10th and G sts. nw., where the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, was shown the relic. The covers of the black case fold back to reveal an inner case of gold, through whose glass cover is seen the arm. It includes the hand and the bone of the forearm.

The body of St. Francis Xavier rests in the Cathedral at Goa in India. Father Horrigan said the arm was removed within a few years of St. Francis' death and was taken to Rome. He said it had been taken from Rome on but one previous occasion, through Spain in 1929.

Second ceremony yesterday was at St. Gabriel's Church, Grant Circle, where the students of the parish saw the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Washington, hold up the arm to bless them. Then they filed past to touch the relic's case.

Other Exhibitions

Similar ceremonies followed at Trinity College for the students there and at the Convent of Notre Dame, North Capitol and K sts.

Father Horrigan and Father Gargan showed the relic to patients at Providence Hospital last night including John Barrett, brother of Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, hospital officials said. Barrett is suffering from arthritis. The relic will be kept overnight at Holy Trinity Church, 36th and O sts. nw.

It is to be shown at Georgetown University at 9 a. m. today, at the Visitation Convent at 10 a. m., at Georgetown Hospital at 10:30 a. m., at the Good Shepherd Convent at 11 a. m., and from noon until after the 8 p. m. service it will be at Holy Trinity Church. It is to be at St. Aloysius Church all day Thursday. Friday it will be taken to other Washington schools and hospitals, then to Woodstock College in Maryland en route to Baltimore where it will arrive about noon.

11 Hurt as D. C. Bus, Baltimore Trolley Crash

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (AP).—A Washington-New York bus smashed into a trolley car in downtown Baltimore today. Eleven passengers were injured, none seriously.

The trolley was knocked off the tracks. Virginia State Lines, Inc., with headquarters in Washington, D. C., owns the bus.

Mercenary German Army Rep. Poage Idea

By The Associated Press

Maintenance of a mercenary German army as a bulwark against Russia is advocated by Representative Poage (D., Tex.).

Outlining his views in a newly issued appendix to the Congressional Record, the Texan said such a step would be "the most practical and most hopeful method" of preventing war.

"America should immediately arm and equip a strong modern army in western Europe and a similar force in eastern Asia," he said.

Models for Forrestal Bust to Total About 40

Between 30 and 40 sculptors are expected to submit models of busts of the late James Forrestal, first Secretary of Defense, for consideration by the Forrestal Memorial Committee when it meets at the Pentagon at 10:30 today.

Spokesmen for the committee, which is headed by Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson, said present plans call for the group to select a sculptor at today's meeting despite protests from many sculptors that their procedure is irregular and unethical.

Roland Hayes Sings Here Wonderfully

By Paul Hume

What a great artist Roland Hayes is.

The wonderful lyric tenor sang last night in Lincoln Congregational Church to a capacity house. His art is subtle and yet so simple and eloquent that it is hard to describe it. To define it would be impossible.

It consists, in part, of the highest standards of performance and repertoire. The names of the composers he lists are often familiar: Saint-Saens, Schubert, Handel, Bach—these are all names we know.

But one could not name five tenors today who sing Bach with the combination of reverence and perfection of style Hayes brings to it. And from the quiet moments of an old English song, he turns to bravura dramatic recitation as in the tour de force of Saint-Saens' Tournoiment, or the coloratura of the classic masters.

His tone is as velvet as of old, and in quiet moments of rarest purity. His French diction has no parallel. With it he made of a slender song by Henri Tomasi a thing of deep emotion.

Hayes is equally unique in his reading of his own Negro work songs and spirituals. From these one could single out Litl Boy, or Sister Mary Had But One Child, but they were all striking and all great.

Reginald Boardman played for Hayes as he has for many years. His work in Bach and Saint-Saens was no less than virtuoso. We are more grateful than we can say for the one visit a year Roland Hayes pays Washington. We are ashamed that it cannot be in our largest concert hall. Europe's crowned heads have honored him but we, with our democratic hats off, cannot.

LAFF-A-DAY

Beecham Gives Mozart 'Zest' At Rehearsal

By Paul Hume

Sir Thomas Beecham spoke to the National Symphony Orchestra in rehearsal:

"Imagine someone you strenuously dislike; and then suppose you had full freedom and opportunity of jumping on his chest, and I mean with both feet. That's the opening of this symphony."

Sir Thomas was referring to the beginning of Mozarts "Haffner" symphony, No. 35. Mozart might be amazed at such a description of his music but the players understood exactly. They started in with a zest that brought a big smile to the famous British conductor's face.

"Now the end of the symphony," he said some time later. "Go back to eight measures before the end and get plenty of excitement into the ending—just go completely mad."

The great conductor is appearing as guest director of the orchestra tonight in Constitution Hall.

He greeted the orchestra at his first rehearsal Monday morning with this charming opener: "Hm—I see you have ladies. I never use them in my orchestra, the men don't like it. They come to me and say, "Sir Thomas, we don't want ladies in the orchestra. If they are unattractive we don't like to play, and if they're attractive, we can't!"

Sir Thomas, who will lecture on Mozart Thursday night at the Library of Congress, was pleased as the rehearsal progressed. He smiled at various players when they turned a beautiful phrase for him, much as a father might beam on a well-behaved child. "Very good, very good," was his principal comment.

When he finished with the larger pieces to be practiced, he dismissed the players he no longer needed. "Go out and enjoy the humorous distractions of your city," he advised them.

Beecham will bring his own orchestra, the Royal Philharmonic to the United States next year on a tour of the entire country. His appearances with the National Symphony are the first on his present trip, which will take him as far west at Dallas, Tex.

Girard Alumni Session

The National Capital Chapter of Girard College Alumni will hold its November meeting at the home of its president, Jesse B. Manbeck, General Scott Apartments, 16th and Rhode Island ave. nw., at 8 o'clock tonight.

What's the Verdict?

The Domestic Scene

Q. A husband and wife bought a house soon after they were married, the husband contributing $1000 to the down payment and the wife $100. Both signed notes for the rest of the purchase price. The deed was made out to them jointly. Several months later the wife deserted the husband. The husband sues for divorce; and the wife, while not opposing the divorce, insists that the court should divide the value of the house equally between them. What result?

A. In the District, the statute governing such a problem provides that in the absence of a valid agreement between the parties as to the disposition of the property, the court shall have power in the divorce proceedings to make a reasonable apportionment of the property. Since the wife contributed only $100 to the down payment, and lived with her husband only a few months before deserting him, the court could reasonably find that she was entitled to $100 plus half of what was paid up to the time of desertion. The fact the title was in their names jointly would not entitle her to half the value of the house. F. L. D.

Bishop Oxnam Sees Yearning For More Abundant Living

The "most important single social fact of our day" is that there is a "yearning in the hearts of common men all over the world for more abundant living," Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam declared last night.

Bishop Oxnam, head of the New York area of the Methodist Church, spoke at an evening session of the thirty-third annual convocation of the School of Religion at Howard University.

Because of gains made in recent years in solving the problems of production, he said, the common man believes that it is only selfishness that stands between him and his goal of more abundant living.

Unless the Christian forces of the world have an answer to this problem, the bishop said, they will find themselves standing by and watching while the common people mistakenly follow the demagogues who offer a panacea.

At the center of the modern crisis, the issue is not whether there will be change or continuity, but the nature of the change, Bishop Oxnam said, pointing to the two alternatives of change by consent or change by coercion.

Communists, he said, know perfectly well that no matter how well they infiltrate the United States they cannot seize power unless certain conditions exist.

We have been "perfectly willing to bow Sunday after Sunday in church and say 'Our Father'" but have not been willing to face its ethical meaning of the brotherhood of man, Bishop Oxnam said.

Earlier George L.-P. Weaver of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, called for closer cooperation between the Christian churches and the American labor movement.

Aims of the labor movement, he said, are similar to those of the Christian church. In the past, the labor movement has often found a lack of awareness and understanding of its problems by the church, he said.

Weaver is director of the National Committee to Abolish Discrimination of the CIO.

Sessions will be continued today when Bishop Oxnam and Dr. Buell G. Gallagher of the Federal Security Agency will speak. At 8 p. m. today the annual convocation banquet will be held in Frazier Hall with Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of the university, as the speaker.

THE DISTRICT LINE

by Bill Gold

It's Almost That Time Of the Year Again

Don't look now, but it won't be long before your radio will again begin to bombard you with: "All I Want for Christmas Is My Two Front Teeth."

INSIDE DOPE

Nate Leiderman of 1508 41st st. se. had a toothache last week and growls: "Believe me; abscess does NOT make the heart grow fonder."

OPEROSE PUZZLES

Mrs. W. Barnett of 4754 Homer ave. se. thinks The Washington Post's Crossword Puzzle is too easy.

"Couldn't they make it harder?" she asks. "Couldn't they give us something that would take longer than 5 minutes to finish?"

She can't be serious.

After many years of diligent application, I have learned that "to spread, as for drying" is "ted." And "wine cask" is "tun." Whereas "Arab garment" is usually "aba."

But "relating to gypsum," "skagger," "genus of perennial grasses," "ring-tailed lemurs" and "Siamese coin" are tough enough for me.

MISCELLANY

If you dial a wrong number and the voice at the other end informs you that your party has "just left for Zanzibar," you've probably called Ted Bullockus of 6323 Luzon ave. nw., who is getting a bit weary of all the wrong numbers which have been coming his way lately . . . Emma W. Muncaster of Derwood, Md., tells me that some friends from Mississippi were in town with their daughters, aged 9 and 12. Apparently the girls weren't very familiar with the ways of the Big City, because when they came home from a shopping expedition they confided that they'd had a wonderful time in the department stores, riding the "excavators" . . . Mrs. Edythe Spitzberg of 1883 Ingleside ter. nw., says Transit Radio doesn't bother her; she can listen or not, just as she chooses, and when she wants to talk or read it's no problem to ignore the background noises . . . Karen Kruse of 8521 Glenview ave., Takoma Park, Md., tells me that several Sherlock Holmes fans have gotten together as a result of an item in this space, and have formed a Washington chapter of the Baker Street Irregulars . . . Lynn Wilson, blonde WINX program director who keeps promising herself that some day she'll quit radio and go back home to Arkansas to get into politics, passes along the story of how Waker-Upper Jerry Strong spent his birthday recently. Listeners sent Neighbor Strong more than 200 birthday cakes, plus ice cream and candy, and Jerry shared his feast with the patients at Children's and Freedmen's Hospitals . . . Reminds me of a contribution from Sam Newman of 134 B st. ne. Sam says that when WLBJ opened its broadcasting facilities in Bowling Green, Ky., they advertised: "Where Life Brings Joy."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Major Barrett should give his policemen a review course in the proper respect for the flag. Watch them during a parade, and you'll see that they seldom asknowledge the passing of the colors properly.

Name Withheld.
Major, USAF.

Dear Major:

Major Barrett's office says you don't seem to know much about a policeman's duties at a parade.

An officer on the line of march is supposed to have his back to the parade, so that he can watch the crowd for any sign of disturbance.

Cops are human, and they'd like to see the show, too. But their instructions are to keep their backs turned.

When a policeman is not assigned to such duty, then he salutes the colors when they pass, and also salutes the playing of the National Anthem. If he's in civilian dress, he removes his hat to conform with civilian practice. Bill.

PUN FUN

Leonidas (Santa Claus) Beall of 6420 Western ave., Chevy Chase, Md., confides that the reason bankers are successful is that they take so much interest in their work.

BABY, IT'S COLD OUTSIDE

Yes, summer romances have faded away . . . and if you must know, there's a reason . . . They never survive after Labor Day—'cause . . . They simply expire with the season.

Truman and Ickes Hold Hands

By Drew Pearson

Harry Truman and Harold Ickes, both men of positive opinions and quick tempers, had a long and friendly talk the other day. There was a time when the two almost spit in each other's face over the question of making Oilman Ed Pauley Undersecretary of the Navy, but the other day all past unpleasantness evaporated as the two discussed New York politics and Indian affairs.

Harold Ickes

It was because of Ickes' interest in Indians that he was first made Secretary of the Interior 17 years ago. He had been recommended merely as Commissioner of Indian Affairs, but at the last minute FDR made him Secretary of the Interior instead.

One of the things Ickes talked to Truman about was the plight of the Navajos and the veto of a bill just passed by Congress putting the Navajos under the State laws of Arizona and New Mexico.

The Catholic Church has been worried over the divorce and remarriage systems of the Navajos by which they merely appear before their own tribal authorities if they wish to divorce.

However, both Ickes and Truman felt that the Indians were entitled to their ancient tribal customs. Furthermore, Ickes was suspicious that the move to put the Navajos under State laws, while sincere on the part of the church, was a blind on the part of the politicians to take over their water rights.

He suspected the big New Mexican cattlemen and ranchers—most of them Republicans, but some of them contributing nonetheless to Democratic Senator Clinton Anderson—of engineering this part of the bill through Congress. Anderson, incidentally, had telephoned Secretary of the Interior Julius Krug during the Senate debate urging Krug to accept the amendment putting the Indians (and their water rights) under State laws. Krug agreed and the amendment stayed in.

However, President Truman took the unusual step of slapping down his Secretary of the Interior and vetoing the Navajo bill.

What's Wrong With Navy

No battleship admiral is more proNavy than Ferinand Eberstadt, close friend of Secretary Forrestal and long a power in the civilian circles behind the Navy. Yet in 1945, Eberstadt wrote a realistic report that gives some idea what Secretary of the Navy Matthews and Chief of Naval Operations Sherman are now up against in trying to keep the admirals in line.

Here is what he reported to then Secretary of the Navy Forrestal in 1945:

"There is, always has been, and always will be as long as the principle of individual responsibility and exclusive authority is continued, a centrifugal force in the Department of the Navy that the usual Secretary, possessed of fragmentary knowledge, cannot withstand. What all this means superficially is that the Navy Department is a defective administrative mechanism—it provides no adequate device by which subordinate agencies may be made immediately responsive to the will of a central intelligence. . . .

"Under such conditions," continued Eberstadt, "it is inevitable that the administration of the Navy has been entrusted primarily to the individual bureaus. The supreme civil authority in ordinary times is, in practice, isolated from the real activity of the organization over which he presides. . . . At the best, as one Secretary recently pointed out, he has acted ordinarily as an umpire between the bureau chiefs when they disagree; but it should be added, he has perforce to act as an umpire with no very certain grasp of the rules of the game."
